Signs Bring Tourist Funds

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

To the state's tourism industry, the debate over those 42 tourist attraction signs along Interstate 80 is more tangible than the lofty "state's rights" argument being forwarded by Gov. J. James Exon and State Engineer Thomas Doyle.

To them, removal of the signs will mean a loss of potential business.

John Rosenow, tourism director within the State Department of Economic Development, pointed Thursday to a study conducted after the signs were erected to show how the signs attract tourist dollars.

During the summer of 1972, Rosenow said the tourist attraction signs accounted for $3.3 million in direct expenditures by non-residents and $330,000 in state tax revenue.

Total Impact

When an economic multiplier is used to gauge the ripple-like effect of those expenditures on the economy, the total impact mounts to $8.9 million.

That study called the Interstate signs "the most important factor relative to increased visitations at Nebraska area attractions."

The study was conducted by covering the signs on certain days and uncovering it on others. Visitors were then surveyed about the primary factor that influenced them to stop at a certain attraction.

An accompanying study said 31.1% of non-resident visitors making unplanned stops cited the attraction signs as the chief factor.

At all locations included in the survey, the number of visitors were significantly higher when the signs were uncovered.

Signs Covered

For instance, at the Stuhler Museum in Grand Island the attraction signs were covered between May 31 and June 3, 1972. A total of 37 non-resident visitors made unplanned stops there.

That number had jumped to 85 between June 7-10 when the signs were uncovered. And 34 visitors, or 40% of those 85 people, said they were attracted to the museum by the signs.

At the Pony Express station near Gothenburg, the number of non-resident visitors making unplanned stops increased by 101 (from 168 on July 26-29 to 269 on Aug. 2-5) when the signs were uncovered.

To Rosenow, that data indicates the attraction signs are "an important, integral part of our marketing program."

Who Is It Aimed At?

Rosenow said the signs are aimed at those tourists passing through Nebraska who had not planned to stop longer than to get gas in the state.

"It's important to the tourism industry to stop these people," he said.

Although the signs are erected solely for public, non-profit attractions, Rosenow said a number of private attractions have asked for similar signs and been refused.

"We feel getting the travelers to stop in Nebraska helps all locations," he said.

With potential fuel problems plaguing the state's tourist industry this summer, Rosenow said the signs take on added importance.

Control To Be Less

©The New York Times

Washington — John C. Sawhill, federal energy administrator, told Congress Thursday that he planned "to phase out" supply-allocation and price controls for some fuels but to keep gasoline and heating oil under regulations "for some time."

Sawhill told the joint economic subcommittee on consumer economics that because supplies of aviation fuel and heavy (residual) fuel oil were adequate "we really no longer need an allocation program" for those fuels.

Sawhill said it was too early to say whether the petroleum allocation act should be extended beyond its scheduled Feb. 28, 1975, expiration. If it is renewed it should be modified, he said.

Humphrey Persistent

Under persistent questioning by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., subcommittee chairman, Sawhill repeatedly said he would propose in 30 to 60 days a program to lower the cost of crude oil to independent refiners, at least for the 15 such refiners he said were paying significantly more than the average cost of crude oil.

There are well placed energy sources, close to Sawhill's agency, who doubt that the much-discussed crude-price equalization program will take effect.

At the start of his testimony, Sawhill gave voice to his basic doubts about such a program. "We could put in a very complex regulatory equalization program," he said, "and I'm afraid that would put us into the regulatory business for good."

Minimum Preferred

Expressing a general preference for minimal regulation, Sawhill said, "we need to work with the independents on an exceptions basis, rather than maintain regulation over the entire industry." He noted that crude oil allocation had been narrowed so that the major oil companies are obliged to sell crude oil only to very small refiners.

Humphrey, who exposed Sawhill to direct questioning by representatives of independent refiners and marketers, said the hearing had been scheduled because of their complaints.

Edwin Jason Dryer, executive secretary of the Independent Refiners Association of America, testified that his members were paying maximum prices in the range of $10 a barrel for 85% to 95% of the crude oil they refine into petroleum products. The major oil companies, he said, had access to most of the domestic crude oil subject to an average ceiling of $5.25 a barrel.

Humphrey said a consultant's report to the Federal Energy Administration showed that the market share of the independently owned, non-branded outlets fell from 28% in May 1972 to 22% in March 1974 and 18% in April. "This decline is continuing," he said. The senator accused Sawhill of "timidity" in dealing with the problem.

Liquor Drinkers To Pay More

By The Associated Press

If you drown your sorrows after reading about the high cost of living, take comfort in the fact that liquor prices have not gone up very much around the country in the last year.

Latest figures available from the U.S. Department of Labor show alcoholic beverage prices rose only 6.7 per cent between April 1973 and April 1974 — while the cost of living for the same period went up 13.3 per cent.

Whisky drinkers had it better than most. The Labor Department says in the 12-month period the price of spirit blended whiskies and straight bourbon rose only 0.7 per cent.

But the dollars-and-cents break for consumers is not likely to last much longer.

A spokesman for Beverage Media, a New York-based trade publication, said "you hear more and more talk of higher costs. Prices this summer have got to go up."

Seagram Distillers Co. will boost some prices on Aug. 1, and James T. Turner of the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States says, "there's no question that we're finally getting pinched."

The pinch already has begun to be felt by drinkers of Scotch whisky. It has "gone up 40 cents on an $8 bottle in the past two months," said Joseph Gabriel, a Springfield, Mass., package store owner. In Chicago, liquor retailer Max Zimmerman said, "about the only price increases we've had in two years is on some Scotch."

Retailers in Chicago, Boston, Minneapolis and Miami said gin prices have remained the same for a year — with the highest rise cited being 4 per cent.

And in Louisville, a fifth of bourbon selling for $4.99 in 1951 now costs just 26 cents more.

Gabriel said Scotch prices are rising because the whisky is in short supply. But he said other prices are not likely to skyrocket — and he bases his forecast on competition.

Spokesmen for major domestic distillers said even if there were increased production costs, they wouldn't result in dramatic price hikes to consumers because three-fifths of the retail liquor prices go to taxes.

In Boston, dealer Joseph Martignetti said after taxes, bottling, transportation and marketing, "the cost of the product in the bottle actually is a very small part of the total package."

"No matter what happens," said Martignetti, the final retail price is not likely to rise by much. (But) if we ever posted prices on our bottles like they do at gasoline stations, there'd be a boycott."

If liquor prices are headed upward, wines prices are plummeting.

A spokesman for the D. Sokolin and Son liquor store in New York said consumer resistance has forced French Bordeaux prices down by 25 to 30 per cent in the past three months.

The same seems to hold true on the West Coast. Jack Pathman of the California Retail Liquor Dealers Association said imported wine prices rose 40 per cent in the past two years. But he said prices are falling and should end up about 10 per cent above their 1972 level.

Four Arab Guerrillas Die After Killing Three Women

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) —

Four long-haired Arab guerrillas disguised as hippies and bent on marring President Nixon's Middle East trip slipped into an Israeli settlement Thursday, killed three women and wounded three men, then perished themselves from gunfire and explosives, officials said.

The raid on the settlement of Shamir, just south of the Golan Heights, was the third terrorist raid in as many months. It raised the Israeli death toll from the attacks to 49.

Single Copy Daily Paper Goes To 15c

Effective Saturday, June 15, 1974, the single copy price of the daily Journal and Star newspapers sold at newsstands will be increased 5c to a new price of 15c per copy. The Sunday paper newsstand price remains at 35c.

The selling price of the daily papers at newsstands has not been changed since March, 1962. Rising publishing costs, including costs of newsprint, wages and salaries, gasoline and other delivery costs and other materials make this change necessary.

Man Fined $500 For Selling Fan

Oklahoma City (AP) — A pawn shop owner from Elk City was fined $500 and placed on two years probation for the illegal sale of an Indian fan made partially with Harris hawk feathers.

T. C. Davis Jr. was sentenced by U.S. Magistrate Charles R. Jones after changing his plea to guilty just one week before his trial was scheduled.

Officials said the terrorists planned to hit the settlement's dining hall, where some of the 470 residents were eating breakfast, but were intercepted before they could strike. The terrorists were planning to take hostages and demand the release of 100 captive guerrillas in Israeli jails, the government said.

Initially, the military command said three terrorists took part in the attack and were gunned down or blown to pieces by their own explosives during a gun battle with Israeli soldiers and armed civilians. A later communiqué said, however, that security forces and pathologists had pieced together dismembered parts of four gunmen.

Information Minister Aharon Yariv denounced the raid as "merciless terror" and warned that guerrillas could attack again in connection with Nixon's visit to Israel starting Sunday.

In Beirut the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command claimed credit for the attack and said it was "our reaction to the Nixon visit to the Arab world."

"That is how every Arab should receive Nixon, the chief imperialist in the world," said spokesman Abul Abbas. He said the guerrilla group was determined to "mar every attempt to beautify the ugly American face" and to negotiate with Israel only through bullets and suicide operations.

The attack came after Nixon was cheered by enthusiastic throngs on his arrival Wednesday in Egypt.

Israeli officials said the terrorists slipped across the border from Lebanon, but Abbas claimed they operated from a base within Israel.

The Israeli military command reported guerrillas in southeast

Lebanon shelled Israeli positions near Mt. Hermon, part of the disengagement zone in the Syrian-Israeli pact worked out by United States Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. The command said Israeli guns returned the fire and poured shells into Lebanon.

A Lebanese report said the shelling lasted three hours and was started by the Israelis, who attempted to set up positions in the eastern foothills of Mt. Hermon.

Among the women killed in the raid on the Israeli honey producing settlement of Shamir was a volunteer worker from New Zealand identified as Judy.

Republicans Short Of Money

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Literally down to its last one thousand bucks, the Nebraska Republican Party is counting heavily on a fund-raising dinner in Lincoln later this month to sustain the party's operations this election year.

"This is a very important fundraiser," State Chairman Bill Barrett of Lexington acknowledged Thursday.

"We need the money. And, in light of the political climate, it's important that we have a representative crowd."

GOP Hopes For 1,000

The GOP is hoping for a turnout of 1,000 persons or more at the $50-a-plate affair featuring House Minority Leader John Rhodes of Arizona.

Proceeds will be divided among the party's operations and Republican nominees for their general election campaigns.

Once the party pays its mid-June bills this week, its balance will hover at about $1,000. Although the GOP has been in debt before, it has not recently been so close to being "broke" in terms of available operating funds.

In order to spur interest in the dinner — and to promote their governor-leutenant governor team — GOP leaders this week conducted a two-day "aircade" tour of eight Nebraska communities.

Nominees Make Trip

Gubernatorial nominee Richard Marvel and his teammate, Mrs. Anne Batchelder, accompanied Barrett and fund-raising dinner chairman Walter Nolte of Lincoln on the trip Tuesday and Wednesday.

Stops included Grand Island, Holdrege, McCook, North Platte, Norfolk, Columbus, Fremont and Beatrice.

Participants met with about 20 GOP county chairmen during the tour and visited with local news media representatives, promoting both the dinner and the Marvel-Batchelder team.

"It went very well, Barrett said. Although the GOP is having money problems, Barrett said, the number of donors this year is actually higher than usual.

Amounts Much Smaller

"The number is up, but the amounts are much smaller," he said. "We are averaging about $17 per person."

Political financing has become dif-icult nationwide, Barrett noted. "I know the national committee has had its problems raising money, and I think that's true throughout the entire country," he said.

Nebraska Democrats may be able to outfinance Nebraska Republicans for a change this year, he said.

"We don't have a lot of money," he noted.

The GOP dinner is scheduled for June 28 at Pershing Auditorium, preceding the June 29 Republican state convention.

Truck Lines Sold

Boston (AP) — The management of Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates has announced an agreement in principle for the acquisition of Associated Truck Lines, Inc., of Grand Rapids, Mich., for $20.9 million in cash and the assumption of ATL's liabilities. The transaction will become final late in 1974.

Duo Displays Petrified Art At National Mineral Show

Instead of double trouble, it's double talent for the Kenfield twins.

As an artistic team, Harvey and Howard create three dimensional works with a most unusual medium — petrified wood.

The brothers from Ogallala are in Lincoln this week exhibiting their handwork at the National Gem and Mineral Show.

Amateur rockhounds who began digging for arrowheads over 20 years ago, the Kenfields have graduated to a polished art form which they insist is just a hobby.

"If we sell all our pieces for money it becomes work," said Harvey, "You can do it just when you want to if it's a hobby," he contends.

The Kenfields get their petrified wood from Nebraska, Wyoming and Washington. Unlike the hunters for colorful, glassy specimens, these two search for a certain type of wood that will look like old lumber in their pictures.

"It's the kind of wood no one collects, so people bury the pieces back in the ground," Harvey explained. "It's getting harder to find," he added.

Equipped with a diamond saw blade and grindstone, the brothers seek to reproduce old buildings they've seen abandoned in small towns. Sometimes they design their own, but the authenticity remains.

Attention to detail, such as crooked steps, missing parts of houses and doors slightly ajar, makes the replicas startlingly real.

Reinforcing the desolate scenes are the carefully selected titles, "Deserted," "Abandoned" and "Mortgaged and Lost."

One work of a ghost town — "Rotten Boards and Dusty Streets" — was two months in the making.

While the Kenfields have sold some of their work, they hope they've "priced our pieces high to discourage buyers."

Presidents Ride Train

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — President Nixon rode by train across the Egyptian countryside with President Anwar Sadat to this Mediterranean resort Thursday, cheered all the way from Cairo by throngs estimated by Egyptian officials to number 3.5 million.

Nixon and Sadat rode in an open railroad car on a train that had to slow down several times along the 140-mile route because of crowds surging onto the tracks. The two leaders then rode through Alexandria in a motorcade.

They were cheered by slum dwellers in Cairo's outskirts at the outset of the 3½-hour train trip, farmers in their fields in the Nile Delta, peasants on camels and donkeys and hundreds of thousands of others who had formed in massive bunches all the way to Alexandria.

In this city, people lined the streets, stood on seawalls and even hung from trees, shouting "Welcome! Welcome!" and chanting "Nixon, Nixon, Nixon."

White House aides said the welcome was beyond all their expectations.

"It's fantastic, just fantastic," said Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

The turnout outdid the Cairo reception on Wednesday when Egyptian officials said two million Egyptians turned out to greet Nixon at the start of what appeared to be his most triumphal foreign visit.

The President held another in his series of formal talks in a palace here with Sadat and at a banquet given by the Nixons for Sadat and his wife Thursday night announced that the Egyptian leader had accepted an invitation to visit the United States sometime before the end of this year.

Nixon said Sadat would be shown not only Washington but other parts of the United States as well.

"We will not be able to match certainly what we have seen in the way of antiquities . . . but I can assure you we will do all the best to demonstrate . . . that the American people have in their hearts nothing but the greatest affection for the Egyptian people."

At the state banquet, Sadat called on Nixon in a speech to work even harder on solving the remaining problems in the Middle East. He added that he was confident the President could find an answer to the "intricate problems" that still face the region.

Sadat did not specifically mention the need for an American answer to the future of the Palestinians who are demanding a new nation in the Middle East.

Nixon said his visit to Egypt — the first stop on his Middle East tour — has opened the way for a rebirth of friendship between the two nations.

This relationship, he added, "is one we will treasure and trust will be passed on to future generations."

North Yemen's Army Deposes Government

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — North Yemen's army overthrew the government Thursday after President Abdul Rahman Iryani said he planned to resign, the Middle East News Agency reported.

A seven-man armed forces command council, headed by Col. Ibrahim el Hamed, declared a state of emergency and closed all airports in the desert country, the agency reported from San'a, the North Yemen capital.

It said the council asked the three-month-old cabinet of Premier Hassan Makki to continue carrying out its duties.

It was not clear from the agency dispatch whether there was bloodshed during the coup.

Iryani, 63, had headed a three-man Presidency Council that has ruled the country since 1969.

The communique said there were differences among the members of his council over the "deterioration of the situation, administrative stagnation and corruption in the government machine and institutions."

The army decided to take over during a noon meeting, and Hamed summoned Makki's 22-man cabinet to an emergency meeting Friday morning, the dispatch said.

North Yemen is at the tip of the Arabian Peninsula. Its capital, San'a, is about 550 miles southeast of Jidda, Saudi Arabia, where President Nixon goes Friday on the next leg of his Middle East tour.

In Washington, the State Department said it had received reports of a crisis in the capital, San'a.

North Yemen is tied closely to Saudi Arabia, a close ally of the United States, and any developments that affect the stability of the Red Sea region would be of deep concern to United States.

NIXON, SADAT . . . board train for Alexandria.

Ford Outlines Commitment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford said Thursday the United States is committed to go beyond disengagement agreements and seek solutions to the basic human and territorial problems in the Middle East.

In a speech, Ford assured Israel of continuing U.S. support while forging "a new partnership" with key Arab states.

He said President Nixon's trip to Israel "demonstrates that our friendship and commitment are in no way affected by our new ties with the Arab world."

Ford did not spell out his definition of human and territorial problems but it was considered to be a possible allusion to Arab demands for further and larger Israeli withdrawals and a relocation of displaced Palestinians.

The vice president addressed a State Department luncheon arranged by sponsors of a program to broaden travels by foreign diplomats in the United States.

"Moderate Arab states are increasingly persuaded that the United States is committed to help bring about a just Middle East peace," he said.

Committee Subpoenas Ziegler

Washington (AP) — Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler has been subpoenaed to appear before the Senate Watergate committee, sources close to the panel said Thursday.

The sources said Ziegler is expected to appear after he and President Nixon return from trips this month to the Middle East and the Soviet Union.

The subpoena was first issued March 4, the sources said. It was not learned why it was not served at that time.

Ziegler was questioned briefly by Watergate committee staff members early last year, an aide to one member of the panel said.

It was not learned what questions the Watergate committee wishes to ask Ziegler.

In other Watergate-related developments:

— The House impeachment inquiry examined IRS actions against political enemies of the administration, and members of the committee said the actions were politically motivated and possibly illegal. But they said the link to Nixon was vague.

— Jeb Stuart Magruder, a Watergate principal who went to prison last week, said in a taped interview that the Watergate transcripts indicate to him Nixon and top aides were either ill-informed or "were trying to put something on the tape for their own uses."

— The lawyers for the seven original Watergate break-in defendants, including G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard Barker and Eugenio Martinez, were preparing to argue before the U.S. Court of Appeals Friday that their guilty pleas should be withdrawn and convictions reversed.

— Chesterfield Smith, president of the American Bar

Association, predicted that former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst and former presidential aide Charles W. Colson will be found "guilty of violating ethical standards of conduct" in disciplinary proceedings by local bar associations.

— The Senate Judiciary Committee announced that Kleindienst will testify Tuesday into hearings on Earl J. Silbert's nomination to be U.S. attorney in the District of Columbia.

Congress Leaders Say Security Justifies Taps

Washington (UPI) — With a majority of the Senate expressing confidence in Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's integrity, congressional leaders declared Thursday that government wiretapping is justified and legal when done to protect national security.

A majority of 51 senators had signed a resolution introduced Wednesday by Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., calling Kissinger's integrity and veracity "above reproach."

Meanwhile, the Foreign Relations Committee was preparing to reopen its investigation of allegations that Kissinger initiated wiretaps on 13 former aides and four newsmen to find the source of news leaks during the period between 1969 and 1971.

Kissinger, who denies he initiated the taps, threatened in an emotional news conference in Salzburg, Austria, Tuesday to resign unless "some responsible forum" cleared him of allegations that he lied about his role in the White House surveillance efforts.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, one of those who signed the resolution of support, said he had "every confidence" in Kissinger and believed the controversy swirling about the secretary was more "damaging in his own mind that it is in reality."

Mansfield, asked about the news leaks wiretapping, said he believed wiretaps "might be necessary for the protection and security of the nation" in certain instances.

Republican leader Hugh Scott agreed, saying that "the assumption that wiretapping is totally illegal runs up against the other situation — how do you protect national security?"

House GOP leader John J.

Rhodes said documents leaked from the House Judiciary Committee which contradict Kissinger's explanation of his role in the taps obscured an essential question:

"... Were the wiretaps that were ordered justified for reasons of national security? I personally feel that this question can be answered in the affirmative."

Rhodes said Kissinger had "earned his credibility" and that his offer to go before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to answer all questions on the issue was "illustrative of his high character."

Waste: Wash With Haste

Rock Falls, Ill. (UPI) — A bus carrying 40 members of the Oskaloosa (Iowa) High School band collided Thursday with a truck loaded with rendering waste, dousing both drivers and some musicians with lard but injuring nobody.

The band was en route to compete in the Midwest National High School Band Contest at Rock Falls High School at the time of the accident.

Police said the bus driver, truck driver and three members of the band were taken to the hospital for a shower and released.

Nixon Friend Sentenced

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — C. Arnholt Smith, a friend of President Nixon and once a major financial figure in Southern California, was sentenced Thursday to an indefinite term in jail on seven counts of contempt of court.

However, Superior Court Judge Paul Eugene Overton granted the 75-year-old Smith a stay on execution of the sentence until next Tuesday.

Overton ordered Smith "incarcerated until such time as you are willing to appear in this court to answer the seven questions asked."

The questions were posed by an attorney for Robert Daggett, brother of a former accountant for Smith, during Daggett's trial on charges of attempted extortion.

Smith declined on June 5 to answer the questions, citing the Fifth Amendment.

Daggett has been charged with indicating to an attorney for Smith that his brother, Pliny Daggett, would vary his testimony before a federal grand jury if Smith would purchase up to $20 million in real estate.

A grand jury is reportedly investigating his business dealings and he faces a $23 million income tax claim.

In recent months, Smith has been forced out as operating officer of Westgate-California Corp., a large conglomerate he founded, and his United States National Bank was declared insolvent last fall.

Fumes Force 9,000 To Flee

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Workers on Thursday removed leaking drums of a noxious and potentially explosive chemical that ruptured in a train wreck and released fumes that forced the evacuation of 9,000 area residents.

More than 170 persons, including four firemen and policemen, were treated for gas inhalation Wednesday night and Thursday. Five were admitted to hospitals, none in serious condition, officials said.

Phosphorus trichloride chemical was leaking from 100 60-gallon drums on a single car that ruptured when 40 cars of a Santa Fe freight train derailed Wednesday night.

About 700 pounds of the liquid were in each drum. The chemical turns to gas when exposed to the atmosphere and can explode when it comes in contact with water.

Workers cleared the other cars from the tracks and two safety experts wearing gas-resistant suits entered the car and began removing the ruptured drums and putting them on the ground.

Del McHard, a State Health Department official, no decision had been made on how to dispose of the chemical, but several methods were being considered, including burying it in a clay-bottomed disposal pit.

The wreck occurred in a rural area just north of here. Residents of the area between Norman and the adjoining city of Moore, combined population 70,000, were forced to leave their homes as shifting winds wafted the clouds of whitish gas back and forth.

Lords Hear Charles

London — Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, delivered a speech from the floor of the House of Lords, the first such address made by a member of the royal family in 90 years. His plea for more government support of recreation seemed less significant than his very appearance, which served to focus attention on the 25-year-old Prince of Wales.

Prince Wants Visitor?

San Diego — An American admiral's daughter, whose blonde, green-eyed beauty attracted the courtly attention of Britain's Prince Charles during his recent visit here has gone to London on a visit that some of her friends believe may have been "suggested" by the young heir to the British throne. Laura Jo Watkins, 20, flew to London Saturday after her mother received a surprise telephone call from Mrs. Walter Annenberg, wife of the retiring American ambassador to Britain, asking her to be a house guest of the Annenbergs.

Kissinger Not Target

Washington — Highly reliable sources said Secretary of State Kissinger was not "a target" of the Watergate prosecutor's investigation of the Nixon administration's secret wiretap program. One source said the prosecutor's office had told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee it had no indication of any criminal liability on the part of Kissinger.

Funds Misuse Studied

Washington — The Watergate Grand Jury is investigating charges that Nixon administration officials illegally used funds earmarked for minority programs to attract reelection support in 1972 for the President of blacks and Spanish-speaking Americans, sources close to the investigation reported Thursday.

Nixon Man Stricken

Washington — J. Fred Buzhardt Jr., one of President Nixon's key Watergate defense lawyers, suffered an apparent heart attack and was rushed to a Virginia hospital where he was reported in serious condition. His illness could create difficulties for Nixon since Buzhardt has been in overall charge of the President's defense, according to some sources, and is reportedly more familiar with tapes and documents related to Watergate than anyone else in the White House.

$500 Million Freed

Washington — The Nixon administration, under legal and political pressure to release impounded funds, Thursday freed $500 million in transportation funds that had previously been impounded. Of the $500 million, $370 million was designated for highways and $130 million for mass transit.

Resignations Rejected

Calley Ordered Back To Custody

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court Thursday ordered an end to former Army Lt. William L. Calley's freedom on bail while his conviction in the My Lai killings is argued in civilian courts.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed a lower court judge who granted Calley bail in February — blocking the Army's move to send him to military prison at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

In a five-page ruling issued 24 hours after a special expedited hearing, the three-judge panel ordered Calley back into Army custody — with the Army to decide where it wants to keep him.

In Washington, the Army said it is "prepared to resume custody of William Calley as soon as it is legally permissible to do so."

The ruling means Calley must continue serving his 10-year sentence while his lawyers argue before U.S. District Judge J. Robert Elliott in Columbus, Ga., in an effort to have his military conviction retried in civilian court.

A June 24 hearing is set in the Georgia court.

Calley spent three years under house arrest after his 1971 conviction on a charge he murdered 22 Vietnamese civilians in 1968 in what has become known as the My Lai massacre.

He was originally sentenced to life imprisonment, but the Army reduced the term to 10 years and Calley was given a less-than-honorable discharge.

Southern Baptists Hedge On Abortion

DALLAS (AP) — The Southern Baptist Convention (SBC) took a stand Thursday against racism and for governmental integrity, but hedged on abortion.

The nearly 17,000 messengers (delegates) to the SBC approved the resolutions on the last day of the three-day meeting climaxed at night with an address from evangelist Billy Graham.

Vice President Gerald Ford will address messengers Friday morning at a postconference prayer breakfast. About 1,500 are expected at this session in a hotel ballroom.

The messengers also affirmed their opposition to federal aid for nonpublic schools and approved a watered-down version of a resolution on peace that avoided the issue of conscientious objectors.

The resolution against racism was approved after the defeat of an amendment that would have expressed opposition to what a Texas messenger called "preferential treatment" to different races, quota systems and busing of school children.

The resolution was one of several submitted as recommendations by the Christian Life Commission, the SBC's social concerns agency. It called on Baptists to "renew our commitment to the Bible teaching of justice for all human beings regardless of race, and that we work earnestly for racial justice in public education, employment, health care, housing, consumer concerns and citizen participation in the political process." It called racism "theologically untenable, politically destructive and fatally dehumanizing."

The abortion resolution was basically a reaffirmation of a 1971 SBC stand recognizing "sanctity of life" and calling for legislation on the matter of abortion. It said abortion should be permitted under "such conditions as rape, incest, clear evidence of severe fetal deformity, and carefully ascertained evidence of the likelihood of damage to the emotional, mental and physical health of the mother."

Records Say Knowland Insolvent

Oakland, Calif. (UPI) — William F. Knowland, former Senate majority leader and publisher of the Oakland Tribune, was financially insolvent at the time of his death and owed more than $900,000 in personal bank loans, court documents showed Thursday.

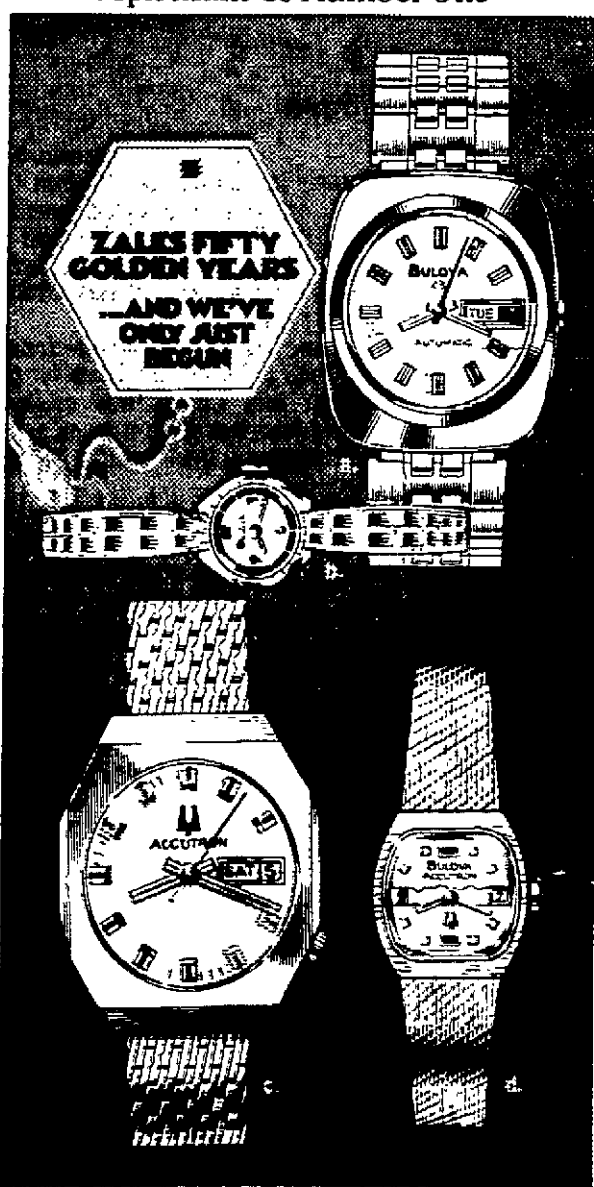

Knowland died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound Feb. 23.

The court records, filed in Alameda County Superior Court, showed that the loans were to come due in a matter of weeks at the time of his death.

Paul Manolis, a longtime friend of Knowland and executor of his estate, said Knowland's personal finances were separate from those of the Tribune and the newspaper was not affected.

Fumes Force 9,000 To Flee

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Workers on Thursday removed leaking drums of a noxious and potentially explosive chemical that ruptured in a train wreck and released fumes that forced the evacuation of 9,000 area residents.

More than 170 persons, including four firemen and policemen, were treated for gas inhalation Wednesday night and Thursday. Five were admitted to hospitals, none in serious condition, officials said.

Phosphorus trichloride chemical was leaking from 100 60-gallon drums on a single car that ruptured when 40 cars of a Santa Fe freight train derailed Wednesday night.

About 700 pounds of the liquid were in each drum. The chemical turns to gas when exposed to the atmosphere and can explode when it comes in contact with water.

Workers cleared the other cars from the tracks and two safety experts wearing gas-resistant suits entered the car and began removing the ruptured drums and putting them on the ground.

Del McHard, a State Health Department official, no decision had been made on how to dispose of the chemical, but several methods were being considered, including burying it in a clay-bottomed disposal pit.

The wreck occurred in a rural area just north of here. Residents of the area between Norman and the adjoining city of Moore, combined population 70,000, were forced to leave their homes as shifting winds wafted the clouds of whitish gas back and forth.

Southern Baptists Hedge On Abortion

DALLAS (AP) — The Southern Baptist Convention (SBC) took a stand Thursday against racism and for governmental integrity, but hedged on abortion.

The nearly 17,000 messengers (delegates) to the SBC approved the resolutions on the last day of the three-day meeting climaxed at night with an address from evangelist Billy Graham.

Vice President Gerald Ford will address messengers Friday morning at a postconference prayer breakfast. About 1,500 are expected at this session in a hotel ballroom.

The messengers also affirmed their opposition to federal aid for nonpublic schools and approved a watered-down version of a resolution on peace that avoided the issue of conscientious objectors.

The resolution against racism was approved after the defeat of an amendment that would have expressed opposition to what a Texas messenger called "preferential treatment" to different races, quota systems and busing of school children.

The resolution was one of several submitted as recommendations by the Christian Life Commission, the SBC's social concerns agency. It called on Baptists to "renew our commitment to the Bible teaching of justice for all human beings regardless of race, and that we work earnestly for racial justice in public education, employment, health care, housing, consumer concerns and citizen participation in the political process." It called racism "theologically untenable, politically destructive and fatally dehumanizing."

The abortion resolution was basically a reaffirmation of a 1971 SBC stand recognizing "sanctity of life" and calling for legislation on the matter of abortion. It said abortion should be permitted under "such conditions as rape, incest, clear evidence of severe fetal deformity, and carefully ascertained evidence of the likelihood of damage to the emotional, mental and physical health of the mother."

Records Say Knowland Insolvent

Oakland, Calif. (UPI) — William F. Knowland, former Senate majority leader and publisher of the Oakland Tribune, was financially insolvent at the time of his death and owed more than $900,000 in personal bank loans, court documents showed Thursday.

Knowland died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound Feb. 23.

The court records, filed in Alameda County Superior Court, showed that the loans were to come due in a matter of weeks at the time of his death.

Paul Manolis, a longtime friend of Knowland and executor of his estate, said Knowland's personal finances were separate from those of the Tribune and the newspaper was not affected.

Lords Hear Charles

London — Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, delivered a speech from the floor of the House of Lords, the first such address made by a member of the royal family in 90 years. His plea for more government support of recreation seemed less significant than his very appearance, which served to focus attention on the 25-year-old Prince of Wales.

Prince Wants Visitor?

San Diego — An American admiral's daughter, whose blonde, green-eyed beauty attracted the courtly attention of Britain's Prince Charles during his recent visit here has gone to London on a visit that some of her friends believe may have been "suggested" by the young heir to the British throne. Laura Jo Watkins, 20, flew to London Saturday after her mother received a surprise telephone call from Mrs. Walter Annenberg, wife of the retiring American ambassador to Britain, asking her to be a house guest of the Annenbergs.

Kissinger Not Target

Washington — Highly reliable sources said Secretary of State Kissinger was not "a target" of the Watergate prosecutor's investigation of the Nixon administration's secret wiretap program. One source said the prosecutor's office had told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee it had no indication of any criminal liability on the part of Kissinger.

Funds Misuse Studied

Washington — The Watergate Grand Jury is investigating charges that Nixon administration officials illegally used funds earmarked for minority programs to attract reelection support in 1972 for the President of blacks and Spanish-speaking Americans, sources close to the investigation reported Thursday.

Nixon Man Stricken

Washington — J. Fred Buzhardt Jr., one of President Nixon's key Watergate defense lawyers, suffered an apparent heart attack and was rushed to a Virginia hospital where he was reported in serious condition. His illness could create difficulties for Nixon since Buzhardt has been in overall charge of the President's defense, according to some sources, and is reportedly more familiar with tapes and documents related to Watergate than anyone else in the White House.

$500 Million Freed

Washington — The Nixon administration, under legal and political pressure to release impounded funds, Thursday freed $500 million in transportation funds that had previously been impounded. Of the $500 million, $370 million was designated for highways and $130 million for mass transit.

Resignations Rejected

Calley Ordered Back To Custody

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court Thursday ordered an end to former Army Lt. William L. Calley's freedom on bail while his conviction in the My Lai killings is argued in civilian courts.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed a lower court judge who granted Calley bail in February — blocking the Army's move to send him to military prison at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

In a five-page ruling issued 24 hours after a special expedited hearing, the three-judge panel ordered Calley back into Army custody — with the Army to decide where it wants to keep him.

In Washington, the Army said it is "prepared to resume custody of William Calley as soon as it is legally permissible to do so."

The ruling means Calley must continue serving his 10-year sentence while his lawyers argue before U.S. District Judge J. Robert Elliott in Columbus, Ga., in an effort to have his military conviction retried in civilian court.

A June 24 hearing is set in the Georgia court.

Calley spent three years under house arrest after his 1971 conviction on a charge he murdered 22 Vietnamese civilians in 1968 in what has become known as the My Lai massacre.

He was originally sentenced to life imprisonment, but the Army reduced the term to 10 years and Calley was given a less-than-honorable discharge.

System Is Working, Badly

Cattle and hog producers will be meeting in Washington Monday with grocery retailers because the free enterprise system is working. It is working in classic style, with the price on meat so high that consumers are leaving it alone.

That's the way things are supposed to work, but a new ingredient is involved at the moment. The livestock producer is going broke and that's not the way things are supposed to work.

The Washington meeting is reported to be a session aimed by the administration at heading off any panic selling of livestock, a development that could bring widespread shortages in the fall and winter. What the administration hopes to do is to convince retailers it is in their own best interest to voluntarily lower meat prices to encourage consumer buying.

Some justification for this is found in the big spread that exists between the slaughter price of beef and pork and its price on retailers' shelves. That retail price does not reflect the sharp drop in slaughter prices of the past two weeks and before.

We are not overly optimistic about the results of the Monday meeting but hope springs eternal. At least, we had better hope for the best.

Continuing losses in cattle production are a real threat to the economy of Nebraska and the welfare of all the people of the nation. Our food supply is built around meat and it would mean a drastic change in living style if that had to be reversed.

The danger is that people are beginning to get out of the cattle production business all along the line. What people don't seem to realize is that this is not a condition that can be corrected overnight.

Once we have a real shortage of beef, it will be with us for a long time because the period from breeding to slaughter is a long one. And it takes good herds to do the breeding, which means a time span of possibly several years before a beef shortage could be reversed.

If the retailers are a part of the problem in this matter, we hope they quickly see the light. If their profits are too high today, they could be plowing ground for tomorrow's losses. Surely, they must know that every producer who goes out of business adds to the supply problems of the retailer.

We All Are Human

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger knows more than one way to create a sensation. If there is a national hero today, it may well be Kissinger for accomplishing the seemingly impossible on the international scene.

He paved the way for peace in Vietnam and most recently he negotiated a ceasefire between Israel and Syria, the latter having led to the Middle East good-will tour now being taken by President Nixon.

Kissinger has been a dynamic man of accomplishment in an administration that has been badly tarnished. He has managed, so far, to remain free of the taint of Watergate.

But now there are leaks from somewhere in Washington to the effect that Kissinger had more to do with illegal wiretaps during the Watergate aftermath than he has admitted. That made it time for Kissinger to create another sensation.

He did this by announcing, while the President was on an international trip, that he would resign his government post unless his name is fully cleared by the Senate.

The announcement was a bomb-shell. It was an unprecedented kind of thing under the protocol standards of the State Department.

Also, it showed Mr. Kissinger to have a thinner skin than a lot of people thought. The patient Mr. Kissinger of international fame turns out to have a pretty short and hot temper in daily affairs.

As to the merits of the entire situation, or the lack of them, there appears to be little foundation for any serious charges against the secretary of state. It is said that he was less than candid in his statement of his personal role in the wiretaps.

Well, something less than complete candor is little more than a hand in the cookie jar Watergate affairs. One might well wish that a better lid could be applied to the entire investigative procedure in Washington.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Looking-Glass World

WASHINGTON — Throwing out the baby with the bath water is likely to be the end result of the expanded warfare directed at Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. The baby in this instance is the Nixon foreign policy opening the way to at least the chance for a peaceful world and an abatement of the nuclear arms race.

The squalid bath water of Watergate may finally drown everything good and bad. If that happens, the loss may be irreparable and the opening to a peaceful understanding between East and West closed for a long time to come.

Returning from the Middle East hailed as Super-K and a miracle worker, Kissinger faced a press conference bent on establishing his guilt in the wiretaps of his coworkers in the National Security Council and certain newspapermen.

To this observer, Kissinger's position in the early years of the Nixon administration when he was in the White House as adviser on national security affairs seems clear. He was trying to survive in a nest of vipers. The German mafia had no love for the brilliant Jewish professor who had achieved a position of such influence in the vital area of foreign policy.

In the long view of history, it may be determined that he sacrificed too much, cut too many corners for personal power. But for those of us living in this precarious moment, the verdict of history is at the end of a long, dark and perhaps impassable tunnel.

If the nuclear arms race between the two super-powers goes on and still other nations get the potential of the weapon of annihilation, there may be no history.

The assumption of some reporter-commentators who direct their fire at Kissinger is that diplomacy should be treated like the police beat. You score if you get the bad guys and you better believe there aren't any good guys.

Above all, no secrecy with the diplomat, the secretary of state, exposed to the fierce light of the police lineup. This is a dangerous distortion of the reporter's function

Any protracted and difficult negotiation, such as that in the Middle East, has elements which cannot in the first stages be disclosed. Those elements, which one must assume do not violate the national interest, are an essential part of the diplomat's trade.

In the Middle East negotiation, President Hafez Assad of Syria could privately tell Kissinger that he would do everything possible to prevent Palestinian terrorists from infiltrating into Israel. But he could not put this in writing nor could he advertise it publicly if a disengagement on the Golan Heights were to be arrived at. In his turn, Kissinger could pass this on to the Israeli negotiators.

What disturbs one observer is the way each new blow at the Nixon administration brings an almost gleeful gloating. Hah, we've got the evildoers on the run. My own reaction to the plight of the nation caught up in the Watergate whirlpool is one of profound sorrow. How can this have happened to my country to which my forebears came long ago?

It is a looking-glass world. The speech that President Nixon made to the midshipmen at Annapolis was a solid, persuasive exposition of what could and could not be accomplished through a detente with the Soviet Union. If the name of a Hubert Humphrey or an Adlai Stevenson had been attached to that speech, the liberals would have been on their chairs cheering.

Let me venture one precarious prophecy. If Nixon is removed from office by resignation or impeachment, we shall see a sterner, harsher and perhaps even a more dangerous period ahead.

Variegated Answers

WITH THE PRESIDENT — We are an armada no conqueror of ages past could possibly comprehend. We sail high over strange lands, over hooded peoples who may marvel at the long white plumes we string along the blue dome of their heavens. We thunder from point to point at almost the speed of sound. Some of the people riding or trudging in camel trains miles below us may beseech Allah to give them the answer to this puzzling visitation of our aerial fleet. Chances are that they never heard of us. Nor want to.

Some of the political observers in America and elsewhere are asking the same question: Why are we here?

The answers depend on the nature of the questioner. If he is an observer with a light touch, he might say we are on this 15,000 mile trip with Mr. Nixon because the President recently discovered, to his surprise and delight, that he had a week or ten days remaining before his inauguration shots had to be boosted. So he wanted to go somewhere to use them up. Or the same observer might say that the President wants to go down in history as the first man to teach the Jews and the Arabs how to live together in tranquility, guided by the best Christian principles. Then there is the suggestion that the prime reason for the trip is to collect the laundry Prof. Kissinger left in this general area last week.

There are, of course, sterner answers from critics of the President. We are here, they insist, because Washington has become a sizzling kitchen and he cannot stand the heat. We are here, they add, because Leon Jaworski, Sam Ervin and Peter Rodino are there. We are here because the unanswered or evaded subpoenas are there. We are here, far from the maddening crowd of prosecutors and protesters, because here he's the biggest man in the world, filling the center of the world stage once more to act out, as only he and his adept hired hand, Kissinger, can, the roles of peace-makers extraordinary. The Middle East is 50 light years from the Watergate war.

Dist. by King Features Synd.

LEWIS

LONDON — Henry A. Kissinger's unique place in world politics was indicated plainly enough by the British treatment of his resignation threat. It made banner headlines even in the tabloids. The Guardian doubtless reflected informed opinion when it said his departure would be "a sad day."

His extraordinary position has its heavy burdens. For months Kissinger has conducted the foreign policy of a great power in the virtual absence of political leadership. He spent exhausting weeks successfully negotiating in one of the most impossible situations on earth, the Middle East. He might well feel, after all that, that the press was sharper than a serpent's tooth to question him again about wiretapping.

But sympathy stops there. Kissinger has had ample glory from his office, and less criticism than many secretaries of state. His threat of resignation was calculated to arouse alarm and support for him, especially in Congress, and it did. But there are questions that will not go away: questions about integrity, civility and respect for the democratic process.

The immediate issue is whether Kissinger was truthful in denying to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that he had "initiated" or "recommended" the wiretapping of 17 White House colleagues and reporters starting in 1969. But it is not just a verbal quibble.

At his confirmation hearings the secretary sought to give the impression that he had had only a remote relationship to that tapping. The committee showed no desire to pursue the matter. But evidence has emerged since then to suggest that he was much more centrally involved in the tapping episode.

In his angry news conference at Salzburg, he said it was a "fact" that "the wiretaps in question were legal." Many legal scholars would disagree. The Supreme Court unanimously rejected the argument that the President has inherent power to use taps against domestic organizations thought to be threatening the country's security. Would the court have found such a power to tap, say, journalists, without express congressional authorization and without court orders?

It is really more a question of decency, of civility, than of law. Kissinger says now that he finds wiretapping "distasteful," but some who observed him firsthand in the White House noticed no great qualms about such surreptitious operations.

Try to imagine the great Republican secretaries of state of the past — Charles Evans Hughes, or Henry Stimson — standing still for the wiretapping of their associates. No one would have dared make such a suggestion to those men. Doubt remains that Kissinger really perceives how nasty it is to initiate or condone spying on one's own colleagues and friends.

When Kissinger complains of being persecuted, of suffering attacks on his honor, it is somewhat reminiscent of President Nixon's seeking sympathy for his "difficult" decision to bomb Hanoi at Christmas, 1972. Sympathy should be saved for the victims. In this case they were honorable public servants and journalists, and their wives and children.

Unlike the President, the secretary of state evidently does have something nagging at his conscience. He has come back to the wiretapping question again and again, not only in the remarkable Salzburg performance but in private conversations. How much pain might have been avoided if he had been candid with the Senate in the first place, if he had accepted a share of responsibility for his abuse of power.

The difficulty is that Henry Kissinger may not see any abuse. For the wiretap episode is closely related to his whole view of government power, who should exercise it and how.

What led to this wiretapping was a story disclosing that the United States was secretly bombing Cambodia. Kissinger was furious at the disclosure. And the premise of his fury was that the president of the United States should have power to bomb another country without informing much less consulting Congress or the public.

The view of power fits some systems of government; it worked well for Bismarck up to a point. But as we learned so painfully in Vietnam, the secret manipulation of power does not suit our constitutional democracy.

Henry Kissinger has always wanted to operate alone — to be the lone horseman, as he once put it. Some of his resentment that boiled up in Salzburg may relate not only to the wiretapping issue but to doubts thrown recently on the honor and the effectiveness of his one-man performance in the Vietnam negotiations.

To ask him to accept the restraints and inconveniences of our constitutionalism is to ask a great deal. But there is no alternative. That is what Watergate is all about: The end does not justify the means. Henry Kissinger will still this disturbance only when he accepts that he, like others, must live by the rules.

JAMES RESTON

The Emotional Threat

NEW YORK — Henry Kissinger's threat to resign is the silliest thing he has done since he came into the government, and is not really to be taken seriously.

The issue apparently is whether he "directly" initiated the wiretaps on his White House associates, which he denies, or whether somebody else "initiated" them and he went along. This was back in 1969 at the beginning of the first Nixon administration, and it is a fine distinction. Whether he "initiated" the wiretaps or tolerated them in silence is no big deal. Certainly, he knew about them, and this he does not deny.

Maybe it could be argued, on Kissinger's own terms, that he should have resigned then rather than go along with tapping the telephones of his own colleagues, or that he should have explained the issue more explicitly when he came before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for confirmation as secretary of state.

But to threaten to resign now in an emotional news conference in Austria at the start of the President's tour of the Middle East, and just before the really important discussions with the Soviet Union on arms control and trade, and with the Europeans on the future of the Atlantic alliance, is very odd.

What startled and diverted Kissinger from his concentration on the great issues of foreign policy was the news conference he held after his long, painful and successful negotiation of the Syrian-Israeli cease-fire in the Middle East.

Apparently, he expected to be questioned about how this remarkable compromise had been worked out. Instead, he was confronted by questions that had come up while he was away. They were very hard questions. In short, had he not lied about his part in the wiretapping of his aides in the White House?

All last weekend he troubled about these questions. How could the United States, he asked privately, conduct foreign policy if the President was charged with impeachment and the secretary of state was being charged with perjury?

On Sunday last, after reading the charges against him in the New York Times, he considered skipping the Middle Eastern trip with the President. He consulted with his aides in the government and with members of the Congress and the press, who told him he was turning an old controversy into an unnecessary crisis.

Accordingly, he decided to make the trip, but somewhere along they way apparently he concluded, as he had said last Sunday, that this was a question of personal honor that had to be resolved. His news conference in Austria before a traveling White House press corps that had nothing else to report dramatized his threat to resign.

This was obviously the wrong issue, at the wrong time, and in the wrong place, but it illustrates the paradox in Kissinger. He is a highly intelligent and rational man, but he is also deeply sensitive, and he has probably been traveling too far under too much tension.

Also, going back to the original controversy on the wiretaps, he was like so many others in the White House under great pressure from "the other side" of the executive mansion.

When there were leaks to the press and Ehrlichman and Haldeman were demanding that the leaks be stopped, Kissinger himself knew he was suspected as being the source of the leaks. He was not even sure that his own telephones were not being tapped.

Somewhere in this atmosphere of suspicion, somebody "initiated" the wiretapping proposal, and Kissinger, rightly or wrongly, went along, believing that if he didn't, he himself would be accused of the leaks.

The Kissinger threat of resignation is only the latest evidence that everybody in the Nixon White House seems to be deranged or corrupted by the lack of trust in that place.

Even the most intelligent of men do strange things and the Kissinger press conference is stranger than most. There was no great issue about him in the public mind. He was the one practical man, dealing successfully with intractable questions, but now he has made a big issue out of his credibility in the wire-tapping matter and the Congress will have to try to sort it out.

Meanwhile, he has put himself along with the President as a victim of an irresponsible press, and this is precisely what he has always tried to avoid. He has wanted to be separate, to keep Watergate and foreign policy apart, but now he has confused them and this makes things even worse than they have to be.

Clarifying Views

Humboldt, Neb. Regarding the article on the Girls State gubernatorial candidates in the June 11 Star, I would like to clarify the statement attributed to me about my views on abortion.

I do "feel strongly that abortion should be legal for anyone." However, I am in complete agreement with the Supreme Court ruling that, if performed, it should be within three months of conception, rather than "at any time, not only during the first three months of pregnancy," as stated in the article.

As we are all aware, many factors enter into the extremely personal matter of abortion, including among others, education, religion, finances, social, health and emotional stability, and moral issues and beliefs.

I firmly believe that preventive measures should be taken if a child is unwanted, for whatever reason or reasons. However, if an unwanted pregnancy should occur, it is my personal belief that a woman should have the alternative of abortion rather than completing a full-term, unwanted pregnancy.

Centuries-Long Plague

Lincoln, Neb. The Star can't be serious in its editorial, "Colson Gets Religion." The Rev. Billy G., who recently deserted under fire, spent more time at King Richard's breakfast table than you could shake a cross at, and with no tangible results. In fact, quite the opposite, Graham's constant presence seemed to invoke a deterioration of state matters.

The senator, Rev. Hughes, having given up one form of mumbo-jumbo for another, will probably do no less for poor Colson. You should recall that Colson was originally "dedicated" to King Richard who was given a much greater mandate in 1972 than the Trinity got at the Council of Nicaea in 325.

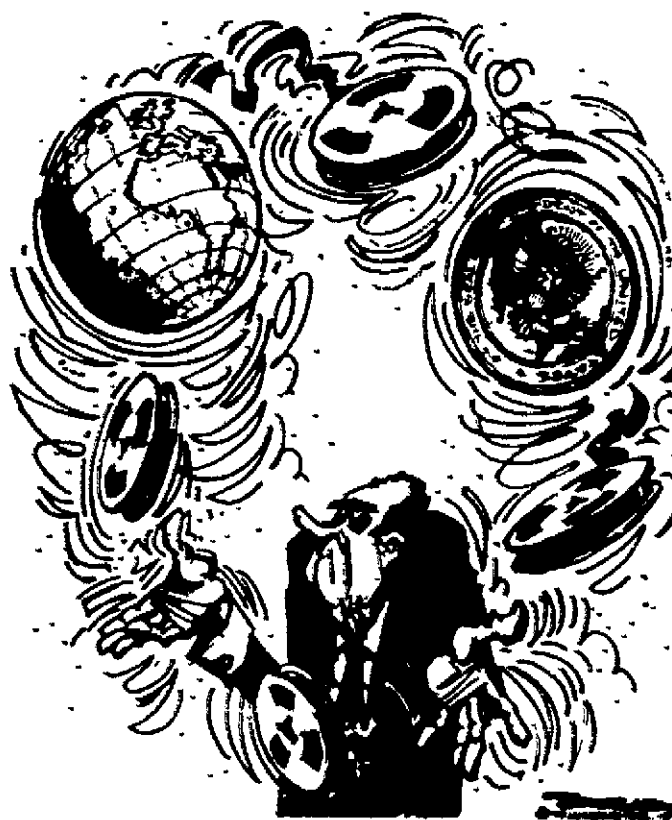

Let's hope it doesn't spread. Civilized people have been plagued for centuries by superstitious ninnies, and adding a few bad lawyers to the ranks of the clergy could only increase human misery.

Continuing losses in cattle production are a real threat to the economy of Nebraska and the welfare of all the people of the nation. Our food supply is built around meat and it would mean a drastic change in living style if that had to be reversed.

The danger is that people are beginning to get out of the cattle production business all along the line. This is not a condition that can be corrected overnight.

Once we have a real shortage of beef, it will be with us for a long time because the period from breeding to slaughter is a long one. And it takes good herds to do the breeding, which means a time span of possibly several years before a beef shortage could be reversed.

If the retailers are a part of the problem in this matter, we hope they quickly see the light. If their profits are too high today, they could be plowing ground for tomorrow's losses. Surely, they must know that every producer who goes out of business adds to the supply problems of the retailer.

We All Are Human

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger knows more than one way to create a sensation. If there is a national hero today, it may well be Kissinger for accomplishing the seemingly impossible on the international scene.

He paved the way for peace in Vietnam and most recently he negotiated a ceasefire between Israel and Syria, the latter having led to the Middle East good-will tour now being taken by President Nixon.

Kissinger has been a dynamic man of accomplishment in an administration that has been badly tarnished. He has managed, so far, to remain free of the taint of Watergate.

But now there are leaks from somewhere in Washington to the effect that Kissinger had more to do with illegal wiretaps during the Watergate aftermath than he has admitted. That made it time for Kissinger to create another sensation.

He did this by announcing, while the

he would resign his government post unless his name is fully cleared by the Senate.

The announcement was a bomb-shell. It was an unprecedented kind of thing under the protocol standards of the State Department.

Also, it showed Mr. Kissinger to have a thinner skin than a lot of people thought. The patient Mr. Kissinger of international fame turns out to have a pretty short and hot temper in daily affairs.

As to the merits of the entire situation, or the lack of them, there appears to be little foundation for any serious charges against the secretary of state. It is said that he was less than candid in his statement of his personal role in the wiretaps.

Well, something less than complete candor is little more than a hand in the cookie jar Watergate affairs. One might well wish that a better lid could be applied to the entire investigative procedure in Washington.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Looking-Glass World

WASHINGTON — Throwing out the baby with the bath water is likely to be the end result of the expanded warfare directed at Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. The baby in this instance is the Nixon foreign policy opening the way to at least the chance for a peaceful world and an abatement of the nuclear arms race.

The squalid bath water of Watergate may finally drown everything good and bad. If that happens, the loss may be irreparable and the opening to a peaceful understanding between East and West closed for a long time to come.

Returning from the Middle East hailed as Super-K and a miracle worker, Kissinger faced a press conference bent on establishing his guilt in the wiretaps of his coworkers in the National Security Council and certain newspapermen.

To this observer, Kissinger's position in the early years of the Nixon administration when he was in the White House as adviser on national security affairs seems clear. He was trying to survive in a nest of vipers. The German mafia had no love for the brilliant Jewish professor who had achieved a position of such influence in the vital area of foreign policy.

In the long view of history, it may be determined that he sacrificed too much, cut too many corners for personal power. But for those of us living in this precarious moment, the verdict of history is at the end of a long, dark and perhaps impassable tunnel.

If the nuclear arms race between the two super-powers goes on and still other nations get the potential of the weapon of annihilation, there may be no history.

The assumption of some reporter-commentators who direct their fire at Kissinger is that diplomacy should be treated like the police beat. You score if you get the bad guys and you better believe there aren't any good guys.

Above all, no secrecy with the diplomat, the secretary of state, exposed to the fierce light of

Variegated Answers

WITH THE PRESIDENT — We are an armada no conqueror of ages past could possibly comprehend. We sail high over strange lands, over hooded peoples who may marvel at the long white plumes we string along the blue dome of their heavens. We thunder from point to point at almost the speed of sound. Some of the people riding or trudging in camel trains miles below us may beseech Allah to give them the answer to this puzzling visitation of our aerial fleet. Chances are that they never heard of us. Nor want to.

Some of the political observers in America and elsewhere are asking the same question: Why are we here?

The answers depend on the nature of the questioner. If he is an observer with a light touch, he might say we are on this 15,000 mile trip with Mr. Nixon because the President recently discovered, to his surprise and delight, that he had a week or ten days remaining before his incandescence shots had to be boosted. So he wanted to go somewhere to use them up. Or the same observer might say that the President wants to go down in history as the first man to teach the Jews and the Arabs how to live together in tranquility, guided by the best Christian principles. Then there is the suggestion that the prime reason for the trip is to collect the laundry Prof. Kissinger left in this general area last week.

There are, of course, sterner answers from critics of the President. We are here, they insist, because Washington has become a sizzling kitchen and he cannot stand the heat. We are here, they add, because Leon Jaworski, Sam Ervin and Peter Rodino are there. We are here because the unanswered or evaded subpoenas are there. We are here, far from the madding crowd of prosecutors and protesters, because here he's the biggest man in the world, filling the center of the world stage once more to act out, as only he and his adept hired hand, Kissinger, can, the roles of peace-makers extraordinary. The Middle East is 50 light years from the Watergate war.

Dist. by King Features Synd.

ANTHONY LEWIS

LONDON — Henry A. Kissinger's unique place in world politics was indicated plainly enough by the British treatment of his resignation threat. It made banner headlines even in the tabloids. The Guardian doubtless reflected informed opinion when it said his departure would be "a sad day."

His extraordinary position has its heavy burdens. For months Kissinger has conducted the foreign policy of a great power in the virtual absence of political leadership. He spent exhausting weeks successfully negotiating in one of the most impossible situations on earth, the Middle East. He might well feel, after all that, that the press was sharper than a serpent's tooth to question him again about wiretapping.

But sympathy stops there. Kissinger has had ample glory from his office, and less criticism than many secretaries of state. His threat of resignation was calculated to arouse alarm and support for him, especially in Congress, and it did. But there are questions that will not go away: questions about integrity, civility and respect for the democratic process.

The immediate issue is whether Kissinger was truthful in denying to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that he had "initiated" or "recommended" the wiretapping of 17 White House colleagues and reporters starting in 1969. But it is not just a verbal quibble.

At his confirmation hearings the secretary sought to give the impression that he had had only a remote relationship to that tapping. The committee showed no desire to pursue the matter. But evidence has emerged since then to suggest that he was much more centrally involved in the tapping episode.

In his angry news conference at Salzburg, he said it was a "fact" that "the wiretaps in question were legal." Many legal scholars would disagree. The Supreme Court unanimously rejected the argument that the President has inherent power to use taps against domestic organizations thought to be threatening the country's security. Would the court have found such a power to tap, say, journalists, without express congressional authorization and without court orders?

It is really more a question of decency, of civility, than of law. Kissinger says now that he finds wiretapping "distasteful," but some who observed him firsthand in the White House noticed no great qualms about such surreptitious operations.

Try to imagine the great Republican secretaries of state of the past — Charles Evans Hughes, or Henry Stimson — standing still for the wiretapping of their associates. No one would have dared make such a suggestion to those men. Doubt remains that Kissinger really perceives how nasty it is to initiate or condone spying on one's own colleagues and friends.

When Kissinger complains of being persecuted, of suffering attacks on his honor, it is somewhat reminiscent of President Nixon's seeking sympathy for his "difficult" decision to bomb Hanoi at Christmas, 1972. Sympathy should be saved for the victims. In this case they were honorable public servants and journalists, and their wives and children.

Unlike the President, the secretary of state evidently does have something nagging at his conscience. He has come back to the wiretapping question again and again, not only in the remarkable private performance but in private conversations. How much pain might have been avoided if he had been candid with the Senate in the first place, if he had accepted a share of responsibility for his abuse of power.

The difficulty is that Henry Kissinger may not see any abuse. For the wiretap episode is closely related to his whole view of government power, who should exercise it and how.

What led to this wiretapping was a story disclosing that the United States was secretly bombing Cambodia. Kissinger was furious at the disclosure. And the premise of his fury was that the president of the United States should have power to bomb another country without informing much less consulting Congress or the public.

The view of power fits some systems of government; it worked well for Bismarck up to a point. But as we learned so painfully in Vietnam, the secret manipulation of power does not suit our constitutional democracy.

Henry Kissinger has always wanted to operate alone — to be the lone horseman, as he once put it. Some of his resentment that boiled up in Salzburg may relate not only to the wiretapping issue but to doubts thrown recently on the honor and the effectiveness of his one-man performance in the Vietnam negotiations.

To ask him to accept the restraints and inconveniences of our constitutionalism is to ask a great deal. But there is no alternative. That is what Watergate is all about: The end does not justify the means. Henry Kissinger will still this disturbance only when he accepts that he, like others, must live by the rules.

Sudden Storm

JAMES RESTON

The Emotional Threat

NEW YORK — Henry Kissinger's threat to resign is the silliest thing he has done since he came into the government, and is not really to be taken seriously.

The issue apparently is whether he "directly" initiated the wiretaps on his White House associates, which he denies, or whether somebody else "initiated" them and he went along. This was back in 1969 at the beginning of the first Nixon administration, and it is a fine distinction. Whether he "initiated" the wiretaps or tolerated them in silence is no big deal. Certainly, he knew about them, and this he does not deny.

Maybe it could be argued, on Kissinger's own terms, that he should have resigned then rather than go along with tapping the telephones of his own colleagues, or that he should have explained the issue more explicitly when he came before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for confirmation as secretary of state.

But to threaten to resign now in an emotional news conference in Austria at the start of the President's tour of the Middle East, and just before the really important discussions with the Soviet Union on arms control and trade, and with the Europeans on the future of the Atlantic alliance, is very odd.

What startled and diverted Kissinger from his concentration on the great issues of foreign policy was the news conference he held after his long, painful and successful negotiation of the Syrian-Israeli cease-fire in the Middle East.

Apparently, he expected to be questioned about how this remarkable compromise had been worked out. Instead, he was confronted by questions that had come up while he was away. They were very hard questions. In short, had he not lied about his part in the wiretapping of his aides in the White House?

All last weekend he troubled about these questions. How could the United States, he asked privately, conduct foreign policy if the President was charged with impeachment and the secretary of state was being charged with perjury?

On Sunday last, after reading the charges against him in the New York Times, he considered skipping the Middle Eastern trip with the President. He consulted with his aides in the government and with members of the Congress and the press, who told him he was turning an old controversy into an unnecessary crisis.

Accordingly, he decided to make the trip, but somewhere along the way apparently he concluded, as he had said last Sunday, that this was a question of personal honor that had to be resolved. His news conference in Austria before a traveling White House press corps that had nothing else to report dramatized his threat to resign.

This was obviously the wrong issue, at the wrong time, and in the wrong place, but it illustrates the paradox in Kissinger. He is a highly intelligent and rational man, but he is also deeply sensitive, and he has probably been traveling too far under too much tension.

Also, going back to the original controversy on the wiretaps, he was like so many others in the White House under great pressure from "the other side" of the executive mansion.

When there were leaks to the press and Ehrlichman and Haldeman were demanding that the leaks be stopped, Kissinger himself knew he was suspected as being the source of the leaks. He was not even sure that his own telephones were not being tapped.

Somewhere in this atmosphere of suspicion, somebody "initiated" the wiretapping proposal, and Kissinger, rightly or wrongly, went along, believing that if he didn't, he himself would be accused of the leaks.

The Kissinger threat of resignation is only the latest evidence that everybody in the Nixon White House seems to be deranged or corrupted by the lack of trust in that place.

Even the most intelligent of men do strange things and the Kissinger press conference is stranger than most. There was no great issue about him in the public mind. He was the one practical man, dealing successfully with intractable questions, but now he has made a big issue out of his credibility in the wire-tapping matter and the Congress will have to try to sort it out.

Clarifying Views

Regarding the article on the Girls State gubernatorial candidates in the June 11 Star, I would like to clarify the statement attributed to me about my views on abortion.

I do "feel strongly that abortion should be legal for anyone." However, I am in complete agreement with the Supreme Court ruling that, if performed, it should be within three months of conception, rather than "at any time, not only during the first three months of pregnancy," as stated in the article.

As we are all aware, many factors enter into the extremely personal matter of abortion, including among others, education, religion, finances, social, health and emotional stability, and moral issues and beliefs.

I firmly believe that preventive measures should be taken if a child is unwanted, for whatever reason or reasons. However, if an unwanted pregnancy should occur, it is my personal belief that a woman should have the alternative of abortion rather than completing a full-term, unwanted pregnancy.

The Star can't be serious in its editorial, "Colson Gets Religion." The Rev. Billy G., who recently deserted under fire, spent more time at King Richard's breakfast table than you could shake a cross at, and with no tangible results. In fact, quite the opposite, Graham's constant presence seemed to invoke a deterioration of stately matters.

The senator, Rev. Hughes, having given up one form of mumbo-jumbo for another, will probably do no less for poor Colson. You should recall that Colson was originally "dedicated" to King Richard who was given a much greater mandate in 1972 than the Trinity got at the Council of Nicea in 325.

Let's hope it doesn't spread. Civilized people have been plagued for centuries by superstitious nitwits, and adding a few bad lawyers to the ranks of the clergy could only increase human misery.

World Monetary System Outlined

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agreement was reached Thursday on the outline of a new world monetary system, but the controversial question of providing special aid to developing nations was postponed until February, 1975.

A deadlock on the aid question threatened to block the monetary agreement until a group of developing nations agreed to postpone the issue.

The decision, reached by the International Monetary Fund Committee of 20, still must be approved by the full IMF. Before the final communique was released it was known that the committee agreed to the following:

—A system of managed floating of exchange rates, which would allow currencies of different countries to fluctuate in value within certain guidelines.

—Fixing of the Special Drawing Right (SDR) as a replacement for gold as the basic international unit of value.

—An agreement in principle that countries with difficult financial problems — especially resulting from the high cost of world oil — may use gold as collateral for borrowing at prices above the official gold price of $42 an ounce.

—Establishment of a new IMF council of ministers to continue monetary reform.

The new system would replace the old system of fixed exchange rates that collapsed nearly three years ago. Some of the features, such as the managed floating exchange rates, are already informally in practice.

The exchange system could have a long-range effect on the value of nations' products, but the immediate impact on the United States would probably be small.

However, the system is not the complete new reform system that was hoped-for when the Committee of 20 started work two years ago. Those plans were interrupted by worldwide inflation and the oil price increases.

But the new system will probably endure until world economic conditions are more stable.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon told newsmen: "I'm satisfied with the entire package."

Debt Bill Vehicle For Big Tax Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee approved a debt ceiling increase bill Thursday to serve as a vehicle for a major fight over tax cuts and tax reform on the Senate floor.

The committee agreed on the measure just as it came from the House and in the form asked by the Nixon administration.

It would boost the temporary national debt limit to $495 billion from July 1 through next March 31.

Without such action, the present $475.7 billion ceiling would drop to the permanent $400 billion figure on June 30. The present debt is about $475 billion.

Efforts will be made in the Senate debate, scheduled to begin Monday, to add to the bill a $6.6 billion tax cut amendment as well as numerous tax reform proposals which would increase taxes for various businesses and individuals.

The reform proposals include repeal of the 22 per cent oil and gas depletion allowance.

$295 Billion Ceiling OK'd

Washington (UPI) — The Senate overwhelmingly approved legislation Thursday to put a $295 billion ceiling on federal spending in fiscal 1975. The proposal, offered by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., would cut $10 billion from the administration's budget. The vote was 74 to 12.

The ceiling was attached as a rider to a bill which would increase federal insurance on deposits in banks, saving and loans institutions, and credit unions from $20,000 to $25,000. The vote on final passage was 89 to 0.

The Senate also adopted by voice vote another rider which would prohibit discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status in granting of credit.

Wholesale Increase 1.5%

Washington (UPI) — Higher prices for steel and gasoline pushed the wholesale price index up 1.5% in May, but the rate of increase shows signs of tapering off, the government said Thursday.

The wholesale price index, used by economists to indicate consumer price trends, was 155.0 in May for all commodities, 16.4% above the May index a year ago. The index for industrial commodities rose 2.7%. Prices for farm products and processed foods and feeds dropped 1.3%.

Metals made the largest contribution to the increase in the industrial commodities index. Steel mill products rose 7.9% while price quotes for scrap iron and steel declined.

Gasoline, distillates and other refined petroleum products caused the greater part of the fuels index rise.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said prices were higher in May for manmade fiber textile products, apparel, textile house furnishings, and miscellaneous textile products. Prices also were higher for flatware, floor coverings, and metal household containers.

The only industrial commodity group showing a decline was lumber and wood products, reflecting price drops for plywood and lumber.

Drug Grant Extension Reviewed

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Comprehensive Drug Planning Commission and the Treatment Resources Committee Thursday jointly reviewed but made no recommendations to the Nebraska Commission on Drugs to act on a $23,940 grant application by Full Circle drug treatment and counseling center.

Full Circle requested the grant for second-year continuation funding beginning Sept. 1, as part of a 1974-75 proposed budget of $158,916 from public funds.

The Lincoln Drug Commission and the Treatment Resources Committee are both part of the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs, which subcontracts the Full Circle operation to the Lincoln-Lancaster Drug Projects.

Full Circle funding comes from the City of Lincoln, Region II Crime Commission, Nebraska

Commission on Drugs and Lancaster County. The 1973-74 total is $114,500.

The major stumbling block came in discussion of whether a shared-counselor position should be continued — thus, funded — for Full Circle and the Youth Service System outreach programs.

Full Circle has asked for two additional counselors in its budget proposals. "I need more manpower hours" to run the 24-hour service effectively, said project director Dr. Olga Bom.

James Arnot, Youth Service System executive director, said YSS has applied for funds for a full-time assessment counselor to refer youth who have drug-related or other problems to the appropriate social agency in Lincoln for help.

Arnot said if the Nebraska Commission on Drugs denies the funding, or if the shared-counselor position with Full Circle is discontinued, YSS has enough staff members to continue its outreach services.

Members of both groups questioned whether Full Circle and YSS are duplicating counseling services, but reached no conclusions.

Eric McMasters, Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs assistant director, said an evaluation of Full Circle revealed a need for expansion, including data collection for future assessments and funding.

But because of the current caseload, he said, "it's too much to ask with the present staffing." Dr. Bom agreed.

She said that although the shared counselor is performing according to the job description, the position "is not being most effectively used."

"We have felt," Arnot said, "that the present position has been fairly effective," for YSS. He explained that the YSS outreach program handles far fewer hard drug users than Full Circle serves, suggesting that the two programs are not duplicative.

The Nebraska Commission on Drugs grant for the YSS counselor expires on Oct. 1.

Committee member Larry Frohm questioned whether Full Circle should attempt to "be all things" to drug abusers of varying degrees, indicating a possible need for the YSS outreach service to supplement Full Circle.

Acting chairman Allen Bennett said, "It seems occasionally our administrative games get in the way of the service itself." He asked the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs staff to identify the needs for counselors and present recommendations at another meeting set for noon July 25 in the Lincoln Center Building.

The two groups could not take action Thursday because all but four members had departed before the discussion ended.

More Housing Units Need Agreed

Although Nebraska has a "rather high" percentage of public housing units per person, the need for more units remains, a panel of housing specialists agreed Thursday night.

The panel was part of a special phone-in program on "The Grand Generation," a Nebraska Educational Television Network series. Panelists answered callers' questions on housing for the elderly during the half-hour show.

Sixty-three of the 93 Nebraska counties have some form of public housing for the elderly, according to Doris Kunkle, housing management specialist from the Nebraska Department of Economic Development.

However, an additional 15,273-17,081 senior citizen public housing units are needed in the state, a report by the Nebraska Commission on Aging found, said Joseph Gaida, the commission's executive director.

James Guest, director of tenant relations for the Omaha Housing Authority, said one obstacle to the construction of those units is a "housing moratorium imposed by the (federal) administration" in January 1973.

But, said Gaida, "There's more to housing of the elderly than just public housing." He cited home handyman and homemaker services as programs which are trying to help the elderly who choose to stay in their own homes.

Other questions the panel answered dealt with homestead tax exemption laws, rural rental housing, eligibility for subsidized housing, custodial services in public housing and the problems of having elderly parents live with their children.

Also on the panel was John Robbins, state liaison officer of the Nebraska Commission on Aging. Dorothy Switzer, host of "The Grand Generation," was moderator.

Fund Drive Is Begun For Family Of Nields

Omaha (AP)—A fund-raising drive for the family of slain Omaha Police Patrolman Paul Nields was begun Thursday as four law enforcement organizations donated or pledged $2,200.

Patrolman Virgil Rohlf, president of the Omaha Police Union, said that although the drive has no set goal, he hopes that more than $100,000 will be raised.

The union donated $500, as did the Omaha chapter of the Fraternal Order of Police. The Omaha Police Welfare and Benefit Association pledged $1,000 and the Douglas County Sheriffs Employees Association contributed $200. All the organizations had representatives at a news conference at City Hall.

Nields was killed a week ago in a four-hour shootout with a gunman at a Near North Side rooming house. Nields is survived by his widow, Kathleen, and two sons, Paul 6, and Patrick 2.

Complaint To Be Filed To Get Federal Inquiry

Omaha (UPI) — State Sen. Ernest Chambers said Thursday he will file a complaint in an effort to get a federal inquiry into recent shootings on Omaha's near north side.

Chambers said he sought the federal inquiry because to ask Douglas County authorities to act would be like "asking John Mitchell to investigate President Nixon..." an exercise in futility.

Chambers said he particularly was interested in probing the fatal shooting of Henry Holmes last weekend.

Chambers met with U.S. Dist. Atty. William Schaphorst to discuss procedures for a federal inquiry.

He said Schaphorst told him the federal government is hesitant to intervene in local matters. But he said he was told if there does not appear to be a complete fact-finding local investigation, the federal government will step in when invited to do so.

2 Lincoln Men Held For Savings Certificate Theft

Police said two Lincoln men were arrested Thursday at the First National Bank as they were attempting to cash a $5,000 savings certificate belonging to an 82-year-old Lincoln woman.

Police said the savings certificate was one of five stolen from the woman's home. Capt.

Lowell Sellmeyer said the other four certificates, totaling $7,000, have also been recovered.

Sellmeyer said bank personnel became suspicious when the men tried to cash the certificate and called police.

The men, aged 35 and 27, were jailed and will be charged in court on Friday, Sellmeyer said.

Drug Grant Extension Reviewed

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Comprehensive Drug Planning Commission and the Treatment Resources Committee Thursday jointly reviewed but made no recommendations to the Nebraska Commission on Drugs to act on a $23,940 grant application by Full Circle drug treatment and counseling center.

Full Circle requested the grant for second-year continuation funding beginning Sept. 1, as part of a 1974-75 proposed budget of $158,916 from public funds.

The Lincoln Drug Commission and the Treatment Resources Committee are both part of the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs, which subcontract the Full Circle operation to the Lincoln-Lancaster Drug Projects.

Full Circle funding comes from the City of Lincoln, Region II Crime Commission, Nebraska

Commission on Drugs and Lancaster County. The 1973-74 total is $114,500.

The major stumbling block came in discussion of whether a shared-counselor position should be continued — thus, funded — for Full Circle and the Youth Service System outreach programs.

Full Circle has asked for two additional counselors in its budget proposals. "I need more manpower hours" to run the 24-hour service effectively, said project director Dr. Olga Bom.

James Arnot, Youth Service System executive director, said YSS has applied for funds for a full-time assessment counselor to refer youth who have drug-related or other problems to the appropriate social agency in Lincoln for help.

Arnot said if the Nebraska Commission on Drugs denies the funding, or if the shared-counselor position with Full Circle is discontinued, YSS has enough staff members to continue its outreach services.

Members of both groups questioned whether Full Circle and YSS are duplicating counseling services, but reached no conclusions.

Eric McMasters, Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs assistant director, said an evaluation of Full Circle revealed a need for expansion, including data collection for future assessments and funding.

But because of the current caseload, he said, "it's too much to ask with the present staffing." Dr. Bom agreed.

She said that although the shared counselor is performing according to the job description, the position "is not being most effectively used."

"We have felt," Arnot said, "that the present position has been fairly effective," for YSS. He explained that the YSS outreach program handles far fewer hard drug users than Full Circle serves, suggesting that the two programs are not duplicative.

The Nebraska Commission on Drugs grant for the YSS counselor expires on Oct. 1.

Committee member Larry Frohm questioned whether Full Circle should attempt to "be all things" to drug abusers of varying degrees, indicating a possible need for the YSS outreach service to supplement Full Circle.

Acting chairman Allen Bennett said, "It seems occasionally our administrative games get in the way of the service itself." He asked the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs staff to identify the needs for counselors and present recommendations at another meeting set for noon July 25 in the Lincoln Center Building.

The two groups could not take action Thursday because all but four members had departed before the discussion ended.

More Housing Units Need Agreed

Although Nebraska has a "rather high" percentage of public housing units per person, the need for more units remains, a panel of housing specialists agreed Thursday night.

The panel was part of a special phone-in program on "The Grand Generation," a Nebraska Educational Television Network series. Panelists answered callers' questions on housing for the elderly during the half-hour show.

Sixty-three of the 93 Nebraska counties have some form of public housing for the elderly, according to Doris Kunkle, housing management specialist from the Nebraska Department of Economic Development.

However, an additional 15,273-17,081 senior citizen public housing units are needed in the state, a report by the Nebraska Commission on Aging found, said Joseph Gaida, the commission's executive director.

James Guest, director of tenant relations for the Omaha Housing Authority, said one obstacle to the construction of those units is a "housing moratorium imposed by the (federal) administration" in January 1973.

But, said Gaida, "There's more to housing of the elderly than just public housing." He cited home handyman and homemaker services as programs which are trying to help the elderly who choose to stay in their own homes.

Other questions the panel answered dealt with homestead tax exemption laws, rural rental housing, eligibility for subsidized housing, custodial services in public housing and the problems of having elderly parents live with their children.

Also on the panel was John Robbins, state liaison officer of the Nebraska Commission on Aging. Dorothy Switzer, host of "The Grand Generation," was moderator.

Motorcycle enthusiasts may have three new areas set aside for them under a proposal being eyed by the Parks and Recreation Board.

Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith said Thursday that three areas are under consideration as motorcycle trail areas, including the old landfill north of Oak Lake, across from Sawyer-Snell Park and east of 70th across from Homes Lake.

The department hopes the creation of the trails, will cut down on vandalism caused by cyclists riding through other city parks.

Sod Torn Up

Last month cyclists tore up the freshly laid sod at Mahoney Park in northeast Lincoln, Smith said.

The department is attempting to iron out several legal wrinkles to allow motorcyclists to ride their bikes on city property.

Smith noted that a city ordinance forbids people under 16 from operating motor vehicles on public property, while another ordinance prohibits licensed drivers from operating vehicles on public property located off authorized roadways.

Smith said if the legal problems can be overcome, he would like to set aside as area for young cyclists from 9 to 16 years of age.

In other business the board re-elected Clancy Woolman to serve as chairman for another year.

The board elected Ralph Giebelhaus vice chairman, succeeding veteran board member Max Roper.

Work Proceeding

Smith also reported work is proceeding to open up an area of Holmes Lake for public swimming. Plans call for an area to be roped off and a lifeguard to be on duty.

Smith said, however, that people will be swimming "at their own risk."

Board member John Prasch, Superintendent of Schools, reported that the Board of Education will be considering the Park Board's recommendation to construct a swimming pool at the Meadowlane School.

Prasch said a survey of Meadowlane parents probably will be made to make sure the parents favor the proposal.

And if the parents are favorable, Prasch said, "I'm quite sure the School Board will approve it."

It Takes Two Years
Smith noted that if the School

Board and City Council approve the project, it may take up to two years before the pool can open its doors to swimmers. He said it generally takes two years from design stage to completion of construction.

In other business Smith reminded the board that there are two rental picnic shelters available to the public. One shelter is located in Van Dorn Park and the other is located at Antelope Park.

KFOR radio spokesman Vincent Collura also presented the department an award for the planting of trees along city streets.

The monthly park ranger report shows that the rangers made 39 arrests in city parks during April and 57 in May. Reportable vandalism during April was $591, while during May there was only $85 listed as reportable damage resulting from vandalism.

London (AP) — Alcan Aluminum Ltd. said Thursday work is to start immediately on developing a major bauxite mining operation at the Trombetas reserves in the Amazon River Basin of Brazil.

Alcan said the project is being undertaken by a consortium of eight firms including Alcan and Spain's Instituto Nacional de Industria.

Alcan said the project has the potential of becoming one of the largest bauxite mining operations in the world. Bauxite is a basic source of aluminum.

It said the project, in its initial stage, provides for the export of .35 million metric tons of bauxite a year.

City Council Will Eye Proposal For Bicycle Operating License

Lincoln bicyclists may have to hold onto something else besides their handlebars — an operating license — under a proposal to be considered by city lawmakers in a few weeks.

A proposed ordinance establishing licensing requirements for the operation of bicycles on city streets will be placed on first reading before the City Council Monday. A public hearing is scheduled for June 24.

The ordinance, proposed by the Mayor's Bicycle Committee and requested by Councilwoman Helen Boosalis, is an attempt to make bicycle riders more knowledgeable about traffic rules and increase a cyclist's safety on city streets.

14 Is Minimum Age

Any riders who would operate on arterial streets or other streets designated by the traffic engineer, would be required to obtain a license. The minimum age is 14.

The bicyclists would obtain a license by taking a test administered by a bicycle license examiner.

The bicyclist then must meet the vision and physical requirements established with the aid of the police department and traffic engineer.

The ordinance would make it unlawful for any person to ride a bike on an arterial or other designated street without a license.

Can Be Revoked

The license can be revoked whenever the rider accumulates three convictions for violations within one year. The license could be revoked by the license examiner for a period of six months.

The license would expire on the rider's birthday in the first year after issuance, in which his or her age is divisible by four.

The license fee has not yet been set.

Proceeds would help defray costs to administer the program. Any additional income would be deposited in the city's general fund.

Confab Set On Complex Plan

Lincoln Housing Authority Board members signaled their intent Thursday to meet next week with east Lincoln residents to explain plans to build a 100-unit complex for elderly persons near St. Elizabeth Hospital.

The board officially will present the plans to the City-County Planning Commission during a public hearing Wednesday.

Plans call for construction of a four-story structure on a three-acre tract, located west of 70th and east of Taylor Park.

Housing Authority members said they have been contacted by some residents who are opposing the plan.

In other business the authority authorized the submission of an application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for federal funds to provide additional units under the private leased housing program.

A recently completed housing survey showed a need for 2,438 additional low income units in Lincoln.

The application does not state the number of new dwelling units proposed, since the authority is hoping to obtain as many as possible under a new section of the United States Housing Act.

The license would expire on the rider's birthday in the first year after issuance, in which his or her age is divisible by four.

The license fee has not yet been set.

Confab Set On Complex Plan

Lincoln Housing Authority Board members signaled their intent Thursday to meet next week with east Lincoln residents to explain plans to build a 100-unit complex for elderly persons near St. Elizabeth Hospital.

The board officially will present the plans to the City-County Planning Commission during a public hearing Wednesday.

Plans call for construction of a four-story structure on a three-acre tract, located west of 70th and east of Taylor Park.

Housing Authority members said they have been contacted by some residents who are opposing the plan.

In other business the authority authorized the submission of an application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for federal funds to provide additional units under the private leased housing program.

A recently completed housing survey showed a need for 2,438 additional low income units in Lincoln.

The application does not state the number of new dwelling units proposed, since the authority is hoping to obtain as many as possible under a new section of the United States Housing Act.

Mr. Meat Smoker grill. when your wife doesn't want to cook

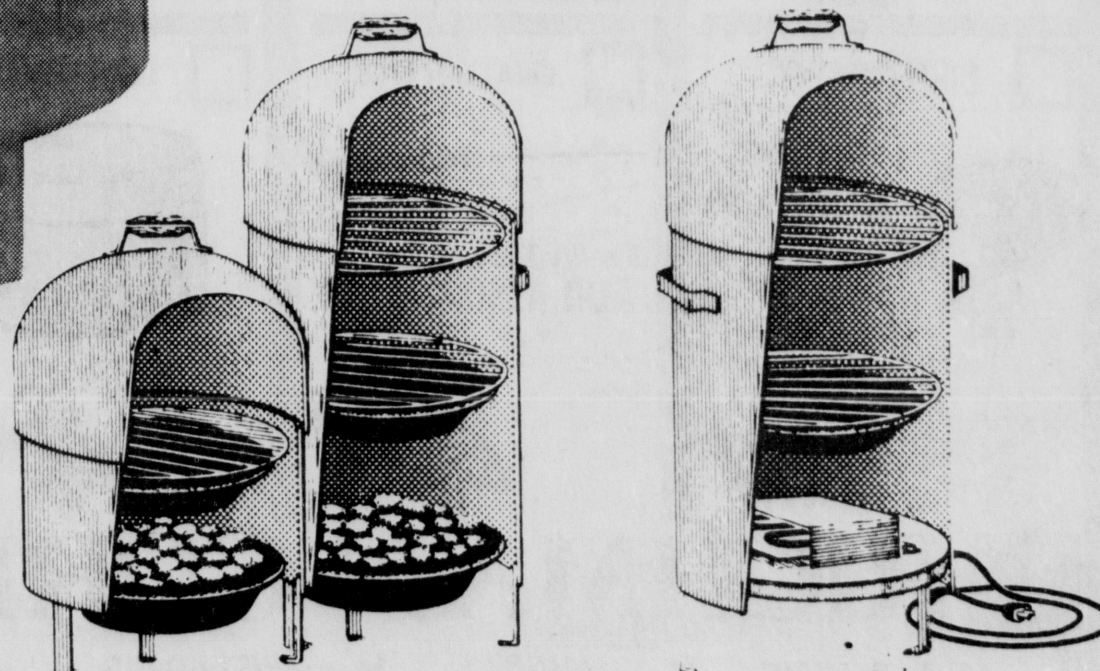

Just in time for Father's Day! The Mr. Meat Smoker grill, a no fuss, goof-proof grill that ends burning, basting, tending and turning. Grill incorporates a water pan under the grill, but above the coals, to give the meat a delicious steam/smoke flavor. Steam cooking means you don't have to keep turning the meat, no more basting, and almost no chance of burning the meat! Meat cooks slowly in its own juices, retaining full flavor. Grill features steel body and dome, with porcelain enamel pans. Comes in both single and double size.

There's Double Trouble At The Zoo Goat Island

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

We're the two little nanny goats!
We're the two little billy goats!
We're the goats of Goat Island!

Yes, Goat Island at the Lincoln Children's Zoo has four new residents — and more are expected any day now.

They are boy-girl, boy-girl twins of the nanny Pygmy Cameroon goats, a pure strain of miniature goats from the Cameroon Islands off the African coast.

And miniature they are. The gray, bearded adults grow little more than 20 inches in height (to the shoulder).

The first set of twins arrived less than three weeks ago — the second just Sunday evening.

But there were problems aplenty before the arrival of the second pair. The older kids (baby goats) kept being kidnapped by their aunts. You see, nanny goats are very possessive. They all are very good mothers and the kidless nannies were quite jealous of the first mother's offspring.

Now that they all have established a family lineage, the older babies scramble up Goat Bridge, right up to their mother for a sip or two of milk. But they soon will be free to roam the zoo and make friends on their own.

Cameroon goats are too small to contribute much in the form of either milk or meat, but they have been domesticated for just such purposes.

They also are the only mammals native to the Cameroon Islands, inhabiting that area with only birds and reptiles. As yet, there is no explanation for how they got there.

Like cows and sheep, goats are ruminants, meaning they have multiple stomachs — and frequently re-chew their food. This process is called "chewing their cud."

They eat just about anything, but have a special liking for what they consider exotic. They will gladly pick paper out of people's hands and chew it. They also like the food pellets and popcorn given them by their visitors. But, contrary to popular opinion, they do not have a fondness for tin cans.

In fact, they are very finicky eaters. They are picky about the type and condition of their food. If one little morsel of goat food touches the ground, they just turn up their noses at it.

Grazing animals that they are, the Cameroon goats are very sure-footed — which they must be to roam the natural terrain of their native land. And their hooves contribute to that sure-footedness. The inner and outer edges of their hooves are a hard, horny material, giving them added holding power; the insides of each hoof are soft for a cushion effect.

Living in goat island at the Children's Zoo, the Cameroon goats get a lot of experience at climbing and frequenting precarious places — such as Goat Walk, which extends over Ralph and Ralphina Emu's home.

And they just love to play "king of the mountain" even on that narrow bridge.

But there is one certain billy goat who just may not try that game again — on the bridge at least.

You see, he and another goat were bumping heads (for recreation) on the bridge when he was knocked off. He landed on his back and his horns dug into the soil. No matter how hard he tried, he could not free himself. He bleated and bleated until help finally came to free him!

Although those "king of the mountain" games usually are just for fun, they also occasionally play a part in the establishment of the Cameroon goats' "pecking order," a formal social structure usually determined by either strength or age.

The buck (male) or the oldest nanny most commonly is on the top of this social order although others may take over by challenging the leader who makes many social rulings — even determining who eats first.

Frieda Kauffman Wins Chicken Recipe Contest

Miss Frieda Kaufman "loves to experiment with food."

Since last fall, she has been devising a recipe, using a variety of ingredients.

By the process of elimination, she came up with her "Chicken Thighs Belgian."

And that recipe was named state champion in the National Chicken Cooking Contest, sponsored by the National Broiler Council and the makers of Ac-cent and Mazola Corn Oil.

With the award, Miss Kaufman's winnings include a $100 cash prize and trophy. And she will compete in the national cook-off in Winston-Salem, N. Car., July 25.

Her recipe produces a "meal in a dish," with a tasty blend of Belgian endive or cucumbers, onions, chicken thighs and potatoes, all baked in a tangy broth.

Using "first one vegetable, then another," the retired secretary for the assistant chief engineer for the Burlington Railroad finally came up with her award-winning "combination of foods."

Here's her recipe:
Chicken Thighs Belgian
8-10 chicken thighs
1 t. Ac-cent
1/4 c. corn oil

3 large onions, peeled and sliced

2-4 heads Belgian endive, trimmed, and cut lengthwise into thirds (3-4 cucumbers may be substituted when endive is not available)

4 potatoes, pared and sliced

1 1/2 t. salt

1/4 t. pepper

Juice of 2 lemons

1 1/2-2 c. chicken broth or water

Sprinkle Ac-cent on chicken.

Heat corn oil in flameproof casserole or skillet over medium heat. Add chicken and brown on all sides, turning as needed. Top browned chicken with onion slices, then endive (or cucumbers), then potato slices.

Season with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Add broth or water. Bring to a boil. Remove from heat; cover with buttered waxed paper. Cover; bake in 350-degree oven 45 minutes or until done.

Remove chicken and vegetables to a warm platter; keep warm. Place skillet or casserole on heat, bring liquid to a boil and simmer until reduced by one-third. Spoon some of the liquid over chicken; place remainder in serving bowl. Garnish platter with lemon sections and parsley. Makes 4 servings.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆
Forecast For Friday

Like their signs — past and present: Billy Rose, Virgo, Jack Dempsey, Cancer, Marilyn Monroe, Gemini, Adous Huxley, Leo, Gertrude Stein, Aquarius, Perry Como, Taurus, Bette Davis, Aires, Dwight Eisenhower, Libra, Burt Lancaster, Scorpio, Eric Sevareid, Sagittarius, Mary Tyler Moore, Capricorn, George Plimpton, Pisces. The signs and the people — comparisons have been under way for thousands of years. That is a part of astrology, the Sun signs. There is more, of course — much more. But picking persons who are "like their signs" is as good a starting point as any. How is your list coming along?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You may feel restricted. This could be proverbial blessing in disguise. Cycle is high, but money factors connected with contract, agreement require review. Confide in partner, mate. Home situation is erratic. Build greater degree of confidence by making picture of goodwill.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Hold off on final judgment. You could be victim of wishful thinking. Face facts as they exist. Express doubts, even fears — but attempt to cover up, to gloss over essentials. Retrace steps if necessary. Pisces, Virgo persons could be in picture. Look behind scenes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Argument centering around finances, budget can be constructive — if you control temptation to hurt one you love. Be mature. Listen and learn. Hold tight to budget resolutions. Explain reasons, potential and leave room for reasonable concession.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Study Gemini message for valid hint. Accept added responsibility. Finish assignment. Be receptive toward one who confides in you. Don't cast first stone. Aries, Libra persons may figure in important ways. Possible promotion is featured.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your natural abilities are rewarded. You are able to strike chord of creativity, originality. New contracts are featured. You could receive plaque of recognition from club, group, organization. Some ideas, previously considered revolutionary, are now accepted in mainstream.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Defer to wishes of one who has taken inventory. Some has good view of financial picture. Some of your hopes, wishes can be fulfilled — if you display self-discipline. Means be grown-up. Don't request something for nothing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Progress is made slowly. Impatient associate is sincere but probably misinformed. Heed your own counsel. Avoid making sensational claims. Be flexible. Play waiting game. Gather resources. Evaluate and test. Defer direct confrontations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Some around you seem argumentative — for what reason is a puzzle. Don't compound error. You do have allies behind the scenes. You may seem to be standing alone — but this is not true. Keep the faith. You will be vindicated.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Emotions may be complex; special relationships are subject to confusion. Change is necessary. Status quo will not suffice. Gemini individual stimulates you via creative opposition. Member of opposite sex poses challenge.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Adjustment in home area is indicated. Remodel, rebuild, seek greater harmony with family members. If married, mate has pressing problem. Be mature, understanding — and patient. If single, you face dilemma regarding contract, agreement, commitment. Be diplomatic for best results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't be awed by tradition. You have right — perhaps duty — to revise, streamline and sweep aside debris. Pisces, Virgo persons could play significant roles. Relatives may try to draw you into foolish dispute.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Cash flow may be temporarily curtailed. Ultimately, this works to your advantage. Draw line. Refuse to be extravagant. Young persons are persuasive but misinformed. Know it and heed your own counsel. Don't jump at initial offer.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY You are creative, have talent for using written word, possess intellectual curiosity, are restless and attractive to opposite sex. March and December are your two most significant months of 1974. Gemini and Virgo persons play important roles in your life. You travel, report, take photographs and love to read.

Save That Memorabilia — Auxiliary Would Like it

You say your attic, basement or garage are cluttered with old toys and dolls, comic books, crocks, pictures and much, much more?

And that you really don't want to keep the "memorabilia" but hate the thought of throwing it away?

Well, the St. Elizabeth Hospital Auxiliary is coming to the rescue.

The auxiliary is collecting antiques and collectibles for its new consignment booth at the Holly Festival, to be held this year in early October.

All the items will be sold on a consignment basis at the festival, one of Lincoln's major fund-raising events of the year.

Among the items which will be readily collected by auxiliary members — at the ring of the phone — are old quilts, toys, comic books, pictures, pottery, depression glass, American Indian baskets, jewelry, dolls, miniatures, crocks and jugs — just about anything you want to get rid of.

The auxiliary's pick up committee, charged with collecting the antiques and other items for the Holly Festival booth, will be functioning through August.

To arrange to have consignment items picked up, contact Mrs. Robert Haag, committee chairman, at 489-4164.

Questions concerning the sale of items may be referred to Mrs. Charles F. Craft of Roca at 794-5882.

DEAR ABBY I think my new husband (age 39) has more than a fatherly interest in my daughter. Lisa is 22. I am 45, but I look about 35.

It all started when I invited Lisa to come along on our honeymoon to make her feel like "one of the family." She is my only child and we've always been very close. She has been away at college, but now that she's graduated she is home, living with us.

Shortly after our honeymoon trip, my husband started taking Lisa out for lunch and buying her new clothes. Then I noticed that Lisa had lost interest in friends her own age. Maybe it's just my imagination, but I've seen some of the looks that have passed between them and I think something is going on.

I don't want to make a fool of myself, but I'd like to clear the air. I don't even know how to bring up the subject. Should I question her? Or him? What if all of this is just in my mind?

NOT SURE

DEAR NOT: If you're not sure, don't question anybody. Keep your eyes open. If there is something to your suspicions, it will come out. In the meantime, you might ask Lisa if she ever considered having her own pad. Three's a crowd.

DEAR ABBY: This will probably throw you. My husband is the best! He's a good provider, we have a nice home, he loves our kids, and spends his time and money on the house and family. The problem is MY frustrations. Our sexual relationship has dwindled to practically nothing.

He gives me the usual goodbye and hello kisses, but they're completely without feeling. He never really holds me, or caresses me. He kisses me like I was his sister.

Should the honeymoon be over after 12 years? Maybe I'm oversexed, but I don't think so. I'd be happy with a once-a-week treat, but it doesn't happen. I'm no sex-bomb, so don't suggest I meet him at the door in a see-through apron.

I mentioned a counselor once, but he couldn't understand why he needed one. Sometimes I'm so frustrated I could scream. I don't want to hurt his masculine ego. Must I learn to live with this, or is there a solution?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Don't worry about hurting his masculine ego. Tell him what you've told me. But also ask him if he thinks you're doing your part in the "treat" department.

DEAR ABBY: I met a man four months ago and I fell — but hard. He guessed my age to be "about 65," but I am 72. I guessed his age to be "about 70," but I really don't know how old he is. He acts crazy about me and is giving me a rush. There are a lot of younger women after him and I am afraid if I tell him my right age. I will lose him.

If we should ever go for a marriage license do I have to give my right age? Please help me, Abby. I want this man. He makes me feel like sweet 16.

IN LOVE IN L.A.

DEAR IN: Forget about age. Yours and his. And don't mention it unless he does. Then it's truth and consequences.

DEAR ABBY: I've heard of compulsive gamblers, compulsive talkers and compulsive overeaters, but is there such a thing as a compulsive worker? I think I'm one.

LOVE TO WORK

DEAR LOVES: To borrow a phrase from the philosophical James B. Goetz, "It's only work

if you'd rather be doing something else."

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating this nice young man exclusively for seven months. He didn't ask me to go steady. I just don't care to go with anyone else. He doesn't go with anyone else either, so I guess you'd say we are going steady.

My problem is my mother. She has told me that she doesn't want me to date him anymore. Just like that! The reason: He's too short! (He's exactly my height — 5 foot 6.)

I'm not a child. I'm 20 years old, but I live at home with my parents. I'd move out, but they need the money I pay for my room and board.

Wedding Rules Change

The Lincoln Star Women's News Department has a file full of wedding and engagement pictures just waiting to be picked up. Couples whose engagement or wedding picture appeared during the past six months may pick up those pictures before June 28. After that date all pictures will be destroyed.

The new picture policy is a part of the recent changes in wedding and engagement policies which began Monday. The new policy includes the following changes:

— All engagement and wedding notices will appear in the Sunday Journal and Star, and no announcements will be carried in the daily editions of The Lincoln Star.

— One picture will be used during the engagement-wedding sequence. The couple may choose to use a picture either at the time of the engagement announcement or the wedding.

— Material should be in the Star office one week prior to the engagement announcement or wedding event.

— No picture will be used if received after the wedding has taken place.

— Wedding news received after the event will be shortened and no stories will be run on weddings received more than one month after the event.

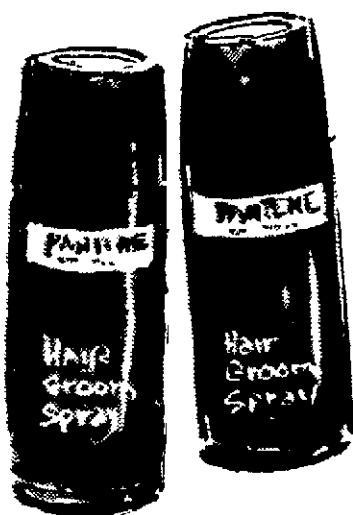

— No pictures will be returned.

There's Double Trouble At The Zoo Goat Island

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

We're the two little nanny goats!
We're the two little billy goats!
We're the goats of Goat Island!

Yes, Goat Island at the Lincoln Children's Zoo has four new residents — and more are expected any day now.

They are boy-girl, boy-girl twins of the nan-ny Pygmy Cameroon goats, a pure strain of miniature goats from the Cameroon Islands off the African coast.

And miniature they are. The gray, bearded adults grow little more than 20 inches in height (to the shoulder).

The first set of twins arrived less than three weeks ago — the second just Sunday evening.

But there were problems aplenty before the arrival of the second pair. The older kids (baby goats) kept being kidnapped by their aunts. You see, nanny goats are very possessive. They all are very good mothers and the kidless nannies were quite jealous of the first mother's offspring.

Now that they all have established a family lineage, the older babies scramble up Goat Bridge, right up to their mother for a sip or two of milk. But they soon will be free to roam the zoo and make friends on their own.

Cameroon goats are too small to contribute much in the form of either milk or meat, but they have been domesticated for just such purposes.

They also are the only mammals native to the Cameroon Islands, inhabiting that area with only birds and reptiles. As yet, there is no explanation for how they got there.

Like cows and sheep, goats are ruminants, meaning they have multiple stomachs — and frequently re-chew their food. This process is called "chewing their cud."

They eat just about anything, but have a special liking for what they consider exotic. They will gladly pick paper out of people's hands and chew it. They also like the food pellets and popcorn given them by their visitors. But, contrary to popular opinion, they do not have a fondness for tin cans.

In fact, they are very finicky eaters. They are picky about the type and condition of their food. If one little morsel of goat food touches the ground, they just turn up their noses at it.

Grazing animals that they are, the Cameroon goats are very sure-footed — which they must be to roam the natural terrain of their native land. And their hooves contribute to that sure-footedness. The inner and outer edges of their hooves are a hard, horny material, giving them added holding power; the insides of each hoof are soft for a cushion effect.

Living in goat island at the Children's Zoo, the Cameroon goats get a lot of experience at climbing and frequenting precarious places — such as Goat Walk, which extends over Ralph and Ralphina Emu's home.

And they just love to play "king of the mountain" even on that narrow bridge.

But there is one certain billy goat who just may not try that game again — on the bridge at least.

You see, he and another goat were bumping heads (for recreation) on the bridge when he was knocked off. He landed on his back and his horns dug into the soil. No matter how hard he tried, he could not free himself. He bleated and bleated until help finally came to free him!

Although those "king of the mountain" games usually are just for fun, they also occasionally play a part in the establishment of the Cameroon goats' "pecking order," a formal social structure usually determined by either strength or age.

The buck (male) or the oldest nanny most commonly is on the top of this social order although others may take over by challenging the leader who makes many social rulings — even determining who eats first.

Frieda Kauffman Wins Chicken Recipe Contest

Miss Frieda Kaufman "loves to experiment with food."

Since last fall, she has been devising a recipe, using a variety of ingredients.

By the process of elimination, she came up with her "Chicken Thighs Belgian."

And that recipe was named state champion in the National Chicken Cooking Contest, sponsored by the National Broiler Council and the makers of Ac-cent and Mazola Corn Oil.

With the award, Miss Kaufman's winnings include a $100 cash prize and trophy. And she will compete in the national cook-off in Winston-Salem, N. Car., July 25.

Her recipe produces a "meal in a dish," with a tasty blend of Belgian endive or cucumbers, onions, chicken thighs and potatoes, all baked in a tangy broth.

Using "first one vegetable, then another," the retired secretary for the assistant chief engineer for the Burlington Railroad finally came up with her award-winning "combination of foods."

Here's her recipe:
Chicken Thighs Belgian
8-10 chicken thighs
1 t. Ac-cent
¼ c. corn oil

3 large onions, peeled and sliced

2-4 heads Belgian endive, trimmed, and cut lengthwise into thirds (3-4 cucumbers may be substituted when endive is not available)

4 potatoes, pared and sliced 1½ t. salt

¼ t. pepper

Juice of 2 lemons

1½-2 c. chicken broth or water

Sprinkle Ac-cent on chicken. Heat corn oil in flameproof casserole or skillet over medium heat. Add chicken and brown on all sides, turning as needed. Top browned chicken with onion slices, then endive (or cucumbers), then potato slices. Season with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Add broth or water. Bring to a boil. Remove from heat; cover with buttered waxed paper. Cover; bake in 350-degree oven 45 minutes or until done.

Extension Council Elects Officers

Remove chicken and vegetables to a warm platter; keep warm. Place skillet or casserole on heat, bring liquid to a boil and simmer until reduced by one-third. Spoon some of the liquid over chicken; place remainder in serving bowl. Garnish platter with lemon sections and parsley. Makes 4 servings.

New district directors are Mrs. Floyd Barrett of Kimball, Mrs. Darald Merryman of Schickley, Mrs. Joseph Plasek of David City and Mrs. Dee Schmidt of Loup City.

They Eat Smaller Meals

Older people, as well as children, frequently need "snacks" — or more frequent small "meals", whichever they may be called — because they no longer tolerate three large meals a day as well as they do five or six smaller ones. They're also more apt to get the nutrients they need if they eat more frequently.

Abortion Ruling's Effect On NU Undetermined

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

University of Nebraska Medical Center Chancellor Robert Sparks said Thursday he doesn't know yet what effect a Federal District Court ruling will have on abortion policies at UNMC.

"I haven't really read the decision," Dr. Sparks said. Senior U.S. District Judge Richard E. Robinson Wednesday ruled that the NU Board of Regents may start termination proceedings against any full-time faculty member who performs abortions outside university or university-approved facilities.

Sparks said the regents will confer with their attorney, and "I'm sure they'll take some action and comply with the judge's order."

"If they want to contest any part of it, I don't know what that would be," Sparks said.

Drs. Marvin L. Dietrich and G. William Orr filed the lawsuit, submitting that NU restrictions last year on the number of abortions performed by Medical Center staff members infringed upon their rights to practice medicine.

NU contended that the doctors violated the terms of their contracts by performing unauthorized abortions.

"I have not received any reaction from them," Dr. Sparks said of Dietrich and Orr.

According to the court memorandum, Judge Robinson declared, "This court cannot find that the plaintiffs (Orr and Dietrich) are in violation of their contract."

Robinson also found "that the plaintiffs are highly competent and qualified specialists in the field of obstetrics and gynecology with expertise in the area of high risk pregnancy and interuterine transfusion," qualifications "apparently, unique to the State of Nebraska."

The judge added, "Though these plaintiffs have been subjected to a good deal of adverse publicity and reprisal because of their stand on the abortion issue," the evidence shows they "are competent and professional medical practitioners of unimpeached ethics."

The doctors' attorney, Larry Batt of Omaha, told The Star Thursday evening, "I consider the decision a victory," because "it reaffirms the fact that this (abortion) is just another medical procedure."

The NU Regents had limited abortions to 15 per week, but Robinson enjoined the UNMC from setting any limit, while allowing the regents to set a reasonable figure that would ensure adequate teaching.

"I don't know how they (the regents) can set a particular number," Batt said, explaining that there is "no number policy with respect to any other medical procedure."

Batt said Robinson in effect "has reaffirmed the basic Supreme Court decision, saying the state cannot discriminate with respect to medically indistinguishable procedures."

The doctors' request for placement on part-time status, to perform abortions in their own off-campus private clinic, was approved by the regents last July 14, for 90 days.

When Orr and Dietrich requested renewal of the 75% part-time status on Oct. 12, 1973, the regents denied it, replacing them on full-time status.

"At this point in time," Batt said, "this (court) decision has absolutely no effect on the physicians' private facility. It will continue in operation."

Batt said Orr and Dietrich have made no decision to appeal, because of the termination ruling.

The judge also ruled that the Medical Center cannot set up a special program to handle professional fees for abortions, normally paid doctors, under the university Medical Service Plan.

The regents on July 23, 1973, resolved that all income paid full-time Medical Center faculty members from "referred" patients for performing abortions would be placed in a separate account administered by the UNMC Chancellor.

That fund was to be used under the direction of a committee appointed by Sparks and subject to approval of the regents, the memorandum says.

"Nothing was done to establish a special account," Sparks said.

Floridians World's Greatest Kissers

The finalists in the Great World Kissing in Chicago are, in the left panel, Doris and Duane Boudreaux of Houston, Tex., and, on the right, Louise Heath and Vincent Torro of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. When the picture was taken Thursday, the coiffing kissers were in the 93rd hour of competition. Thursday night, after kissing for 114 hours and 1 minute, the Floridians claimed the championship. It was conceded to them when the Boudreaux couple learned their opponents intended to convert the prize — an eight-day, all-expense-paid trip to Acapulco — to cash and donate it to a mother and three children who lost everything when their house burned down.

Band Meets Breakdown, Hot Weather

Portland, Ore. (AP) — A bus breakdown and hot weather hasn't kept the Holdrege High School Band from enjoying its trip from Nebraska to participate in the Rose Festival.

Verle Strallmann, band director, explained that one of the charter buses broke down between Salt Lake City, Utah, and Boise, Idaho, the last day before the band was to arrive in Portland, delaying it five hours.

It arrived Wednesday night. The band played at a shopping center Thursday, as well as participating in the festival's junior parade. It plays at another shopping center Friday.

"It's really hot," said senior Susie Keifer, a 17-year-old flute player with the 97-member band, which marched Thursday morning in the junior parade. "I heard it was raining back home."

It was 87 degrees in Portland and 59 on the coast 100 miles away.

"The kids are enjoying themselves," said Strallmann. "We're taking our box lunches and heading for a look at the ocean this afternoon."

The band will be among those in the grand floral parade Saturday.

Explosion Rocks Gulf Oil Building

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — An explosion rocked the upper floors of the Gulf Oil Corp.'s international headquarters Thursday night, moments after a telephone caller claiming to be from the radical Weather Underground warned that a bomb had been placed.

Police said the blast left the 29th floor "all messed up," and a newsman reported a gaping hole in the ceiling of the 28th floor of the 38-floor building.

There were no reports of injuries and police said there was apparently no fire in the wake of the blast.

It was the second time in two weeks that someone claiming to be from the Weather Underground warned of a bombing minutes before a bomb went off.

On May 31, a bomb damaged the Los Angeles office of the California attorney general. In that case, as in the Pittsburgh explosion, members of the news media were directed to telephone booths where they found letters signed "Weather Underground" and bearing the sign of the radical group — an arrow piercing a rainbow.

But the Los Angeles letters said the bombing was an expression of sympathy with the Symionese Liberation Army, the terrorist kidnappers and converters of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst.

The Pittsburgh letter was eight pages long, addressed mainly to Gulf's alleged "crimes" against peoples around the world.

The Weather Underground splintered off from Students for a Democratic Society, the campus protest group of the 1960s. Once they were known simply as the Weathermen, taken from the 1965 Bob Dylan song "Subterranean Homesick Blues" — "you don't need a weatherman to know which way the wind blows."

After the Los Angeles bombing, FBI agents said the Weather Underground was "a relatively small group, 20 to 30 persons." Their leader is believed to be Bernardine Dohrn, an FBI fugitive since 1970.

Gulf workers who were in the building reported hearing from one to three explosions, but Fire Capt. James Flavin said there was just a single blast.

Flavin was one of seven men who were trapped in an elevator by the blast. They were freed about 40 minutes later. He said the group was going to investigate the bomb threat when the explosion "blew off every elevator door" on the 29th floor.

The woman who telephoned The Associated Press said the bombing was explained in a letter, and she gave directions on finding it.

Save That Memorabilia — Auxiliary Would Like it

You say your attic, basement or garage are cluttered with old toys and dolls, comic books, crocks, pictures and much, much more?

And that you really don't want to keep the "memorabilia" but hate the thought of throwing it away?

Well, the St. Elizabeth Hospital Auxiliary is coming to the rescue.

The auxiliary is collecting antiques and collectibles for its new consignment booth at the Holly Festival, to be held this year in early October.

All the items will be sold on a consignment basis at the festival, one of Lincoln's major fund-raising events of the year.

Among the items which will be readily collected by auxiliary members — at the ring of the phone — are old quilts, toys, comic books, pictures, pottery, depression glass, American Indian baskets, jewelry, dolls, miniatures, crocks and jugs — just about anything you want to get rid of.

The auxiliary's pick up committee, charged with collecting the antiques and other items for the Holly Festival booth, will be functioning through August.

To arrange to have consignment items picked up, contact Mrs. Robert Haag, committee chairman, at 489-4164.

Questions concerning the sale of items may be referred to Mrs. Charles F. Craft of Roca at 794-5882.

Don't Ask — Keep Your Eyes Open

dear

DEAR ABBY I think my new husband (age 39) has more than a fatherly interest in my daughter. Lisa is 22. I am 45, but I look about 35.

It all started when I invited Lisa to come along on our honeymoon to make her feel like "one of the family." She is my only child and we've always been very close. She has been away at college, but now that she's graduated she is home, living with us.

Shortly after our honeymoon trip, my husband started taking Lisa out for lunch and buying her new clothes. Then I noticed that Lisa had lost interest in friends her own age. Maybe it's just my imagination, but I've seen some of the looks that have passed between them and I think something is going on.

I don't want to make a fool of myself, but I'd like to clear the air. I don't even know how to bring up the subject. Should I question her? Or him? What if all of this is just in my mind?

NOT SURE

DEAR NOT: If You're not sure, don't question anybody. Keep your eyes open. If there is something to your suspicions, it will come out. In the meantime, you might ask Lisa if she ever considered having her own pad. Three's a crowd.

DEAR ABBY: This will probably throw you. My husband is the best! He's a good provider, we have a nice home, he loves our kids, and spends his time and money on the house and family. The problem is MY frustrations. Our sexual relationship has dwindled to practically nothing. He gives me the usual goodbye and hello kisses, but they're completely without feeling. He never really holds me, or caresses me. He kisses me like I was his sister.

Should the honeymoon be over after 12 years? Maybe I'm oversexed, but I don't think so. I'd be happy with a once-a-week treat, but it doesn't happen. I'm no sex-bomb, so don't suggest I meet him at the door in a see-through apron.

I mentioned a counselor once, but he couldn't understand why he needed one. Sometimes I'm so frustrated I could scream. I don't want to hurt his masculine ego. Must I learn to live with this, or is there a solution?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Don't worry about hurting his masculine ego. Tell him what you've told me. But also ask him if he thinks you're doing your part in the "treat" department.

DEAR ABBY: I met a man four months ago and I fell — but hard. He guessed my age to be "about 65," but I am 72. I guessed his age to be "about 70," but I really don't know how old he is. He acts crazy about me and is giving me a rush. There are a lot of younger women after him and I am afraid if I tell him my right age. I will lose him.

If we should ever go for a marriage license do I have to give my right age? Please help me, Abby. I want this man. He makes me feel like sweet 16.

IN LOVE IN L.A.

DEAR IN: Forget about age. Yours and his. And don't mention it unless he does. Then it's truth and consequences.

DEAR ABBY: I've heard of compulsive gamblers, compulsive talkers and compulsive overeaters, but is there such a thing as a compulsive worker? I think I'm one.

LOVE TO WORK

DEAR LOVES: To borrow a phrase from the philosophical James B. Goetz, "It's only work

if you'd rather be doing something else."

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating this nice young man exclusively for seven months. He didn't ask me to go steady. I just don't care to go with anyone else. He doesn't go with anyone else either, so I guess you'd say we are going steady.

My problem is my mother. She has told me that she doesn't want me to date him anymore. Just like that! The reason: He's too short! (He's exactly my height — 5 foot 6.)

I'm not a child. I'm 20 years old, but I live at home with my parents; I'd move out, but they need the money I pay for my room and board.

This fellow is an outstanding person, Abby. He's an assistant professor, and although he doesn't make much now, he has a promising future. Besides, he is good to me, and I care for him. I'd appreciate your opinion.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO: Your mother is short — on common sense. Tell her that her objections to the young man are not valid, and that you measure a man from his eyebrows up.

Wedding Rules Change

The Lincoln Star Women's News Department has a file full of wedding and engagement pictures just waiting to be picked up. Couples whose engagement or wedding picture appeared during the past six months may pick up those pictures before June 26. After that date all pictures will be destroyed.

The new picture policy is a part of the recent changes in wedding and engagement policies which began Monday. The new policy includes the following changes:

— All engagement and wedding notices will appear in the Sunday Journal and Star, and no announcements will be carried in the daily editions of The Lincoln Star.

— One picture will be used during the engagement-wedding sequence. The couple may choose to use a picture either at the time of the engagement announcement or the wedding.

— Material should be in the Star office one week prior to the engagement announcement or wedding event.

— No picture will be used if received after the wedding has taken place.

— Wedding news received after the event will be shortened and no stories will be run on weddings received more than one month after the event.

— No pictures will be returned.

Murder Conviction Upheld By High Court

The State Supreme Court Thursday upheld the Douglas County District Court's first degree murder conviction of Charles T. Casper.

Casper was convicted in connection with the death of Joseph Armstrong, whose body was found floating in the Missouri River May 8, 1973.

The specific charge Casper was convicted of was killing while committing another crime — robbery in the case at bar, which is classified as first degree murder. He was sentenced to life.

The man appealed, however, saying the evidence was insufficient to convict him of killing Armstrong.

The court agreed the evidence was primarily circumstantial, but said it was enough.

But Judge Hale McCown disagreed with the majority.

"The evidence, including the defendant's own testimony, es-established the attempted robbery," McCown said. "However, the evidence failed to establish that the defendant had killed the decedent."

In other cases the Supreme Court:

Reversed the decision of the Douglas County District Court to award custody of a minor child to the father, Laurence Howard Fenner, and instead awarded custody to the maternal grandfather, William L. Strickland.

Affirmed a decision by the State Banking Department of issue a charter to Lincoln Bank East for a facility at 6th and O Sts. in Lincoln.

Abortion Ruling's Effect On NU Undetermined

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer
University of Nebraska Medical Center Chancellor Robert Sparks said Thursday he doesn't know yet what effect a Federal District Court ruling will have on abortion policies at UNMC.

"I haven't really read the decision," Dr. Sparks said. Senior U.S. District Judge Richard E. Robinson Wednesday ruled that the NU Board of Regents may start termination proceedings against any full-time faculty member who performs abortions outside university or university-approved facilities. Sparks said the regents will confer with their attorney, and "I'm sure they'll take some action and comply with the judge's order." "If they want to contest any part of it, I don't know what that would be," Sparks said. Drs. Marvin L. Dietrich and G. William Orr filed the lawsuit, submitting that NU restrictions last year on the number of abortions performed by Medical Center staff members infringed upon their rights to practice medicine.

NU contended that the doctors violated the terms of their contracts by performing unauthorized abortions. "I have not received any reaction from them," Dr. Sparks said of Dietrich and Orr. According to the court memorandum, Judge Robinson declared, "This court cannot find that the plaintiffs (Orr and Dietrich) are in violation of their contract." Robinson also found "that the plaintiffs are highly competent and qualified specialists in the field of obstetrics and gynecology with expertise in the area of high risk pregnancy and interuterine transfusion," qualifications "apparently, unique to the State of Nebraska." The judge added, "Though these plaintiffs have been subjected to a good deal of adverse publicity and reprisal because of their stand on the abortion issue," the evidence shows they "are competent and professional medical practitioners of unimpeached ethics." The doctors' attorney, Larry Batt of Omaha, told The Star Thursday evening, "I consider the decision a victory," because "it reaffirms the fact that this (abortion) is just another medical procedure." The NU Regents had limited abortions to 15 per week, but Robinson enjoined the UNMC from setting any limit, while allowing the regents to set a reasonable figure that would ensure adequate teaching. "I don't know how they (the regents) can set a particular number," Batt said, explaining that there is "no number policy with respect to any other medical procedure." Batt said Robinson in effect "has reaffirmed the basic Supreme Court decision, saying the state cannot discriminate with respect to medically indistinguishable procedures." The doctors' request for placement on part-time status, to perform abortions in their own off-campus private clinic, was approved by the regents last July 14, for 90 days. When Orr and Dietrich requested renewal of the 75% part-time status on Oct. 12, 1973, the regents denied it, replacing them on full-time status. "At this point in time," Batt said, "this (court) decision has absolutely no effect on the physicians' private facility. It will continue in operation." Batt said Orr and Dietrich have made no decision to appeal, because of the termination ruling. The judge also ruled that the Medical Center cannot set up a special program to handle professional fees for abortions, normally paid doctors, under the university Medical Service Plan. The regents on July 23, 1973, resolved that all income paid full-time Medical Center faculty members from "referred" patients for performing abortions would be placed in a separate account administered by the UNMC Chancellor. That fund was to be used under the direction of a committee appointed by Sparks and subject to approval of the regents, the memorandum says. "Nothing was done to establish a special account," Sparks said.

Floridians World's Greatest Kissers

The finalists in the Great World Kissing in Chicago are, in the left panel, Doris and Duane Boudreaux of Houston, Tex., and, on the right, Louise Heath and Vincent Torro of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. When the picture was taken Thursday, the competing kissers were in the 93rd hour of competition. Thursday night, after kissing for 114 hours and 1 minute, the Floridians claimed the championship. It was conceded to them when the Boudreaux couple learned their opponents intended to convert the prize — an eight-day, all-expense-paid trip to Acapulco — to cash and donate it to a mother and three children who lost everything when their house burned down.

Band Meets Breakdown, Hot Weather

Portland, Ore. (AP) — A bus breakdown and hot weather hasn't kept the Holdredge High School Band from enjoying its trip from Nebraska to participate in the Rose Festival. Verle Strallmann, band director, explained that one of the charter buses broke down between Salt Lake City, Utah, and Boise, Idaho, the last day before the band was to arrive in Portland, delaying it five hours. It arrived Wednesday night. The band played at a shopping center Thursday, as well as participating in the festival's junior parade. It plays at another shopping center Friday. "It's really hot," said senior Susie Keifer, a 17-year-old flute player with the 97-member band, which marched Thursday morning in the junior parade. "I heard it was raining back home." It was 87 degrees in Portland and 59 on the coast 100 miles away.

"The kids are enjoying themselves," said Strallmann. "We're taking our box lunches and heading for a look at the ocean this afternoon." The band will be among those in the grand floral parade Saturday. It will stay at Maryhurst College while in Portland.

Explosion Rocks Gulf Oil Building

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — An explosion rocked the upper floors of the Gulf Oil Corp.'s international headquarters Thursday night, moments after a telephone caller claiming to be from the radical Weather Underground warned that a bomb had been placed. Police said the blast left the 29th floor "all messed up," and a newsman reported a gaping hole in the ceiling of the 28th floor of the 38-floor building. There were no reports of injuries and police said there was apparently no fire in the wake of the blast. It was the second time in two weeks that someone claiming to be from the Weather Underground warned of a bombing minutes before a bomb went off. On May 31, a bomb damaged the Los Angeles office of the California attorney general. In that case, as in the Pittsburgh explosion, members of the news media were directed to telephone booths where they found letters signed "Weather Underground" and bearing the sign of the radical group — an arrow piercing a rainbow. But the Los Angeles letters said the bombing was an expression of sympathy with the Symphonies Liberation Army, the terrorist kidnappers and converters of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst. The Pittsburgh letter was eight pages long, addressed mainly to Gulf's alleged "crimes" against peoples around the world. The Weather Underground splintered off from Students for a Democratic Society, the campus protest group of the 1960s. Once they were known simply as the Weathermen, taken from the 1965 Bob Dylan song "Subterranean Homesick Blues" — "you don't need a weatherman to know which way the wind blows." After the Los Angeles bombing, FBI agents said the Weather Underground was "a relatively small group, 20 to 30 persons." Their leader is believed to be Bernardine Dohrn, an FBI fugitive since 1970. Gulf workers who were in the building reported hearing from one to three explosions, but Fire Capt. James Flavin said there was just a single blast. Flavin was one of seven men who were trapped in an elevator by the blast. They were freed about 40 minutes later. He said the group was going to investigate the bomb threat when the explosion "blew off every elevator door" on the 29th floor. The woman who telephoned The Associated Press said the bombing was explained in a letter, and she gave directions on finding it.

Dairy Products Pricing Law Ruled Unconstitutional

By DON BEMAN
United Press International

The State Supreme Court Thursday struck down as unconstitutional Nebraska's controversial dairy products pricing law.

Also, the high court struck down the state's non-resident college tuition law, which reversed its own stand taken in 1971 that requiring a student to forego any classes for a period of time to become a resident was okay.

In its 5-1 decision on the dairy pricing law, one judge not participating, the majority agreed with Gillette Dairy of Norfolk that the law is "unreasonable, arbitrary and capricious."

Nothing that the dairy industry is already highly regulated in an attempt to make sure the public gets a wholesome product, the majority said the legislature overstepped its powers.

"While the exercise of the police power in the milk industry is essential to that end," the majority said.

Purpose Stated

The law's stated purpose, the majority noted, was to stop unfair trade practices and cleanse the industry of monopolistic influences.

The mechanism for doing that was a requirement that no dairy could sell its products below minimum actual production costs.

The result, the majority concluded, was exactly the reverse of that intended.

"Plaintiff's evidence would indicate that rather than freeing the state from monopolistic influences, it would create monopoly by permitting large processors to become even larger," the majority said.

Or to put it another way:

"In supposedly protecting the public interest, it is the public which is caught in the price squeeze promoted by raising the price to that of the average of the inefficient producers."

Under the law, minimum basic costs were determined by the State Dairy Products Board by figuring out actual costs of a number of dairies and then averaging them to establish the enforceable minimum.

The majority concluded "by upholding the legislation we would necessarily hold that the Legislature has the power to require that every distributor of an essential food product, whether bread, fruit, milk or otherwise, to sell at a price determined by averaging his costs with those of his less efficient competitors."

"We do not believe this is in the public interest," the majority said. "It is obvious the public, through price control, is subsidizing the inefficient distributors."

In short, the majority said the law represents an "unwarranted interference with individual liberty."

Clinton Disagrees

Judge Lawrence Clinton, however, disagreed with the majority saying, "it appears to me that the majority opinion judges not the constitutionality of the legislation, but its wisdom."

As to the non-resident tuition law decision, struck down was the requirement that a person must reside in the state four months without attending classes of any kind before becoming eligible for resident tuition rates.

The reversal of the 1971 stand came on a case filed by Gaylord Bauer against the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

Bringing about the reversal in thinking, the court said, was a change at the U.S. Supreme Court level.

Since 1971 the nation's high court has decided a state may impose reasonable residency requirements, but only as long as they can be met while the person attends classes.

The residency requirements, the court concluded, violated the constitution's due process clause.

Bauer was originally from Jefferson, Iowa but decided to attend the University after he got out of the army. Technically, the court said, he was a resident of no state when he started classes.

The court awarded him the difference in resident and non-resident tuition, $703, plus interest.

Remodeling Estimate Up $2 Million

Omaha (AP) — A financial report estimates the new Omaha-Douglas County building and Courthouse remodeling will cost more than $2 million dollars more than the $25 million bond issue.

And, the cost could be nearly $4 million more than original estimates.

City Councilman Jerry Hassett said "it's a fair assumption" that more bonds will have to be issued to pay for the increasing costs.

Hassett is chairman of the finance committee of the Omaha-Douglas Public Building Commission.

But, he said, it will be next spring before the building commission will know how much more money will be needed for the two buildings.

Much of the remodeling at the courthouse cannot be started until some offices are moved to the city-county building, and as a result bids have not been sought.

Obscenity Bill Tough

Boston (UPI) — The Massachusetts House has concurred with a tough Senate version of an obscenity bill allowing for immediate criminal prosecution in obscenity cases.

Murder Conviction Upheld By High Court

The State Supreme Court Thursday upheld the Douglas County District Court's first degree murder conviction of Charles T. Casper.

Casper was convicted in connection with the death of Joseph Armstrong, whose body was found floating in the Missouri River May 8, 1973.

The specific charge Casper was convicted of was killing while committing another crime — robbery in the case at bar, which is classified as first degree murder. He was sentenced to life.

The man appealed, however, saying the evidence was insufficient to convict him of killing Armstrong.

The court agreed the evidence was primarily circumstantial, but said it was enough.

But Judge Hale McCown disagreed with the majority.

"The evidence, including the defendant's own testimony, established the attempted robbery," McCown said. "However, the evidence failed to establish that the defendant had killed the decedent."

In other cases the Supreme Court:

- Reversed the decision of the Douglas County District Court to award custody of a minor child to the father, Laurence Howard Fenner, and instead awarded custody to the maternal grandfather, William L. Strickland.
- Affirmed a decision by the State Banking Department to issue a charter to Lincoln Bank East for a facility at 66th and O Sts. in Lincoln.
- Affirmed the Dodge County District Court's decision to reduce damage recovery in an auto accident suit brought by Dorel Parker against R. Keith Christensen.

Ex-Nebraskan Killed Thursday In Auto Mishap

Solomon, Kan. (AP) — James W. Martin, 31, Topeka, Kan., was killed early Thursday in a one-car accident on Interstate 70 near the Solomon interchange about 10-miles west of Abilene. Martin, a former resident of Fairbury, Neb., was thrown from his car and pinned beneath it. Officers said the car went out of control.

Campbell's TIME TABLE

For Spraying Trees and Evergreens

by Bob Campbell the TREE DOCTOR

APPLE SCAB—This disease is commonly confused with cedar apple rust. The apple scab usually occurs in mid-April as blotches on the leaves with "smoke ring" effect, and continues through mid-June. However, a period of wet weather in July can cause recurrence of the disease. A fungicide such as CAPTAN should be applied at 10 day intervals as soon as the buds start showing color.

Cedar apple rust occurs in mid-April and continues through mid-June also. This disease usually will decline after this time and will not reoccur with the onset of wet weather after June. ZINEB is the best fungicide to use for cedar apple rust with MANEB a second choice.

NEEDLE CAST OF PINES—Through extensive research done by the University of Nebraska, they have determined that this disease can be controlled if the Pines are sprayed APPROX. MAY 20, and a second spraying one month later by JUNE 20th, using BORDEAUX as the fungicide.

ANTHRACNOSE OF SYCAMORE—This disease has to be treated in the green bud stage and the second application should be applied when the leaves unfurl. BORDEAUX is used.

SPRUCE LEAF MINER—This insect attacks the needles of Spruce, making a nest of them. Since the insect is protected by a webbing and the old needles, one must use pressure to get an insecticide to the insect. Either ISOTOX, DIAZINON OR CYGON, starting in April would be an effective control for this insect. This spray program would also be effective for scale on Yews.

BRONZE BIRCH BORER—This beetle usually lays her eggs in May and June and sometimes overlaps into July. This borer affects the whole Birch tree, not just the trunk. Therefore, spraying should be done over the whole tree thoroughly. If not treated, the tree will start to die from the top down. At least two sprayings are necessary—one in late May and the second, June 15th, with LINDANE. SEVIN may be used if applied at two week intervals throughout the season.

OYSTER SHELL SCALE—This insect attacks lilac and most other deciduous ornamentals. Dormant spray with LIME SULPHUR and OIL should be applied when these plants are dormant when the temperatures are above 40 degrees before they reach green bud stage. Follow-up sprayings are necessary with CYGON or ISOTOX, starting the last week of May and repeated monthly when the insect is in the crawling stage.

MIMOSA WEBWORM ON LOCUSTS—This worm usually starts its damage around the first of July and by the first of August has usually stripped the tree of its foliage. Two sprayings with SEVIN, for on JULY 15TH and the second on AUGUST 15TH will usually keep the tree green.

RED SPIDERS ON EVERGREENS—Red Spider build-up on evergreens usually occurs at the first advent of warm weather. A spraying of all evergreens with ISOTOX or DIAZINON at 1 MONTH INTERVALS throughout the summer will usually control this mite.

BAGWORM ON EVERGREENS—Bagworms hatch out about the middle of June and are usually seen in numbers around the first of July and on through until fall. Regular spraying of ISOTOX at MONTHLY INTERVALS will usually control this insect. If the worm has matured, the addition of lead arsenate to the spray is advisable.

BORERS IN SHADE TREES AND WOODY ORNAMENTALS—The beetle of the borer usually lays her eggs sometime around the last of May and the first of June, so regular sprayings one week apart at this season will control most of the borers. The trunks can be painted or sprayed with a heavy solution of LINDANE. After the borers have once entered the tree or shrub, the each hole must be treated with BORER-KILL, which is inserted into the hole, killing the worm.

Dairy Products Pricing Law Ruled Unconstitutional

By DON BEMAN
United Press International

The State Supreme Court Thursday struck down an unconstitutional Nebraska's controversial dairy products pricing law.

Also, the high court struck down the state's non-resident college tuition law, which reversed its own stand taken in 1971 that requiring a student to forego any classes for a period of time to become a resident was okay.

In its 5-1 decision on the dairy pricing law, one judge not participating, the majority agreed with Gillette Dairy of Norfolk that the law is "unreasonable, arbitrary and capricious."

Nothing that the dairy industry is already highly regulated in an attempt to make sure the public gets a wholesome product, the majority said the legislature overstepped its powers.

"While the exercise of the police power in the milk industry is essential to that end," the majority said.

Purpose Stated
The law's stated purpose, the majority noted, was to stop unfair trade practices and cleanse the industry of monopolistic influences.

The mechanism for doing that was a requirement that no dairy could sell its products below minimum actual production costs.

The result, the majority concluded, was exactly the reverse of that intended.

"Plaintiff's evidence would indicate that rather than freeing the state from monopolistic influences, it would create monopoly by permitting large processors to become even larger," the majority said.

Or to put it another way:

"In supposedly protecting the public interest, it is the public which is caught in the price squeeze promoted by raising the price to that of the average of the inefficient producers."

Under the law, minimum basic costs were determined by the State Dairy Products Board by figuring out actual costs of a number of dairies and then averaging them to establish the enforceable minimum.

The majority concluded "by upholding the legislation we would necessarily hold that the Legislature has the power to require that every distributor of an essential food product, whether bread, fruit, milk or otherwise, to sell at a price determined by averaging his costs with those of his less efficient competitors."

"We do not believe this is in the public interest," the majority said. "It is obvious the public, through price control, is subsidizing the inefficient distributors."

In short, the majority said the law represents an "unwarranted interference with individual liberty."

Clinton Disagrees
Judge Lawrence Clinton, however, disagreed with the majority saying, "it appears to me that the majority opinion judges not the constitutionality of the legislation, but its wisdom."

As to the non-resident tuition law decision, struck down was the requirement that a person must reside in the state four months without attending classes of any kind before becoming eligible for resident tuition rates.

The reversal of the 1971 stand came on a case filed by Gaylord Bauer against the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

Bringing about the reversal in thinking, the court said, was a change at the U.S. Supreme Court level.

Since 1971 the nation's high court has decided a state may impose reasonable residency requirements, but only as long as they can be met while the person attends classes.

The residency requirements, the court concluded, violated the constitution's due process clause.

Bauer was originally from Jefferson, Iowa but decided to attend the University after he got out of the army. Technically, the court said, he was a resident of no state when he started classes.

The court awarded him the difference in resident and non-resident tuition, $703, plus interest.

Remodeling Estimate Up $2 Million

Omaha (AP) — A financial report estimates the new Omaha-Douglas County building and Courthouse remodeling will cost more than $2 million dollars more than the $25 million bond issue.

And, the cost could be nearly $4 million more than original estimates.

City Councilman Jerry Hassett said "it's a fair assumption" that more bonds will have to be issued to pay for the increasing costs.

Hassett is chairman of the finance committee of the Omaha-Douglas Public Building Commission.

But, he said, it will be next spring before the building commission will know how much more money will be needed for the two buildings.

Much of the remodeling at the courthouse cannot be started until some offices are moved to the city-county building, and as a result bids have not been sought.

Obscenity Bill Tough

Boston (UPI) — The Massachusetts House has concurred with a tough Senate version of an obscenity bill allowing for immediate criminal prosecution in obscenity cases.

UNL Music Student One Of 7 Fellowship Winners

Teresa Kay Hietbrink, who will receive her master's degree in music from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in July, has been named one of seven nationwide winners of a Kathryn Sisson Phillips Fellowship.

The fellowship is awarded by Alpha Lambda Delta scholastic honorary society for freshman women.

Miss Hietbrink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Hietbrink of Adams, will use her $2,000 fellowship to study at the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, Md. She was selected as one of seven fellowship winners from among 206 applicants from 77 institutions.

The fellowships are for young women who were named to Alpha Lambda Delta as freshman and "maintained Alpha Lambda Delta initiation standards throughout their college careers."

Miss Hietbrink earned her bachelor's degree in music at NU in 1972.

Killed Thursday

In Auto Mishap

Solomon, Kan. (AP) — James W. Martin, 31, Topeka, Kan., was killed early Thursday in a one-car accident on Interstate 70 near the Solomon interchange about 10-miles west of Abilene.

Martin, a former resident of Fairbury, Neb., was thrown from his car and pinned beneath it. Officers said the car went out of control.

Seminar For Supervisors Scheduled June 20

A seminar designed for the newly appointed supervisor in business, industry, hospitals, educational institutions and government will be held at Nebraska Center for Continuing Education in Lincoln, June 20. Sponsored by the University Extension Division and the Department of Management, the one-day seminar is designed to present information on planning, organizing, motivating, leading and controlling.

Drs. Fred Luthans and Richard Hodgetts, professors of management at NU, are instructors for the seminar which runs from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Complete information on the seminars, and registration procedures are available from the Extension Division, 511 Nebraska Hall, Lincoln.

the TREE DOCTOR

APPLE SCAB—This disease is commonly confused with cedar apple rust. Apple scab usually occurs in mid-April as blotches on the leaves with "smoke ring" effect, and continues through mid-June. However, a period of wet weather in July can cause recurrence of the disease. A fungicide such as CAPTAN should be applied at 10 day intervals as soon as the buds start showing color.

Cedar apple rust occurs in mid-April and continues through mid-June also. This disease usually will decline after this time and will not reoccur with the onset of wet weather after June. ZINEB is the best fungicide to use for cedar apple rust with MANEB a second choice.

NEEDLE CAST OF PINES—Through extensive research done by the University of Nebraska, they have determined that this disease can be controlled if the Pines are sprayed APPROX. MAY 20, and a second spraying one month later by JUNE 20th, using BORDEAUX as the fungicide.

ANTHRACNOSE OF SYCAMORE—This disease has to be treated in the green bud stage and the second application should be applied when the leaves unfurl. BORDEAUX is used.

SPRUCE LEAF MINER—This insect attacks the needles of Spruce, making a nest of them. Since the insect is protected by a webbing and the old needles, one must use pressure to get an insecticide to the insect. Either ISOTOX, DIAZINON OR CYGON, starting in April would be an effective control for this insect. This spray program would also be effective for scale on Yews.

BRONZE BIRCH BORER—This beetle usually lays her eggs in May and June and sometimes overlaps into July. This borer affects the whole Birch tree, not just the trunk. Therefore, spraying should be done over the whole tree thoroughly. If not treated, the tree will start to die from the top down. At least two sprayings are necessary—one in late May and the second, June 15th, with LINDANE. SEVIN may be used if applied at two week intervals throughout the season.

OYSTER SHELL SCALE—This insect attacks lilac and most other deciduous ornamentals. Dormant spray with LIME SULPHUR and OIL should be applied when these plants are dormant when the temperatures are above 40 degrees before they reach green bud stage. Follow-up sprays are necessary with CYGON or ISOTOX, starting the last week of May and repeated monthly when the insect is in the crawling stage.

MIMOSA WEBWORM ON LOCUSTS—This worm usually starts its damage around the first of July and by the first of August has usually stripped the tree of its foliage. Two sprayings with SEVN, for on JULY 15th and the second on AUGUST 15th will usually keep the tree green.

RED SPIDERS ON EVERGREENS—Red Spider build-up on evergreens usually occurs at the first advent of warm weather. A spraying of all evergreens with ISOTOX or DIAZINON at MONTHLY INTERVALS throughout the summer will usually control this mite.

BAGWORM ON EVERGREENS—Bagworms hatch out about the middle of June and are usually seen in numbers around the first of July and on through until fall. Regular spraying of ISOTOX at MONTHLY INTERVALS will usually control this insect. If the worm has matured, the addition of lead arsenate to the spray is advisable.

BORERS IN SHADE TREES AND WOODY ORNAMENTALS—The beetle of the borer usually lays her eggs sometime around the last of May and the first of June, so regular sprayings one week apart at this season will control most of the borers. The trunks can be painted or sprayed with a heavy solution of LINDANE. After the borers have once entered the tree or shrub, the each hole must be treated with BORER-KILL, which is inserted into the hole, killing the worm.

Cattle Liver Contaminated With DES Residue

Washington (UPI) — For the first time this year, the Agriculture Department has found a cattle liver contaminated with residues of a cancer-causing hormone used to stimulate cattle growth, officials announced Thursday.

Spokesmen said the case involving residues of diethylstilbestrol (DES) was the first uncovered after testing 1,049 samples since the beginning of the year when a federal court overturned a 1973 government ban on use of the hormone.

The last contaminated sample found was detected in December, 1973, when the ban was still in effect.

Agriculture spokesmen said the new contaminated sample came from a heifer owned by a Nebraska farmer. They said "necessary regulatory action" to prevent a repetition of the incident was being taken by both the Agriculture Department and the Food and Drug Administration.

Use of DES was banned by the FDA last year after more than two decades, during which the government had permitted its use but forbidden any residue of the hormone in meat reaching consumers. In January, however, a federal appeals court overturned the ban because DES defenders had not been granted a public hearing.

UNL Music Student One Of 7 Fellowship Winners
 Teresa Kay Hietbrink, who will receive her master's degree in music from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in July, has been named one of seven nationwide winners of a Kathryn Sisson Phillips Fellowship.
 The fellowship is awarded by Alpha Lambda Delta scholastic honorary society for freshman women.
 Miss Hietbrink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Hietbrink of Adams, will use her $2,000 fellowship to study at the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore, Md. She was selected as one of seven fellowship winners from among 206 applicants from 77 institutions.
 The fellowships are for young women who were named to Alpha Lambda Delta as freshman and "maintained Alpha Lambda Delta initiation standards throughout their college careers."
 Miss Hietbrink earned her bachelor's degree in music at UNL in 1972.

Cattle Liver Contaminated With DES Residue

Washington (UPI) — For the first time this year, the Agriculture Department has found a cattle liver contaminated with residues of a cancer-causing hormone used to stimulate cattle growth, officials announced Thursday.

Spokesmen said the case involving residues of diethylstilbestrol (DES) was the first uncovered after testing 1,049 samples since the beginning of the year when a federal court overturned a 1973 government ban on use of the hormone. The last contaminated sample found was detected in December, 1973, when the ban was still in effect. Agriculture spokesmen said the new contaminated sample came from a heifer owned by a Nebraska farmer. They said "necessary regulatory action" to prevent a repetition of the incident was being taken by both the Agriculture Department and the Food and Drug Administration. Use of DES was banned by the FDA last year after more than two decades, during which the government had permitted its use but forbidden any residue of the hormone in meat reaching consumers. In January, however, a federal appeals court overturned the ban because DES defenders had not been granted a public hearing.

Big Eight Last . . . In Something

The Big Eight Conference, which prides itself on the quality of its athletic teams . . . and with justification . . . finally has finished last in one sport, but it may have an excuse.

In a mythical track and field meet with champions of six major conferences, our league placed dead last and by a wide margin.

Of course, there was a good reason for some of the rather lackluster performances in the meet held in May on the University of Nebraska's all-weather tartan track.

Even though it's "all-weather," the heavy rain, high wind and lightning made conditions virtually impossible for good times, distances and heights.

Big Eight champions ranked last in six events and best in just one — the long jump won by Kansan Danny Seay in 26-9.

On the basis of scoring 10-8-6-4-2-1 for first through sixth places, the Big Eight accumulated just 65 points compared with the champion conference, the Pacific Eight, which scored 146 points.

The Western Athletic Conference, surprisingly, was second with 102 points to 99 for the Southeastern, which eventually turned up with the NCAA championship team in Tennessee. The Big Ten had 96 and the Southwest 74.

Defending NCAA champion UCLA, which didn't successfully defend its crown, helped the Pac-8 to seven bests of the 19 events compared. The WAC had five while the Big Ten and SEC each produced three leaders.

What the heck! That's just a mythical meet. So all the Big Eight lost was something "on paper."

Catching Up On Sports

The United States Golf Association has hired Frank W. Thomas, who designed and developed the graphite shafts produced by the Shakespeare-Plymouth Co. His primary project will be to develop a rule which will govern the performance of clubs. In other words, his graphite shafts propel the ball too far. The USGA wants a rule that will regulate the overall distance a ball may travel and the overall distance provided by a club.

The USGA, incidentally, has abandoned a project which would have developed a uniform ball suitable for worldwide play. Reason: Costs are prohibitive.

Portions of the final two rounds of the U.S. Open Golf Championship will be televised by ABC-TV, at 3:30 on Saturday and 2:30 on Sunday. If a playoff is necessary, the last few holes also will be televised. There'll also be a half-hour show at 9:30 p.m. Friday recapping the first two rounds.

Kansas is in the market for a new tennis coach, replacing Mike Howard who resigned in order to concentrate on his duties as ticket manager.

Former NU golfer Frank Rose, who won 14 of 15 matches in his first three tries for the Kansas Amateur title (winning two times), failed in his bid for another crown this year. Rose now lives in Topeka.

The Pacific-8 Conference has adopted the recommendation of its football coaches that no official scouting be allowed in Pac-8 games. Coaches will rely on game films only . . . A similar rule went into effect in the Big Ten last season and the coaches didn't like it.

Since the NU coliseum for basketball is being paid for by a five cent tax on each package of cigarettes sold in the state, Bob Hurt of the Daily Oklahoman wonders if there'll be a lot of "No Smoking" signs hung in it when it is completed in a year and a half.

Kemling Family After No. 2?

By MARK GORDON

Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Can the Kemling family maintain possession of Ak-Sar-Ben's Lassie Stakes title for another year?

That's the question that the Aurora horse owners hope will be answered affirmatively here Friday when Paul Kemling's Black Heiress and Mike Kemling's Zippi's Magic face 12 foes in the $15,000-added 13th running of the Lassie Stakes.

Paul's speedy Queen's Turn won last year's Lassie Stakes and went on to earn more than $47,000 that year. But it appears as if Mike's Zippi's Magic is the stronger contender for the 5-furlong chase for 2-year-old Nebraska-bred fillies.

Sharing co-topweight of 116 pounds with the Bevilacqua's Stable's Pretty Bluesette, Zippi's Magic has one win, one second and one third in six 1974 outings.

Her most impressive appearance was here in a May 23 maiden test when she scooted to a five-length verdict over 4½-furlongs. Zippi's last run here was a disappointment as she placed last in a 12-horse field of allowance competitors here on June 7 over 5 furlongs.

Black Heiress has one win and one second in seven lifetime outings, including a maiden victory over 4 furlongs on April 3 at Grand Island's Fonner-Park. Tom Greer will ride Black Heiress while no rider was listed for Zippi's Magic.

The most formidable foe for the Kemling pair, which will race uncoupled in the wagering, may be Pretty Bluesette.

The speedy miss has one victory in two career starts. That came on a muddy track last Thursday when she roared to a two-length verdict in a maiden special weight test over 5 furlongs.

Other entrants who will each carry 112 pounds in the Lassie include L. O. Jones' Cool Grace, D. E. Kinyoun's Tawny Roma, Lou Glick's 'm Sissy, R. W. White's Nellie's Prize, Margaret Lynch and Jim Moss' Arrowhead Princess. Andy Engel's Skid Skidadle, Shinnone Farm, Inc.'s Fleet Pawnee, J. Carson and S. Frek's Brave Aero, A. D. Turner's Lori's Song, Ken Kirby's Miss Spy's Dream and G. Fudge's Jam Session.

Women's Sports Expansion Sought At NU

By BOB OWENS

Star Sports Editor

University of Nebraska Chancellor James Zumbeke's Commission on Women's Intercollegiate Athletics has recommended expansion of the sports program with a budget of $132,000 by the 1975-76 academic year.

Zumbeke is reviewing the report and copies have been made available to members of the Board of Regents and the University System staff. The proposal is expected to be discussed in the near future.

The recommendations include that $30,000 be made available for scholarships in the coming year and that $15,000 in additional scholarship moneys be added for the 1975-76 year.

A full-time women's director of athletics, up from the present one-third time, and increased time for coaches' availability also were recommended.

The university sponsored seven women's sports in the year just completed and that number would remain the same until 1975-76 when track and field would be added.

Sports already being sponsored include volleyball, field hockey, basketball, gymnastics, swimming, softball and tennis.

The report suggested that other sports should be added when sufficient student interest is evidenced and when the women's intercollegiate athletic program is more firmly established.

Of the proposed $60,000 budget for the coming year, the actual amount available is $16,262. No recommendation was contained in the

By DAVE SITTLER

Omaha — Southern California hooked Texas' horns, 5-3, and surprising Southern Illinois upset No. 1 ranked Miami, 4-3, here Thursday night to send the College World Series into a three-way final.

Southern California's win eliminated Texas from the double elimination meet while Southern Illinois' win left them, along with USC and Miami, all with one loss.

A drawing was held along the third baseline immediately following the Southern Illinois-Miami game. Miami drew the bye and will face the winner of tonight's Southern Illinois-Southern California game at 7:30 p.m. Saturday night for the championship.

Cinderella Southern Illinois

saw its three run, 3-0, lead vanish over the Hurricanes in the seventh inning when Miami's Orlando Gonzales hit a dramatic two-out, two-on home run to tie the score.

But Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones' Salukis meet the challenge in equally dramatic fashion by bouncing back with a run in the eighth to capture the win before 9,134 electrified fans at Rosenblatt Stadium.

The Saukies, ranked No. 4 in the nation with a 50-11 mark, got their winning run when pinch runner Claude Crockett scored on a throwing error by Miami's third baseman Jim Crosta.

With Crockett on second and two outs, Crosta fielded a high chopper by Bert Newman and threw wide of first allowing Crockett to score, sending Southern Illinois' highly vocal fans into a wild frenzy.

Southern California, seeking its fifth straight national crown, had to pull out all the stops to whip Texas Thursday night, 5-3, thus eliminating the Longhorns in this double elimination tourney.

Coach Rod Dedeaux's Trojans also continued to jinx the Longhorns. Thursday's victory was the second win for USC over Texas in this series and the fifth straight for the Trojans in series, play dating back to 1963.

Dedeaux's club, smarting from Wednesday night's 7-3 loss to Miami which snapped a 10-game College World Series winning streak by the Trojans, stayed alive in the tourney in typical USC opportunistic style.

Texas, entering the tourney as the nation's co-No. 1 team along with Miami, outhit the Trojans nine to four, but committed four errors which USC took every advantage to score.

Texas' starting pitcher Rick Wortham gave up only two hits during the seven innings he worked, but both hits caused major damage to the Longhorns. After walking USC's Steve Kemp and Rich Dauer in the first inning, Wortham allowed a double to Trojan catcher Ed Putman scoring both runners.

Texas' fine third baseman Keith Moreland pulled the Longhorns back within one run in the fourth inning when he smashed a 385-foot home run over the leftfield wall against Southern Cal's starting pitcher George Milke.

But it was opportunity time for the Trojans again, as they came back to score two more runs in the fifth inning on only one hit and with the aid of two Texas errors.

Shortstop Marvin Cobb got things started by walking. Kemp was then safe at first when Texas's second baseman Bobby Clark booted an easy grounder. USC's record-breaking third baseman, Dauer, singled Cobb home. Ken Huizenga's sacrifice fly to left scored Kemp when Texas' leftfielder Terry Pyka's throw sailed wide of the catcher for an error.

Dauer has now broken two NCAA hitting records and tied another during the series. He broke Arizona State's Alan Bannister's most hits in a season earlier (106 to 101).

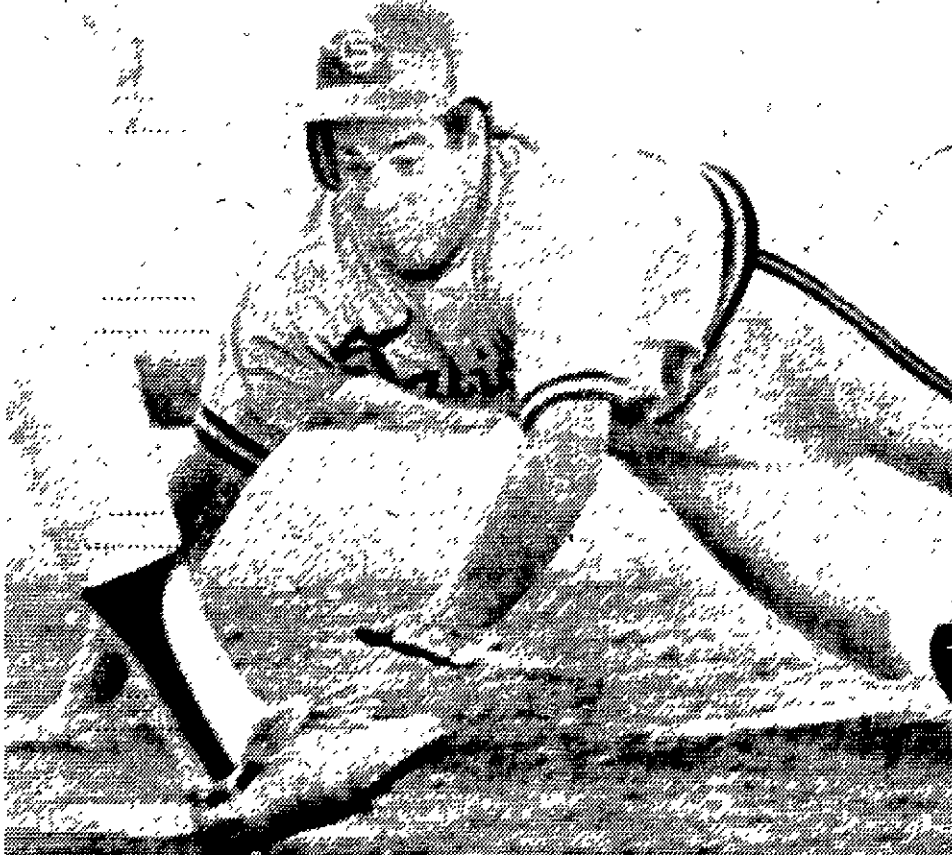

Thursday, he tied Bannister's RBI record of 90 and broke his total bases' record. Dauer's single and double gave him 178 total bases to Bannister 177.

George Milke, who also defeated the Longhorns in the first game of the series last Saturday, scattered five Texas hits and Moreland's homer before faltering in the eighth inning.

Texas, fighting to stay alive in the tournament, finally got to Milke in the eighth inning when they were able to push across two runs on three hits.

But the Longhorns saw their chance to take the lead with the bases loaded and two outs sink when USC's relief pitcher Pete Redfern got Longhorn first baseman Rick Burley to pop out to the catcher ending the threat.

'Rozelle Rule' Looms As Stumbling Block

NEW YORK (UPI) — Somebody walked out of the labor meeting between the National Football Players Association and the NFL Management Council on Wednesday, but no one is quite sure who.

The management spokesman, Terry Bledsoe, said it was the players, but Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers and the NFLPA said everybody "intermingled" in leaving the bargaining session, which, obviously, got nowhere.

Bledsoe said that NFL again went over the players' "Freedom Demands" one by one during the three and a half-hour meeting, but that the now notorious "Rozelle Rule" still loomed the major roadblock in getting the negotiations off square one.

Curry contended that all the NFL offered was exactly what had been offered on April 4, and Bledsoe said that all the players, headed by NFLPA executive director Ed Garvey, had to say was exactly what they had said on April 4.

In the face of the impasse, the scheduled resumption of talks next Tuesday in Washington was in a gray area.

Both sides contend they are willing to resume talking, but both insist the other side remains adamant on the issues.

Bledsoe seemed startled when told the players said they'd be in Washington Tuesday, but shook his head when further informed that the players would be there if there were a "more meaningful" response from the NFL.

"We told them," Bledsoe said, "that we are willing to make modifications in virtually every area, but by modification they mean elimination, particularly of what they call "The Rozelle Rule."

That rule, according to Curry, even modified, would not change player-club relations. "We want the ability to move from team to team. So long as the structure remains, even with major or minor modifications, the player would still be locked up.

Player Takes Open Lead

MAMARONECK, N. Y. (AP) — Gary Player just smiled when asked if he was disappointed over his bogey on the final hole.

"This will be a week of disappointments," Player said Thursday after his round of 70—even par—was good enough for the first-round lead in the United States Open Golf Championship.

"There will be many disappointments for many people.

"I wish we had a computer that could read the thoughts of every player as they come off the 18th green. You would read some things you couldn't believe."

Many of the game's premier performers couldn't believe it when they totaled up their scores, either. Their reactions ranged from stone-faced shock to a puzzled shake of the head to a deleted expletive.

Nicklaus, who three-putted four times, had much the same assessment.

"Obviously the greens are driving everyone up a tree. They're the fastest I've ever seen in an Open.

"But I wish we played a course like this every week. You'd have to learn to hit golf shots. If you didn't you'd be off the tour. And you'd see the really good players winning more often."

Player put it more dramatically.

"You have to respect every hole," he said, considered for a moment, and added: "There are 18 monsters out there."

An errant drive on the last hole kept him from breaking, par.

"Man, I really wanted to break 70 on this golf course," he said. "I should have used a one iron off the tee at 18, but I was feeling so confident that I went to my driver."

It was a mistake. He got it under a fir tree. He couldn't advance the ball toward the green, nor back toward the fairway. He elected to play to the 11th fairway of the east course, then hit his third over trees and a gaping, yawning trap to the 18th green. He twoputted for bogey.

Player, whose career-best nine-iron shot won him the Masters just two months ago, is one of only four men to win all the world's major titles, the U.S. and British opens, the Masters and the PGA. He won the U.S. Open in 1965 and has taken the others two times. He needs only this title to join Nicklaus as the only man to win them all twice.

Further, he's actively seeking a one-year sweep of the Big Four, an achievement that has yet to be accomplished.

"It would be very, very difficult," the little rancher from Johannesburg, South Africa said. "It would be very difficult, indeed. But it's possible. Oh, yes, it's very possible."

"It's as hard a course as I've ever played," said veteran Lou Graham, who tied for second at 71, one over par. "You have a tendency to run a little scared out there."

Graham shared the No. 2 spot in this most prestigious of all the world's golf championships with longshot Mike Rescor, a one-time caddy for Palmer and a non-winner in his six years on the pro tour.

The group at 72 included Jim Colbert, Bobby Nichols, Barney Thompson and Ray Floyd.

Arnold Palmer said he "kind of thought my way around," to a 73.

Some of the others bordered on the ridiculous. Among those shooting 80 and higher were former U.S. Open champions Ken Venturi and Gene Littler and former Masters champ Bob Goalby.

Rives McBee, who once shared the record for the low round in the Open, had an 80. England's Tony Jacklin, a former British and American national titleholder, had 78 and headed for the bar. Hubert Green, a three-time winner this year, had an 81.

Larry Mancour had consecutive "eights," DeWitt Weaver once was among the leaders and then finished with three consecutive "sixes." Tour regular Ralph Johnston shot 86 and withdrew. But his wasn't the high round. That belonged to Jim O'Hern and Bill Efurthur, a couple of club pros who had 88s.

"The USGA could not have set up the course any harder," Miller said. "On every hole downwind the pin was set in the front, behind a bunker. You can't put spin on it so you can't stop it close. On every hole into the wind, they had the hole in the back, two more clubs away.

"This course makes you feel like a dog."

Palmer didn't agree. "I think this is one of the finest courses we've played in a long time," he said. "It is very difficult, but fair. There will be a lot of bad scores. You have to think about every shot you play. You can't get reckless."

Big Eight Last . . . In Something

The Big Eight Conference, which prides itself on the quality of its athletic teams . . . and with justification . . . finally has finished last in one sport, but it may have an excuse.

In a mythical track and field meet with champions of six major conferences, our league placed dead last and by a wide margin.

Of course, there was a good reason for some of the rather lackluster performances in the meet held in May on the University of Nebraska's all-weather tartan track.

Even though it's "all-weather," the heavy rain, high wind and lightning made conditions virtually impossible for good times, distances and heights.

Big Eight champions ranked last in six events and best in just one — the long jump won by Kansan Danny Seay in 26-9.

On the basis of scoring 10-8-6-4-2-1 for first through sixth places, the Big Eight accumulated just 65 points compared with the champion conference, the Pacific Eight, which scored 146 points.

The Western Athletic Conference, surprisingly, was second with 102 points to 99 for the Southeastern, which eventually turned up with the NCAA championship team in Tennessee. The Big Ten had 96 and the Southwest 74.

Defending NCAA champion UCLA, which didn't successfully defend its crown, helped the Pac-8 to seven bests of the 19 events compared. The WAC had five while the Big Ten and SEC each produced three leaders.

What the heck? That's just a mythical meet. So all the Big Eight lost was something "on paper."

Catching Up On Sports

The United States Golf Association has hired Frank W. Thomas, who designed and developed the graphite shafts produced by the Shakespeare-Plymouth Co. His primary project will be to develop a rule which will govern the performance of clubs. In other words, his graphite shafts propel the ball too far. The USGA wants a rule that will regulate the overall distance a ball may travel and the overall distance provided by a club.

The USGA, incidentally, has abandoned a project which would have developed a uniform ball suitable for worldwide play. Reason: Costs are prohibitive.

Portions of the final two rounds of the U.S. Open Golf Championship will be televised by ABC-TV, at 3:30 on Saturday and 2:30 on Sunday. If a playoff is necessary, the last few holes also will be televised. There'll also be a half-hour show at 9:30 p.m. Friday recapping the first two rounds.

Kansas is in the market for a new tennis coach, replacing Mike Howard who resigned in order to concentrate on his duties as ticket manager.

Former NU golfer Frank Rose, who won 14 of 15 matches in his first three tries for the Kansas Amateur title (winning two times), failed in his bid for another crown this year. Rose now lives in Topeka.

The Pacific-8 Conference has adopted the recommendation of its football coaches that no official scouting be allowed in Pac-8 games. Coaches will rely on game films only . . . A similar rule went into effect in the Big Ten last season and the coaches didn't like it.

Since the NU coliseum for basketball is being paid for by a five cent tax on each package of cigarettes sold in the state, Bob Hurt of the Daily Oklahoman wonders if there'll be a lot of "No Smoking" signs hung in it when it is completed in a year and a half.

Kemling Family After No. 2?

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer
Omaha — Can the Kemling family maintain possession of Ak-Sar-Ben's Lassie Stakes title for another year?

That's the question that the Aurora horse owners hope will be answered affirmatively here Friday when Paul Kemling's Black Heiress and Mike Kemling's Zippi's Magic face 12 foes in the $15,000-added 13th running of the Lassie Stakes.

Paul's speedy Queen's Turn won last year's Lassie Stakes and went on to earn more than $47,000 that year. But it appears as if Mike's Zippi's Magic is the stronger contender for the 5-furlong chase for 2-year-old Nebraska-bred fillies.

Sharing co-topweight of 116 pounds with the Bevilacqua's Stable's Pretty Bluesette, Zippi's Magic has one win, one second and one third in six 1974 outings.

Her most impressive appearance was here in a May 23 maiden test when she scooted to a five-length verdict over 4½-furlongs. Zippi's last run here was a disappointment as she placed last in a 12-horse field of allowance competitors here on June 7 over 5 furlongs.

Black Heiress has one win and one second in seven lifetime outings, including a maiden victory over 4 furlongs on April 3 at Grand Island's Fonner Park. Tom Greer will ride Black Heiress while no rider was listed for Zippi's Magic.

The most formidable foe for the Kemling pair, which will race uncoupled in the wagering, may be Pretty Bluesette.

The speedy miss has one victory in two career starts. That came on a muddy track last Thursday when she roared to a two-length verdict in a maiden special weight test over 5 furlongs.

Other entrants who will each carry 112 pounds in the Lassie include L. O. Jones' Cool Grace, D. E. Kinyoun's Tawny Roma, Lou Glick's I'm Sissy, R. W. White's Nellie's Prize, Margaret Lynch and Jim Moss' Arrowhead Princess, Andy Engel's Skid Skidale, Shinrone Farm, Inc.'s Fleet Pawnee, J. Carson and S. Frerk's Brave Aero, A. D. Turner's Lori's Song, Ken Kirby's Miss Spy's Dream and G. Fudge's Jam Session.

USC Tops Texas . . . SIU Beats Miami

By DAVE SITTLER

Omaha — Southern California hooked Texas' horns, 5-3, and surprising Southern Illinois upset No. 1 ranked Miami, 4-3, here Thursday night to send the College World Series into a three-way final.

Southern California's win eliminated Texas from the double elimination meet while Southern Illinois' win left them, along with USC and Miami, all with one loss.

A drawing was held along the third baseline immediately following the Southern Illinois-Miami game. Miami drew the bye and will face the winner of tonight's Southern Illinois-Southern California game at 7:30 p.m. Saturday night for the championship.

Cinderella Southern Illinois

saw its three run, 3-0, lead vanish over the Hurricanes in the seventh inning when Miami's Orlando Gonzales hit a dramatic two-out, two-on home run to tie the score.

But Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones' Salukis meet the challenge in equally dramatic fashion by bouncing back with a run in the eighth to capture the win before 9,134 electrified fans at Rosenblatt Stadium.

The Saukies, ranked No. 4 in the nation with a 50-11 mark, got their winning run when pinch runner Claude Crockett scored on a throwing error by Miami's third baseman Jim Crosta.

With Crockett on second and two outs, Crosta fielded a high chopper by Bert Newman and threw wide of first allowing Crockett to score, sending Southern Illinois' highly vocal fans into a wild frenzy.

Southern California, seeking its fifth straight national crown, had to pull out all the stops to whip Texas Thursday night, 5-3, thus eliminating the Longhorns in this double elimination tourney.

Coach Rod Dedeaux's Trojans also continued to jinx the Longhorns. Thursday's victory was the second win for USC over Texas in this series and the fifth straight for the Trojans in series play dating back to 1963.

Dedeaux's club, smarting from Wednesday night's 7-3 loss to Miami which snapped a 10-game College World Series winning streak by the Trojans, stayed alive in the tourney in typical USC opportunistic style.

Women's Sports Expansion Sought At NU

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

University of Nebraska Chancellor James Zumberge's Commission on Women's Intercollegiate Athletics has recommended expansion of the sports program with a budget of $132,000 by the 1975-76 academic year.

Zumberge is reviewing the report and copies have been made available to members of the Board of Regents and the University System staff. The proposal is expected to be discussed in the near future.

The recommendations include that $30,000 be made available for scholarships in the coming year and that $15,000 in additional scholarship moneys be added for the 1975-76 year.

A full-time women's director of athletics, up from the present one-third time, and increased time for coaches' availability also were recommended.

The university sponsored seven women's sports in the year just completed and that number would remain the same until 1975-76 when track and field would be added.

Sports already being sponsored include volleyball, field hockey, basketball, gymnastics, swimming, softball and tennis.

The report suggested that other sports should be added when sufficient student interest is evidenced and when the women's intercollegiate athletic program is more firmly established.

Of the proposed $60,000 budget for the coming year, the actual amount available is $16,262. No recommendation was contained in the report on from where additional funds would come.

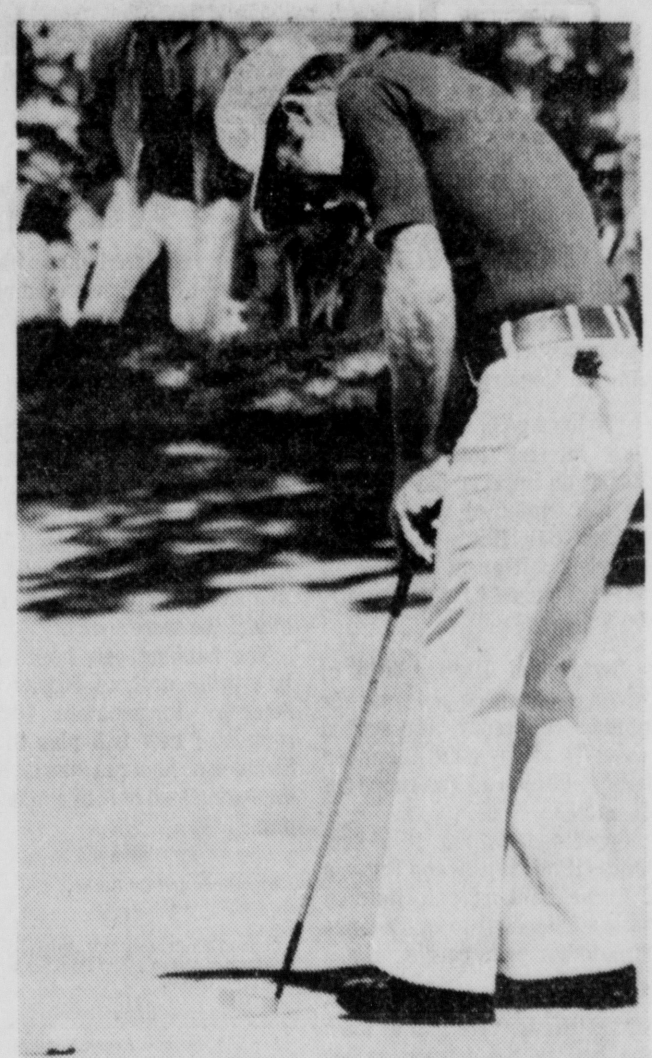

"For 1976-77 it is recommended that the services of an athletic trainer be provided as well as adequate training facilities and that coaches' release time be increased," the report said. "Additional funding will be needed to allow for expansion of program, replacement of uniforms and equipment, and increased quality of lodging for the participants."

The committee noted that the intercollegiate program "is designed for women who demonstrate a high degree of athletic skill and competitiveness." It also pointed out that the program will represent a higher level of skill than that which is demonstrated in physical education classes or in the intramural program at the university.

Student input into the program also was recommended. This would include participation in the planning, conducting and evaluating the activities.

Existing facilities would be utilized "where acceptable to the parties now housed in these facilities," but the committee felt that special appropriations will be necessary to handle expansion of facilities later on.

Committee members signing the report were Ms. Judy Albert, Mrs. Jayne Wade Anderson, Dr. Gordon F. Culver, Bob Devaney (director of men's athletics), Dr. Ronald G. Joekel, Dr. Glen O. Johnson, William Miller, Dr. Madge Phillips, Dr. Janette S. Sayre, Dr. Daniel J. Steller, Dr. John J. Stephens III, Ms. Gail Whitaker and Ms. Judy Visty.

It was a mistake. He got it under a fir tree. He couldn't advance the ball toward the green, nor back toward the fairway. He elected to play to the 11th fairway of the east course, then hit his third over trees and a gaping, yawning trap to the 18th green. He two-putted for bogey.

Player, whose career-best nine-iron shot won him the Masters just two months ago, is one of only four men to win all the world's major titles, the U.S. and British opens, the Masters and the PGA. He won the U.S. Open in 1965 and has taken the others two times. He needs only this title to join Nicklaus as the only man to win them all twice.

Further, he's actively seeking a one-year sweep of the Big Four, an achievement that has yet to be accomplished.

"It would be very, very difficult," the little rancher from Johannesburg, South Africa said. "It would be very difficult, indeed. But it's possible. Oh, yes, it's very possible."

"It's as hard a course as I've ever played," said veteran Lou Graham, who tied for second at 71, one over par. "You have a tendency to run a little scared out there."

Graham shared the No. 2 spot in this most prestigious of all the world's golf championships with longestholf Mike Reasor, a one-time caddy for Palmer and a non-winner in his six years on the pro tour.

The group at 72 included Jim Colbert, Bobby Nichols, Barney Thompson and Ray Floyd. Arnold Palmer said he "kind of thought my way around," to a 73.

Some of the others bordered on the ridiculous. Among those shooting 80 and higher were former U.S. Open champions Ken Venturi and Gene Littler and former Masters champ Bob Goaly.

Rives McBee, who once shared the record for the low round in the Open, had an 80. England's Tony Jacklin, a former British and American national titleholder, had 78 and headed for the bar. Hubert Green, a three-time winner this year, had an 81.

Larry Mancour had consecutive "eights," DeWitt Weaver once was among the leaders and then finished with three consecutive "sixes." Tour regular Ralph Johnson shot 86 and withdrew. But his wasn't the high round. That belonged to Jim O'Hern and Bill Erfurth, a couple of club pros who had 88s.

"The USGA could not have set up the course any harder," Miller said. "On every hole downwind the pin was set in the front, behind a bunker. You can't put spin on it so you can't stop it close. On every hole into the wind, they had the hole in the back, two more clubs away. This course makes you feel like a dog."

Palmer didn't agree. "I think this is one of the finest courses we've played in a long time," he said. "It is very difficult, but fair. There will be a lot of bad scores. You have to think about every shot you play. You can't get reckless."

Brazil's forward Jair (right) slips the ball past Yugoslavia's goalie Enver Maric but misses the goal during World Soccer Cup play Thursday.

Brazil Held To 0-0 Draw

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Brazil, the defending champions, were held to a 0-0 draw by Yugoslavia Thursday as the World Soccer Cup started at half pace in driving rain, amid an unprecedented security clamp-down.

German police, haunted by the bloodshed of the Arab attack on the Israelis at the Munich Olympics, arrested two alleged terrorists within 24 hours of the kick-off. A Palestinian student in Saarbrücken was charged with plotting raids on Israeli installations and a World Cup stadium.

A Jordanian medical student in Heidelberg was accused of being a member of the Black September organization. At Frankfurt's Wald Stadium, a sellout crowd of 62,000 were checked and searched as they filed in to watch the opening ceremony and the Brazil-Yugoslavia clash, the only game scheduled Thursday.

But the only subversive agent at the match was the rain. The grass was badly worn in patches, and as it became saturated both teams found it difficult to play football. The Brazilians—without the great Pele, who has retired from international soccer—only occasionally looked like the team that won the trophy three times out of four between 1958 and 1970. It was a slow ball game, both teams apparently wary of the treacherous surface.

The Brazilians ruled the first half. Their defense looked strong and was never beaten in the air. Their attacks, fired by the brilliant Roberto Rivelino, came near to a goal several times. A cannonball free-kick by Francisco Marinho from 30 yards was tipped over the crossbar by goalkeeper Enver Maric.

Jairzinho, one of the survivors from Brazil's 1970 team, burst through the middle and shot wide. But again Maric helped to foil Brazil, running out and narrowing the angle as Jairzinho shot.

The Yugoslavs weathered the storm and hit back with menacing attacks in the second half. Their manager, Milan Miljanic, claimed he took the sting out of the Brazilian attack by moving his midfield men forward to stifle Rivelino's moves. Rivelino faded and Dragan Dzajic, superstar of the Yugoslav team, came more into the game.

Dzajic had a quiet first half and missed one good scoring chance. In the second half he hit stride and pulled gaps in the Brazilian defense. The Brazilians had one dramatic escape when a header by Ivo Surjak hit

Deer Permits Scarce

Permits in all but one Nebraska deer hunting unit have been sold, and only a few are still available in the remaining area, reports the Game and Parks Commission.

Only permits remaining as of Thursday afternoon were 40 in the Upper Platte Unit, and another 59 in a special sub-unit of that area good only for antlerless deer. These remaining 99 permits are being sold on a first-come, first-served basis.

Other items of interest to outdoorsmen involves recent fishing activity across the state. According to conservation officers in the field, outdoor activity includes:

PANHANDLE
Smith Lake (Sheridan County) — northern pike to 4 pounds hitting artificials; bullheads at night on worms;
Pine Creek (Sheridan County) — 10-inch brown trout hitting worms and artificials;
Box Butte Reservoir (Hemphill County) — northern pike and walleye, averaging 3 pounds, and smallmouth bass to 2 pounds, all going for trotted artificials;
Lake Ogallala — 4-pound perch on worms; rainbow trout on salmon eggs;
Lake McCaughy (Ogallala) — walleye, averaging 2 pounds, on trotted spinner-nightcrawler combinations; white bass on trotted artificials;

Nastase Upset In French Open

PARIS (UPI) — Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., imposed his go-slow brand of tennis on Ilie Nastase today and upset the Romanian ace 6-4, 6-4, 0-6, 3-6, 6-4 in the quarterfinals of the French Open Tournament.

Nastase's loss left only one big star—18-year-old Swede Bjorn Borg—in the semifinals of the $200,000 tournament. Borg defeated Mexican Raul Ramirez 6-2, 5-7, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3 in a classy duel that ended under the lights of Roland Garros stadium's center court.

Solomon, a 5-6, 21-year-old who said "I love it here" on the slow red clay courts, sent Nastase sprawling three times for balls.

He kept Nastase chasing soft ground strokes and just when the tournament's defending champion was lulled by the pace, Solomon would send blazing two-handed backhands past him.

Nastase, who won 15 tournaments and $225,000 last year, won points when he hit hard as he usually does, but he did not do it often enough.

"I played Solomon's game some," the temperamental star said afterwards. "He has some bizarre shots and it's hard to find a way to combat them."

Solomon said frankly, "I just hit back a few more balls than he did. He could not match ground strokes with me."

In the close final set, Nastase argued repeatedly with linesmen and once served a deliberate double fault to protest a line call.

Caruso Joins Bluejay Staff

Omaha (AP) — Creighton University named Mike Caruso as assistant basketball coach Thursday and said his duties will begin immediately.

Caruso has been athletic director and basketball coach for the past year at Omaha Cathedral High School.

He was a three-year letterman at Creighton and captain in his 1970-71 season. He served two years as a graduate assistant coach at Creighton before going to Cathedral.

Giants Bounce Chicago

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gary Thomasson drove in the game's only run with a seventh inning single and Jim Barr pitched a six-hit shutout Thursday in leading the San Francisco Giants to a 1-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

The triumph snapped a four-game San Francisco losing streak and the route-going performance by Barr was only the seventh by the Giants' pitching staff in 63 games this season.

Barr struck out seven batters and walked two in evening his record at 3-3.

Bill Bonham was the hardluck Chicago loser. He gave up only five hits, and the San Francisco run off him was unearned as a result of a two-base error by first baseman Billy Williams.

Dougherty Scores Ace

Eleven-year-old Mike Dougherty of Lincoln fired a hole-in-one Tuesday at the Knolls Country Club course. Mike used a nine-iron on the 95-yard 11th hole.

Playing with him were brothers Tim and Pat Dougherty, Ron Gobel and Jeff Carr, all of Lincoln.

Hole-in-One

Dr. Norm Carlson scored a hole-in-one on the 140-yard 14th hole at the Lincoln Country Club Thursday. He used a 4-iron. Al Glandt, Dr. W. W. Carveth and Mutt Volz witnessed the feat.

8 ways to save money on air conditioning.

- 1 Set thermostat no lower than necessary for comfort—78 degrees is recommended. In the average 1,200 square foot home, you'll save as much as $25 during the air conditioning season by setting your thermostat at 78 rather than 73 degrees.
- 2 Replace disposable filters or clean permanent type filters at least once a month. Clogged filters make your air conditioner work harder and use more electricity.
- 3 Provide for adequate ventilation in your attic with vents that will exhaust heat and prevent heat buildup from radiating through the ceiling into your living areas.
- 4 See that the ceilings and walls of your home are properly insulated and that doors and windows are weatherstripped. A minimum of 6 inches of insulation in attics and 3 1/2 inches in outside walls is recommended.
- 5 Keep the outdoor unit free of grass or other obstructions that might prevent proper air circulation.
- 6 Keep windows and fireplace dampers closed to prevent the loss of cool air and the infiltration of hot air.
- 7 Shade windows from direct sunlight with awnings, blinds or draperies—this will reduce the amount of electricity your unit will use.
- 8 Leave the fan of your air conditioner on constantly. Air circulation reduces the need for cooling.

Remember...electricity is valuable. Please don't waste it.

Bankers Capture Swingfest Meet

By RANDY YORK

Ed Burke isn't ordinarily fond of puns, but he couldn't resist the opportunity Thursday at the Lincoln Country Club.

"Being a good banker, I didn't lose interest today," offered Burke, an Imperial banker, after he had combined with Lincoln banker Bob Hinds to win the Scotch 2-ball event to kick off the 21st annual Lincoln Country Club Swingfest.

Burke and Hinds, both of whom experienced poor practice rounds Wednesday, also started slow Thursday, but bounced back to fashion a 75 on rounds of 37 and 38.

Combined with a 16½ handicap (Hinds is a 16 and Burke a 17), the banking pair finished with a 58½ total to outdistance three other pairs carding 61's.

"We were very fortunate," admitted Hinds. "We had at least one ball in the fairway at all times. Generally it was Mr. Burke's."

Burke, who suffered through a practice round of 94 Wednesday with four balls out-of-bounds, admitted "I had an exceptional day with my woods. Things couldn't have gone much better."

The first three holes hardly signaled what was to come. The pair fashioned a bogey, a par and another bogey on the first three holes.

They registered three birdies enroute to their outstanding effort. Hinds knocked home a 50-foot putt on No. 9 for the most sensational birdie.

"It was unconscious," he conceded, "but it started us going. Then it was just a matter of holding ourselves together."

Burke, playing for the first time with Hinds, noted "we matched out very well and seemed to complement each other. We were lucky."

The banking pair hopes that luck will continue Friday and Saturday in separate 18-hole rounds of best ball play in the Swingfest. Shotgun starts both days are slated at 8:15 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Woody Hayes

Hayes Still In Hospital

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State's football coach, Woody Hayes, will be hospitalized at least two, maybe three, more weeks, his physicians said Thursday.

Hayes, 61, suffered a heart attack June 6.

The physicians attending Hayes at University Hospital, Drs. Joseph Ryan, Robert J. Murphy and Manuel Tzournis, said the coach has made satisfactory progress since being stricken.

"During the first few days, he had some heart irregularity which has completely stabilized during the past four days," they said in a statement issued through the university.

But they said the coach, entering his 24th season at Ohio State, will be kept in the coronary care unit as a precaution at least another week.

Hayes was stricken at his home the morning after he and his staff had completed preparations for fall drills. They were to have begun summer vacations, and to return to work in late August.

The doctors said Hayes had suffered no chest pains since the admission to the hospital, but they added that he would not be allowed visitors during his hospital recovery.

Royals Sign Eight Choices

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Royals announced Thursday the signing of eight more free agent draft choices, including two left-handed pitchers selected in early rounds.

Mike Williams, the Royals' top choice in the secondary phase of last week's draft, was one of those signing. He is a 19-year-old, 5-foot-11, 170-pounder from Temple Junior College in Texas.

He was drafted by Pittsburgh in June 1973 and by Atlanta in January 1974 but had not signed with either.

Hearing the list of signees among those drafted in the regular phase was Ed Sempritt of Danville, Ill. During the past year of high school and American Legion ball, Sempritt pitched 123 innings, struck out 179 and posted a 12-5 record. His games included five one-hitters and three two-hitters. He was the Royals' eighth-round selection.

True Knight Top Nominee

Omaha, Neb. (AP) — Ak-Sar-Ben officials said Wednesday that 51 nominations had been received for the June 22 running of the Board of Governors' Handicap.

The $50,000-added race is for horses three-years old and up, and will be contested a one mile and one sixteenth. Weights are to be assigned later this week.

Horses nominated for the Board of Governors' Handicap are also nominated for the $100,000-added Cornhusker Handicap July 6.

The Cornhusker will be the first $100,000 race in Nebraska history.

Among the nominees are Darby Dan Farm's True Knight, Sigmond Sommer's Prince Danton, Kenneth Opstein's Royal Knight, W. A. Lofton's Tom Tulle, Frazee & Frazee, Inc.'s Finalista, Enrique Ubarri's Everton II and Fred W. Hooper's Tri Jet.

True Knight has been among the nation's top handicap horses for the past several years. Last year, he won more than $200,000, and has already surpassed that figure this year.

Other nominees include:

Mr. Prospector, My Gallant, Indian, Ballywin, Restless Jet, Fair Test, Rasterfer, High Rover, Beau Julian, Dancer's Verde, Zogratos, Super Sail, Blazing Gypsy, Glory Run, Li Terry, Ben's Whiz, Headstrong, Please N Reason, Hey Rubie, Royal Gint, Mongongo, Mr. Correlation.

Nastase Upset In French Open

PARIS (UPI) — Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., imposed his go-slow brand of tennis on Ilie Nastase today and upset the Romanian ace 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4 in the quarterfinals of the French Open Tournament.

Nastase's loss left only one big star—18-year-old Swede Bjorn Borg—in the semifinals of the $200,000 tournament. Borg defeated Mexican Raul Ramirez 6-2, 5-7, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3 in a classy duel that ended under the lights of Roland Garros stadium's center court.

Solomon, a 5-6, 21-year-old who said "I love it here" on the slow red clay courts, sent Nastase sprawling three times for balls.

He kept Nastase chasing soft ground strokes and just when the tournament's defending champion was lulled by the pace, Solomon would send blazing two-handed backhands past him.

Nastase, who won 15 tournaments and $225,000 last year, won points when he hit hard as he usually does, but he did not do it often enough.

"I played Solomon's game some," the temperamental star said afterwards. "He has some bizarre shots and it's hard to find a way to combat them."

Solomon said frankly, "I just hit back a few more balls than he did. He could not match ground strokes with me."

In the close final set, Nastase argued repeatedly with linesmen and once served a deliberate double fault to protest a line call.

Caruso Joins Bluejay Staff

Omaha (AP) — Creighton University named Mike Caruso as assistant basketball coach Thursday and said his duties will begin immediately.

Caruso has been athletic director and basketball coach for the past year at Omaha Cathedral High School.

He was a three-year letterman at Creighton and captain in his 1970-71 season. He served two years as a graduate assistant coach at Creighton before going to Cathedral.

Giants Bounce Chicago

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gary Thomasson drove in the game's only run with a seventh inning single and Jim Barr pitched a six-hit shutout Thursday in leading the San Francisco Giants to a 1-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

The triumph snapped a four-game San Francisco losing streak and the route-going performance by Barr was only the seventh by the Giants' pitching staff in 63 games this season.

Barr struck out seven batters and walked two in evening his record at 3-3.

Bill Bonham was the hardluck Chicago loser. He gave up only five hits, and the San Francisco run off him was unearned as a result of a two-base error by first baseman Billy Williams.

Dougherty Scores Ace

Eleven-year-old Mike Dougherty of Lincoln fired a hole-in-one Tuesday at the Knolls Country Club course. Mike used a nine-iron on the 95-yard 11th hole.

Playing with him were brothers Tim and Pat Dougherty, Ron Gobel and Jeff Carr, all of Lincoln.

Hole-in-One

Dr. Norm Carlson scored a hole-in-one on the 140-yard 14th hole at the Lincoln Country Club Thursday. He used a 4-iron. Al Glandt, Dr. W. W. Carveth and Mutt Volz witnessed the feat.

Brazil Held To 0-0 Draw

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Brazil, the defending champions, were held to a 0-0 draw by Yugoslavia Thursday as the World Soccer Cup started at half pace in driving rain, amid an unprecedented security clamp-down.

German police, haunted by the bloodshed of the Arab attack on the Israelis at the Munich Olympics, arrested two alleged terrorists within 24 hours of the kick-off. A Palestinian student in Saarbruecken was charged with plotting raids on Israeli installations and a World Cup stadium.

A Jordanian medical student in Heidelberg was accused of being a member of the Black September organization. At Frankfurt's Wald Stadium, a sellout crowd of 62,000 were checked and searched as they filed in to watch the opening ceremony and the Brazil-Yugoslavia clash, the only game scheduled Thursday.

But the only subversive agent at the match was the rain. The grass was badly worn in patches, and as it became saturated both teams found it difficult to play football. The Brazilians—without the great Pele, who has retired from international soccer—only occasionally looked like the team that won the trophy three times out of four between 1958 and 1970. It was a slow ball game, both teams apparently wary of the treacherous surface.

The Brazilians ruled the first half. Their defense looked strong and was never beaten in the air. Their attacks, fired by the brilliant Roberto Rivelino, came near to a goal several times. A cannonball free-kick by Francisco Marinho from 30 yards was tipped over the crossbar by goalkeeper Enver Maric.

Jairzinho, one of the survivors from Brazil's 1970 team, burst through the middle and shot wide. But again Maric helped to foil Brazil, running out and narrowing the angle as Jairzinho shot.

The Yugoslavs weathered the storm and hit back with menacing attacks in the second half. Their manager, Milan Milijanic, claimed he took the sting out of the Brazilian attack by moving his midfield men forward to stifle Rivelino's moves. Rivelino faded and Dragan Dzajic, superstar of the Yugoslav team, came more into the game.

Dzajic had a quiet first half and missed one good scoring chance. In the second half he hit stride and pulled gaps in the Brazilian defense. The Brazilians had one dramatic escape when a header by Ivo Surjak hit the post. Brazil and Yugoslavia are in group 2 with Scotland and Zaire, who meet at Dortmund Friday. West Germany faces Chile in Berlin and East Germany meets Australia in Group 1 games Friday.

Deer Permits Scarce

Permits in all but one Nebraska deer hunting unit have been sold, and only a few are still available in the remaining area, reports the Game and Parks Commission.

Only permits remaining as of Thursday afternoon were 40 in the Upper Platte Unit, and another 59 in a special sub-unit of that area good only for antlerless deer. These remaining 99 permits are being sold on a first-come, first-served basis.

Other items of interest to outdoorsmen involves recent fishing activity across the state. According to conservation officers in the field, outdoor activity includes:

- PANHANDLE — Smith Lake (Sheridan County) — northern pike to 4 pounds hitting artificial; bullheads at night on worms.
- Fine Creek (Sheridan County) — 10-inch brown trout hitting worms and artificial.
- Box Butte Reservoir (Hemphill) — northern pike and walleye, averaging 3 pounds, and smallmouth bass to 2 pounds, all going for trolled artificials.
- Lake Ogallala — 34-pound perch on worms; rainbow trout on salmon eggs.
- Lake McCaughy (Ogallala) — walleye, averaging 2 pounds, on trolled spinner-nightcrawler combinations; white bass on trolled artificials.

1 Set thermostat no lower than necessary for comfort—78 degrees is recommended. In the average 1,200 square foot home, you'll save as much as $25 during the air conditioning season by setting your thermostat at 78 rather than 73 degrees.

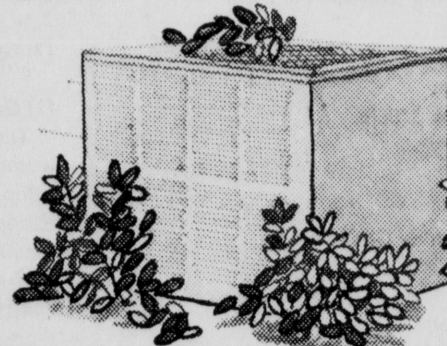

2 Replace disposable filters or clean permanent type filters at least once a month. Clogged filters make your air conditioner work harder and use more electricity.

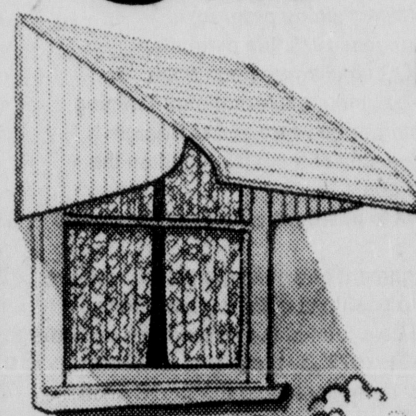

3 Provide for adequate ventilation in your attic with vents that will exhaust heat and prevent heat buildup from radiating through the ceiling into your living areas.

4 See that the ceilings and walls of your home are properly insulated and that doors and windows are weatherstripped. A minimum of 6 inches of insulation in attics and 3 1/2 inches in outside walls is recommended.

5 Keep the outdoor unit free of grass or other obstructions that might prevent proper air circulation.

6 Keep windows and fireplace dampers closed to prevent the loss of cool air and the infiltration of hot air.

7 Shade windows from direct sunlight with awnings, blinds or draperies—this will reduce the amount of electricity your unit will use.

8 Leave the fan of your air conditioner on constantly. Air circulation reduces the need for cooling.

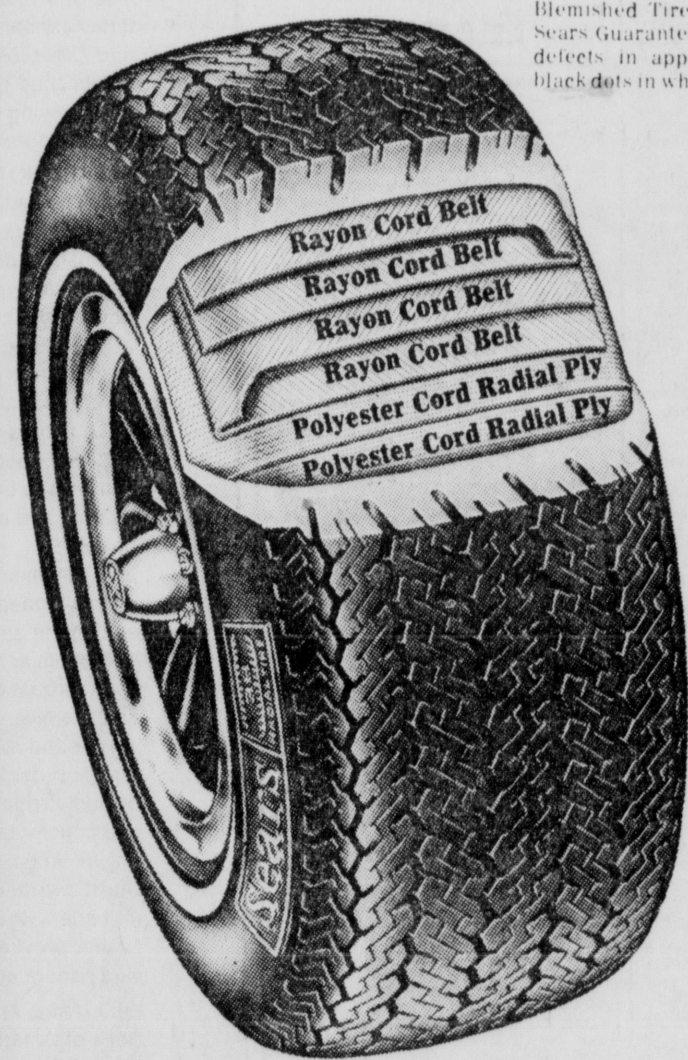

Remember...electricity is valuable. Please don't waste it.

Irregularities Reported In Cass County Election

By The Associated Press
The secretary of state's office is in a quandary over irregularities reported in a school board election in Cass County.

A series of complicated factors are involved in the election of three members of the Murdock School Board. There were four candidates, and the top three vote getters were elected.

In an interview Thursday, Deputy Secretary of State Ralph Englert who investigated the election, reported these facts:

Cass County Clerk W. J. B. McDonald failed to make ballots for the school board election available for 22 voters in the Center precinct, and for 21 voters in the Greenwood precinct.

Englert said the failure was an oversight, and that there was no question of intent.

lots. Asked if that were illegal, Englert first said "well, it isn't according to Hoyle," but then said that it definitely was illegal, and that each of the 22 persons could be subjected to a 30-day jail sentence and a $100 fine for voting in a precinct where they were not registered.

Englert also said that election officials in Murdock erred in letting the 22 vote, and that they could also be subjected to legal action if the case went to court.

"They should have challenged them," Englert said.

He said the Murdock officials had no way of knowing whether the 22 were even registered to vote, but did know they were not registered in that precinct.

The Greenwood voters simply cast no ballots, Englert said.

Secretary of State Allen Beermann has three options: let the election stand, set it aside and order a special election, or allow the 21 voters from Greenwood to cast ballots now and add them to the election figures.

Beermann reportedly has asked two citizens, Oscar Olson and Billy Schulke, both of Alvo, to file suit over the election. Beermann has commended both men for their interest in the matter, but neither wish to take the case to court.

In addition, the woman who came in fourth in the election, Margaret Zierott, failed to contest the election within 20 days and is now ineligible to do so.

Beermann, who is still considering the matter, says it does not believe it would be fair to simply allow the 21 Greenwood voters to cast ballots.

Rikka received just 84 votes, while Ross Rikka won the third place seat on the board with 99. The 21 voters know that Zierott would need just 15 ballots to defeat Rikka.

William A. Zoz received 170 votes and Merlin Reinke 132, meaning the 21 votes outstanding would not affect their election.

Minden's Danish Festival Features Old World Food

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Minden — The Swedish smorgasbord may be better known, but call it that here this weekend and you may get one Danish meatball in the snoot.

It's a "smorrebord" which will be served up to hundreds of Danes and their friends at the newest of Nebraska's ethnic festivals. The revival of Old World heritage runs from Friday night through Sunday.

As explained by Don Thomsen, festival chairman and president of the sponsoring Danish Brotherhood, the free translation of smorrebord is "many kinds of dainty sandwiches."

Smorgasbord, the kind of fare set forth at Stromsburg's Swedish Festival which also is this weekend, means many kinds of meat.

In practice both of the Scandinavian feasts are always expanded in all manner of tasties, from salads to pickled fish to specialty desserts. As for the latter, the very mention of aebleskiver (applecake) sets a true Dane to lip-smacking.

With Danish descendants comprising an estimated 40% of the populace in and around Minden, ebelskiver pans will see much festival use in baking the rounded pancakes which are another food favorite. Some 30 gallons of sodepop, a fruit soup served hot or cold, also is in the offing.

After the success of a small festival as part of the 125th anniversary of Fort Darnley last year, local Danes decided their nationality deserved such attention annually. They hope the festival will eventually compare with those of "our friends, the Irish, Czechs, Germans, Poles and Swedes."

"We want to walk before we run, so we don't have as many events as Wilber and O'Neill and some of the other towns," said Thomsen, a seed dealer whose wife Edith is as full-blooded Danish as he is. "Still, our motels were booked full with reservations several months ago. And we should have 100 local people or so in costumes."

Since last year's observance was on June 13, the sponsoring brotherhood, basically an insurance-type lodge, decided that should be the date of an annual state "Danish Day." Gov. J. James Exon recently signed a proclamation so indicating.

Perhaps the liveliest of this year's entertainment will be a Saturday afternoon appearance by the Jada Dancers of Omaha. Costume judging, and evening dance and preliminary screening of king and queen contestants are other highlights.

Dr. Earl R. Mezzoff, president of Dana College, will speak at 3 p.m. Saturday. State Sen. Gary Anderson of Astoria, who incidentally is a Swede, will speak Sunday afternoon.

Church services, featuring a Danish liturgy, are scheduled at 8:30 a.m. Sunday in the Pioneer Village chapel. A noon catered picnic is planned at Band Shell Park.

The festival opens Friday night with a presentation of "Mark Twain's Traveling Sunshine Show" by the Continental Theatre Group. Other features include an antique flea market and a drawing for collector-item Danish plates.

Stock Market Makes Weak Rally Attempt

New York (AP) — The stock market made a weak attempt to rally Thursday but finished the session with little to show for it.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 3.52 at 852.08, precisely offsetting its 3.52 drop the previous day.

The New York Stock Exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks gained .12 to 48.50, but declines slightly outnumbered advances on the Big Board.

NYSE volume remained light at 11.54 million shares. Prices showed little inclination to move much in either direction through most of the morning.

At midday, a mild wave of selective buying, particularly in blue-chip and glamour issues, pushed the Dow to a temporary gain of better than 7 points.

When that upswing failed to generate any significant support, however, the market sank back toward the close.

The quiet on Wall Street was almost completely undisturbed by the Labor Department's report that its wholesale price index spurted at a 15.6 per cent seasonally adjusted annual rate in May.

Analysts said a bulge had been widely expected in the aftermath of the expiration of price controls April 30.

Also, observed Kenneth W. Johnson at the Minneapolis-based Piper, Jaffray & Hopwood, "The thing that everybody is looking at right now is interest rates."

Specifically, analysts said, many investors were waiting for the figures on business borrowing which are released weekly after the market close Thursday by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

Investors have been watching those figures closely in recent weeks for signs of an easing in loan demand that might presage a downturn in interest rates.

This week's figures, as it turned out, showed a steep $421 million rise in business loans at major New York City banks, although analysts said the figure was almost surely swollen by companies borrowing to meet a June 15 tax deadline.

Clores Co. was the NYSE volume leader, down 1/4 at 7 1/2. A 315,100-share block of the stock changed hands at 7 1/2 shortly before the close, and an additional 25,000 shares were traded at the same price on the Pacific Stock Exchange.

Digital Equipment, which sold securities analysts it expected continued rapid growth, bounced 3/4 to 112 1/2. Two blue-chip stocks, however, tumbled for about half of the Dow's advance. Du Pont, up 2 1/2 at 72 1/2, and U. S. Steel, 1 1/2 higher at 44 1/2.

Semiconductor issues were strong, rebounding from their recent declines. Motorola added 1 1/2 to 56 1/2. Texas Instruments was up 1/2 to 92 1/2, and National Semiconductor rose 1/2 to 16 1/2.

On the American Stock Exchange, Phoenix Steel was up 1/4 at 4 1/2. The company reported a sharp earnings improvement for the first five months of this year.

The Amex' market value index declined 3/4 to 84 1/2. In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite closed at 83.24, up 1/4.

POSTCARD

Delaney

"What do women want?" asked the despairing Freud. From the time he ran the first cookie through the psychic cookie cutter to the end of his days, he found no answer.

No alone. "American women baffle American businessmen," an advertising bloke reported. He had been out interviewing housewives.

Ordinarily the ad types don't admit to being baffled. But this fellow is in motivation research: Why do you do what you do?

The baffled businessman is a candidate for liar's dice.

These motivation men find OUT what they want. Then their client sells it to them.

Sunny days and deep thinking around Snug Harbor.

"Can I have a dollar?" said the moppet. We both know what SHE wants. An after-school hot fudge sundae. (We were on a diet. We gave it up for a simple reason: "I got hungry all the time.")

That men are baffled by women is not big news. But you can't run Big Business sitting around on your baffle.

Industry must harness this buying power or the cupboard of the Board will soon be bare.

The cake mix man comes up with: "No Worry About Fallen Cakes With New Fall-Out Cake Mix."

Nun Becomes An Osteopath

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Rosemary Havey, a Dominican nun who just graduated from Michigan State University with a doctor of osteopathy degree, says she plans to hang out a shingle in some rural area.

"Any way we can use whatever talents to bring better quality of life to people is very appropriate," said Dr. Havey, who is 44.

She is celebrating her 25th year as a nun and will intern in Detroit before moving to a rural area. She said she will still live on her stipend as a nun, and any more that she makes will go to the order.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

"What do women want?" asked the despairing Freud. From the time he ran the first cookie through the psychic cookie cutter to the end of his days, he found no answer.

No alone. "American women baffle American businessmen," an advertising bloke reported. He had been out interviewing housewives.

Ordinarily the ad types don't admit to being baffled. But this fellow is in motivation research: Why do you do what you do?

The baffled businessman is a candidate for liar's dice.

It's a new and marvelous tool, this motivation research. No sitting around saying: "What do women want?"

These motivation men find OUT what they want. Then their client sells it to them.

Sunny days and deep thinking around Snug Harbor.

"Can I have a dollar?" said the moppet. We both know what SHE wants. An after-school hot fudge sundae. (We were on a diet. We gave it up for a simple reason: "I got hungry all the time.")

That men are baffled by women is not big news. But you can't run Big Business sitting around on your baffle.

Industry must harness this buying power or the cupboard of the Board will soon be bare.

The cake mix man comes up with: "No Worry About Fallen Cakes With New Fall-Out Cake Mix."

Nun Becomes An Osteopath

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Rosemary Havey, a Dominican nun who just graduated from Michigan State University with a doctor of osteopathy degree, says she plans to hang out a shingle in some rural area.

"Any way we can use whatever talents to bring better quality of life to people is very appropriate," said Dr. Havey, who is 44.

She is celebrating her 25th year as a nun and will intern in Detroit before moving to a rural area. She said she will still live on her stipend as a nun, and any more that she makes will go to the order.

The cake doesn't fall, but the sales fall like crazy. They turn loose the bloodhouse of motivation. Big fees, small answers.

"We find," says the motivation expert, "that most housewives have guilt feelings. They worry about not being needed. Like cake already prepared and it wouldn't fall if you put a bomb under it."

He fixes up the housewife psyche by putting on the package: "Add one egg and beat."

This takes care of guilt feelings — and gives the girl a little exercise too.

She cracks and beats the egg into the mix. She says: "At least I'm doing SOMETHING useful."

(And Freud sat around giving them free association. Better he should have given them an egg to sit on.)

While making his rounds, the research man turned up some side lines.

He said: "We found 49 percent of the housewives think they are overweight. And 40 percent are absolutely right."

"Sex plays a big part in the hidden feelings of the housewife," he said. "And this should be considered in any sales plan."

"The housewife is bombarded in the papers, in the magazines with how sex can be improved. "Pretty soon she looks on this project like it was some kind of thunderbolt. No thunderbolts are hitting her. She says: 'So what's wrong with me?'"

Now industry knows what women want. They tool up the girdle machines: "Easy Foam Does It Easy." But — nobody buys girdles.

The motivation man comes back. He says: "I find girdles represent a confining influence. The typical housewife doesn't like confinement."

Exon Won't Let Roads Suffer In Funds Feud

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon said Thursday Nebraska's highway construction program will not be allowed to suffer as a result of his feud with Federal Highway Administrator Norbert T. Tiemann over 42 tourist attraction signs along Interstate 80.

"If we come to the place where we're losing (federal) money or delaying our (construction) program, I regretfully will remove the signs," Exon told newsmen gathered in front of one of the signs along I-80 just west of Lincoln.

Trying to speak above the din of passing trucks, Exon said, "The signs will stay as long as we can keep them here."

Injunction Favored

He said he has talked to Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer about Tiemann's decision to withhold approval for $39 million in federal highway projects until the signs are removed. Exon said he favors seeking an injunction to prevent any loss of funds and lodging a lawsuit to determine the validity of Tiemann's decision.

As of Thursday afternoon, Exon and State Engineer Thomas Doyle had only seen copies of Tiemann's letter cutting off funds; he said he is still awaiting his copy which was reportedly sent early this week.

Doyle said the next scheduled bid letting affected by the cut-off is in late August. Consequently, Exon has approximately 60 days to get a court order, presumably from U.S. District Judge Warren Urbom, forbidding a cut-off until the issue is settled.

Erected In 1972

The signs, which were erected in 1972 as part of an experiment approved by the federal government, were ordered removed by June 1 because they do not conform to sign regulations. They were used to inform tourists of public, non-profit attractions along the Interstate. The signs, which measure 9 feet by 20 feet, are approximately 35 feet from the pavement, Doyle said.

Exon and Doyle acknowledged that the signs could be moved back 220 yards and be approved.

Roads Suffer In Funds Feud

But to do that, they said, would cost $35,000 and would minimize their impact. Exon said the signs were designed to best catch the motorist's eye where they are.

'Tiemann In A Box'

Legally, Exon said he believes he "really has Gov. Tiemann in a box" despite the fact the signs violate state-federal agreements.

Exon turned the hot setting for the news conference into a kind of "show-and-tell" about why he and Doyle disagree with Tiemann.

Stopping first at one of the 23 signs giving motorists the frequencies of local radio stations, Exon said the blurb-colored sign, which is closer to the pavement than the tourist signs, will stay under Tiemann's order.

Exon then walked a number of yards back to one of the larger tourist signs announcing the exit for the State Capitol and the University of Nebraska and noted that Tiemann has ordered it down.

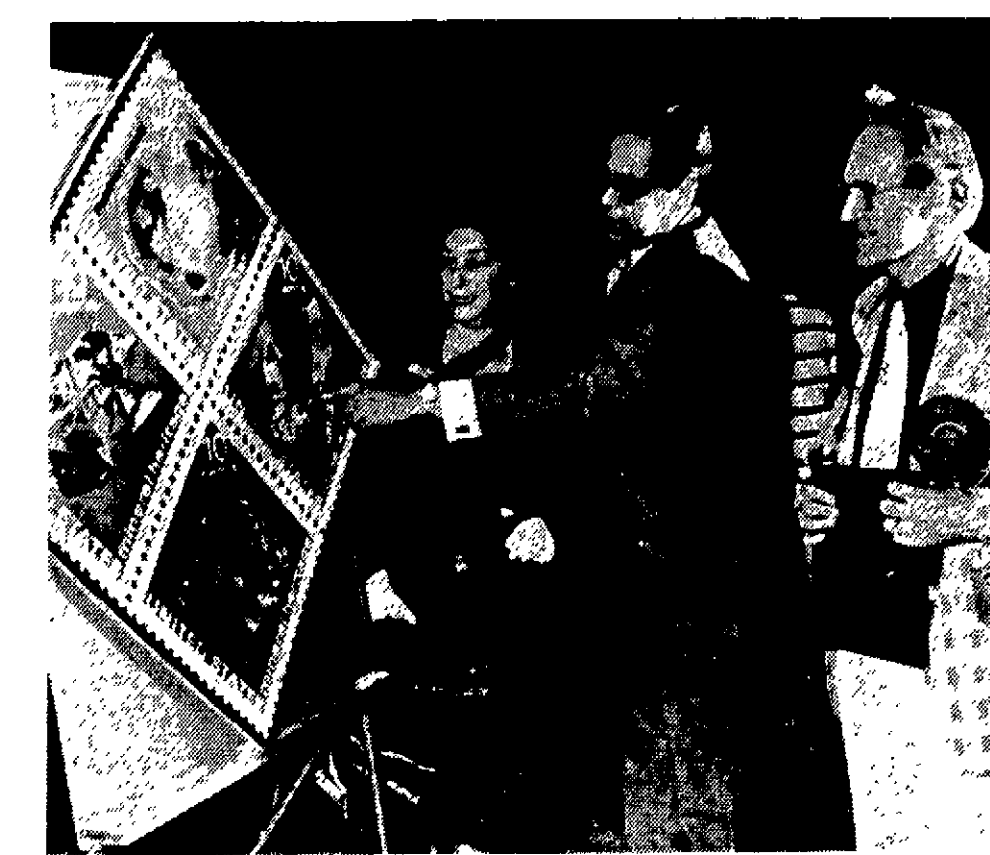

'Arbitrary'

To allow the radio signs to stand while forcing the tourist signs to come down, Exon said, is "arbitrary" and "silly."

Exon took after Sen. Richard Marvel, his Republican opponent in the November gubernatorial race, as well as Tiemann, whom he defeated in the 1970 gubernatorial race.

Marvel, he said, should come out from behind "his partisanship and help save the signs for their value to the state's tourism industry."

Refusing to elaborate, Exon said, "There may be some partisan political considerations in this." Letters from U.S. Sen. Roman Hruska and Rep. Dave Martin have contained some "faulty information" about federal involvement in the experiment, Doyle said.

Rock Show Is Real Gem; First-Day Crowd, 10,000

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

For rockhounds used to the hit-and-miss of hunting on their own, the National Gem and Mineral Show is a real goldmine. They can leave their digging duds behind and easily view every sort of earthly extraction imaginable gathered under several roofs at the State Fairgrounds.

Opening-day crowds, estimated at 10,000, filled the 3,000-car paved parking area by 10:30 a.m.

Ceremonies for the first day issue of mineral heritage stamps attracted a large audience in the open air auditorium.

'When I Lick It'

Mrs. Milton Turner, Bethesda, Md. who worked for 10 years to make the stamp a reality, said she'll "believe it when I lick it." Asst. Postmaster General William Dunlap, on hand for the occasion, explained that the Postal Service commemorates only 15 stamps a year from over 4,000 recommendations. "We make 15 friends and 3,985 enemies a year," he jested.

Such commemorative stamps are used "to deliver messages of national interest, not just to deliver the mail," Dunlap remarked.

Diamond Shape

By rotating the square format of the stamps 45 degrees, designer Leonard F. Buckley, also in Lincoln for the first-day festivities, achieved a nearly perfect diamond shape for the individual 10-cent stamps and for the set of four.

Available Friday for public sale outside Lincoln the colorful set features the amethyst, rhodochrosite, tourmaline and petrified wood. The stamps were being sold in Lincoln Thursday.

Inside the Exposition Hall Charles Schafer's patchwork spheres of polished stones brought ooh's and ah's to the lips of passersby.

Others stopped by James Ennenga's exhibit for some tips on making turquoise jewelry. Harry, Margaret and Richard Hohnholt of the Fort Kearny Rock Club displayed family pictures in frames of hollowed out sections of geodes and Brazilian agate.

Petrified Wood

Craftsmen making jewelry, painting miniature pictures on stone and arranging colored sands in glass bottles or lamp bases gathered crowds around them as they worked.

Friday's activities feature open lectures on "Archeology of the Midwest" and the "Pleazy Monster Dig", among others.

And the day will close with dancing at 9 p.m. to the Oliver Hotsie Totsie Polka Band.

Glum Stockmen Look Into Future

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

North Platte — Members of the Nebraska Stockgrowers Association were a glum lot Thursday as they assembled for the business session of their 85th annual convention here.

A part of the depression stems from lower livestock prices, but there seems to be a psychological pall over the organization as it sought to look into the future.

Wray Finney, an Oklahoma cattleman who is vice president of the American National Cattlemen's Association, sought to dispell the gloom by telling the group that efforts to expand the consumption of beef were beginning to bring the consumers back to the meat counters.

Get On The Phone

Finney also urged every stockgrower to get on the telephone and call his congressman and senators to ask that beef import quotas be reinstated. The quotas were suspended by President Nixon at the time of the beef price freeze last year.

A report read to the convention by Tom Landers of Hot Springs, S.D., indicated that 40 Democratic members of the U.S. Congress were sending a joint letter to the President asking for a reinstatement of the import quota.

"This may not make a big difference in prices, but it would give the beef industry a badly needed shot in the arm psychologically," Landers said.

Nancy Harvey Steorts, special assistant to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz for consumer affairs, told the cattlemen that efforts to increase the sale of meat by featuring beef in specials was a mistake.

"What is needed to bring the housewife back to the meat counter is an across-the-board cut in the price of all meats," she said.

Mrs. Steorts said that housewives were turning away from convenient food items in favor of more staple foods that require more work in preparing meals.

Her statement was backed by John Story, director of perishables for Supermarket Interstate Inc. of Omaha. Story agreed that homemakers were abandoning items with expensive built-in maid service in favor of doing the services themselves to save money.

Story called on the stockgrowers to reduce the amount of fat in the body cavities of beef cattle, but warned against taking too much fat off the outside of cattle.

"Carried too far, that can result in a lower quality carcass," he warned.

Story told the cattlemen that hog producers had achieved a much better quality product by better breeding practices, and suggested that beef producers should follow the pork producers' example.

Research Backed

Dr. Duane Acker, vice chancellor for agriculture at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, put in a strong plug for research programs for agriculture, pointing to the production of calf scour vaccine resulting from research at UNL.

Acker brought up the possibility of establishing a college of veterinary medicine at NU. "We will have 70 students in other states next fall studying veterinary medicine, as well as 130 in pre-veterinary medicine studies in Lincoln," he said.

"We are preparing a study of the various alternatives available to us," he added.

Officers elected to one-year terms Thursday were Calvin Coulter, Bridgeport, president; Jack Maddux, Wauneta, vice president and Mickey Stewart, Alliance, secretary-treasurer.

Eagle Delegates OK Grant To Med School

Delegates to the 70th annual convention of the Nebraska Fraternal Order of Eagles Thursday approved donations of nearly $8,000 to various projects in the state.

The largest amount was a $5,000 grant to the Creighton University Medical School in Omaha for cancer research. The grant was made possible through the Damon Runyan Cancer Research Fund maintained by the national Eagles organization.

Also approved were $1,000 to the Good Samaritan Village in Hastings, $1,000 from the Eagles Auxiliary to the All Faiths Chapel planned for the Beatrice State Home and $750 from the auxiliary to the Braille Foundation in Lincoln.

More than $25,000 in donations to various other projects and charities are expected to be announced at a banquet Saturday night.

In other business, Earl McKean of Scottsbluff was nominated to succeed Rick Haral of Columbus as state president. McKean is the current vice president.

Other nominations include John Vanosdall, Grand Island, vice president; Leo Eaton, Grand Island, secretary and George Toth, Omaha, treasurer.

Election of officers will be Friday morning, with installation scheduled for Saturday.

An estimated 2,000 to 2,500 Eagles and auxiliary members are attending the convention.

Accident Kills Man

A 31-year-old Lincoln man, Larry Leon Coble, of 6630 Lexington, died Thursday at Lincoln General Hospital after he sustained severe head injuries in a jeep accident early Wednesday morning.

Police said Coble was driving a convertible jeep northbound on 56th when the jeep left the road, re-entered the road and rolled three or four times. Police said Coble was thrown from the vehicle.

Funeral services are scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday at St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

Milford Balloon Lands In Ohio

Milford — Mitch Koch, 14, has received word that three helium-filled balloons he released here May 4 were found in Botkins, Ohio. Koch attached his name and a taped message to the balloons which were given away at the Tech Fair held at the Southeast Community College open house last month. The balloons were discovered by Tim Buehler near his home in Shelby County, about 20 miles south of Lima, Ohio.

Halbert Named To City Attorney's Post

Falls City — Richard Halbert has been appointed city attorney here by Mayor Dale L. Shaffer. A graduate of the University of Nebraska Law College in 1968, Halbert served as deputy Hall County attorney at Grand Island before coming to Falls City.

Dils Selected As Sidney City Manager

Sidney — Mayard Dils, 43, city manager at Eaton, Ohio, has been hired as city manager at Sidney and is expected to begin his duties sometime in July. He will succeed Ed Prince here.

Dr. Harsh Cited For Service

McCook — Dr. Stephen B. Harsh of Lansing, Mich., recently received an award in Washington from U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz. The award was given to members of a project in cooperative extension service at Michigan State University. Dr. Harsh is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Harsh of McCook.

Arapahoe — T. M. Gill of Lexington has purchased Arapahoe's Public Mirror and The Holbrook Observer from Boss Publications Inc. The main business offices are located in Arapahoe. For the past three years, Gill has been associated with the Tri-City Tribune in Cozad as Lexington editor.

Mrs. Mikesell New Dawes County Clerk

Chadron — Mrs. Florence Mikesell has been appointed Dawes County clerk, replacing Rose Mackey. Miss Mackey resigned, citing health reasons for the action, after holding the position for seven terms.

Wheat Field Day Set For Sidney

Sidney — The annual Wheat Field Day tour at the University of Nebraska High Plains Agricultural Laboratory will be Thursday, June 20. The lab is five miles north of Sidney. The tour will start at 1:30 p.m. at the lab headquarters.

Tim Green Elected Governor At Cornhusker Boys State

Tim Green of Omaha won his bid for governor of the 1974 Cornhusker Boys State Thursday, defeating Nationalist party candidate Kevin Stark of Ceresco in a close race.

The official returns were not released, according to sponsoring American Legion policy.

Green, 16, will be a senior at Omaha Northwest High School. The Federalist Party winner will be inaugurated Friday afternoon as the week-long Boys State comes to a close.

In one of his last official acts, Boys State Gov. Daniel J. Roh of David City appointed Stark, 17, director of the State Department of Administrative Services.

One Bill Vetted

Roh, elected by the 1973 delegation to serve this year, vetoed Thursday a bill passed by the Boys State Legislature which would have permitted a competent person to request that no steps be taken to prolong his life, if he were dying of an incurable disease.

But Gov. Roh signed eight other bills to:

- Reinstate the death penalty in murder cases involving rape, kidnapping or a law enforcement officer.

Drunk Driving Count Against Fremont's Attorney Revised

Fremont (AP) — "The question here concerns his driver's license, not his license to the bar association."

That was one of the reasons Dodge County Atty. Gordon Gobel gave Thursday for amending while under the influence of alcohol charges to first offense charges against Fremont City Atty. Lyle Gill.

Under the revised charges, Gill 57, was fined $100 plus court costs Wednesday, his driver's license was suspended for one year and he was placed on one

—Change Nebraska's state bird from the Western Meadowlark to the prairie chicken.

—Declare the fourth Monday in May Memorial Day, complying with federal guidelines.

—Lower the age of majority from 19 to 18.

—Make unlawful providing minors with obscene material, punishable by a $1,000 fine or a year in jail or both.

—Legalize a state-wide lottery and off-track betting.

To Go To Exon

Boys State Secretary Ray Olman said the bills will be forwarded to Gov. J. James Exon's office and the Clerk of the Legislature.

"We think it's of value to state government to know what the young people are thinking," Olman said.

Outgoing Gov. Roh, a David City Aquinas graduate who intends to enroll in the University of Nebraska-Lincoln engineering school this fall, said he views his role as 1974 Boys State governor "as kind of a counselor."

After Boys State last year, he was selected as one of two Nebraska delegates to Boys Nation in Washington, D.C., "the highlight of my life," he said in an interview.

Roh Speaks

Since then, Roh said, he has spoken about "what kind of a program we have here and how good it is" at his school to Butler County groups and at the American Legion district meeting and state convention.

Roh has also served the past year on the Nebraska Commission on Drugs — appointed by Gov. Exon — and on the State Board of Education advisory panel on Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

He said he has an inkling but no firm plans yet to enter politics eventually.

year's probation with the county's Alcohol Safety Action Program (ASAP).

Gobel said he amended the second and third offense charges to first offense charges because "that's the normal procedure by which the ASAP program works and because conditions of second and third offense DWI could end his legal practice."

Gobel said Thursday he handled the case the way he did because "it was reported to me that certain individuals were attempting to have Mr. Gill disbarred. Mr. Gill should be barred from driving an automobile, not from practicing law. DWI is not a sufficient reason in and of itself to disbar a man of his law practice."

Gobel said decisions on how to handle Gill's case after hearing recommendations from Gill's pastor, city officials and doctors at Immanuel Lutheran Hospital in Omaha after the results of ASAP's pre-sentence investigation were announced.

"The important thing," he said, "is that Mr. Gill will be prevented from driving an automobile so he won't be in danger of hurting somebody on the street."

Exon Won't Let Roads Suffer In Funds Feud

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon said Thursday Nebraska's highway construction program will not be allowed to suffer as a result of his feud with Federal Highway Administrator Norbert T. Tiemann over 42 tourist attraction signs along Interstate 80.

"If we come to the place where we're losing (federal) money or delaying our (construction) program, I regretfully will remove the signs," Exon told newsmen gathered in front of one of the signs along I-80 just west of Lincoln.

Trying to speak above the din of passing trucks, Exon said, "The signs will stay as long as we can keep them here."

Injunction Favored

He said he has talked to Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer about Tiemann's decision to withhold approval for $39 million in federal highway projects until the signs are removed. Exon said he favors seeking an injunction to prevent any loss of funds and lodging a lawsuit to determine the validity of Tiemann's decision.

As of Thursday afternoon, Exon and State Engineer Thomas Doyle had only seen copies of Tiemann's letter cutting off funds; he said he is still awaiting his copy which was reportedly sent early this week.

Doyle said the next scheduled bid letting affected by the cut-off is in late August. Consequently, Exon has approximately 60 days to get a court order, presumably from U.S. District Judge Warren Urbom, forbidding a cut-off until the issue is settled.

Erected In 1972

The signs, which were erected in 1972 as part of an experiment approved by the federal government, were ordered removed by June 1 because they do not conform to sign regulations. They were used to inform tourists of public, non-profit attractions along the Interstate. The signs, which measure 9 feet by 20 feet, are approximately 35 feet from the pavement, Doyle said.

Exon and Doyle acknowledged that the signs could be moved back 220 yards and be approved.

But to do that, they said, would cost $35,000 and would minimize their impact. Exon said the signs were designed to best catch the motorist's eye where they are.

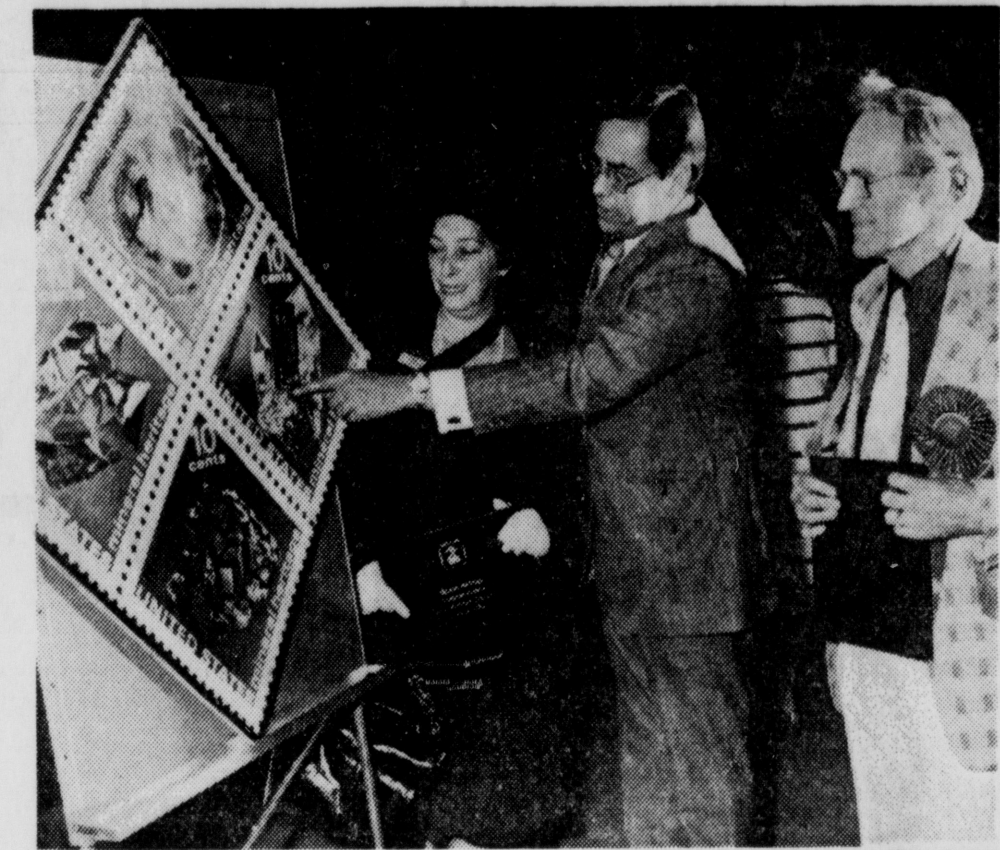

'Tiemann In A Box'

Legally, Exon said he believes he "really has Gov. Tiemann in a box" despite the fact the signs violate state-federal agreements.

Exon turned the hot setting for the news conference into a kind of "show-and-tell" about why he and Doyle disagree with Tiemann.

Stopping first at one of the 23 signs giving motorists the frequencies of local radio stations, Exon said the blurred-colored sign, which is closer to the pavement than the tourist signs, will stay under Tiemann's order.

Exon then walked a number of yards back to one of the larger tourist signs announcing the exit for the State Capitol and the University of Nebraska and noted that Tiemann has ordered it down.

Rock Show Is Real Gem; First-Day Crowd, 10,000

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

For rockhounds used to the hit-and-miss of hunting on their own, the National Gem and Mineral Show is a real goldmine.

They can leave their digging duties behind and easily view every sort of earthly extraction imaginable gathered under several roofs at the State Fairgrounds.

Opening-day crowds, estimated at 10,000, filled the 3,000-car paved parking area by 10:30 a.m.

Ceremonies for the first day issue of mineral heritage stamps attracted a large audience in the open air auditorium.

'When I Lick It'

Mrs. Milton Turner, Bethesda, Md. who worked for 10 years to make the stamp a reality, said she'll "believe it when I lick it."

Asst. Postmaster General William Dunlap, on hand for the occasion, explained that the Postal Service commemorates only 15 stamps a year from over 4,000 recommendations. "We make 15 friends and 3,985 enemies a year," he jested.

Such commemorative stamps are used "to deliver messages of national interest, not just to deliver the mail," Dunlap remarked.

Diamond Shape

By rotating the square format of the stamps 45 degrees, designer Leonard F. Buckley, also in Lincoln for the first-day festivities, achieved a nearly perfect diamond shape for the individual 10-cent stamps and for the set of four.

Available Friday for public sale outside Lincoln the colorful set features the amethyst, rhodochrosite, tourmaline and petrified wood. The stamps were being sold in Lincoln Thursday.

Inside the Exposition Hall Charles Schaefer's patchwork spheres of polished stones brought ooh's and ah's to the lips of passersby.

Others stopped by James Ennenga's exhibit for some tips on making turquoise jewelry.

Harry, Margaret and Richard Hohnholt of the Fort Kearny Rock Club displayed family pictures in frames of hollowed out sections of geodes and Brazilian agate.

Petrified Wood

Huge, glossy, brilliantly-colored pieces of Arizona petrified wood from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bass of Vermillion, S.D., offered an outstanding contrast to the couple's adjoining case of intricately marbled Mexican lace.

Craftsmen making jewelry, painting miniature pictures on stone and arranging colored sands in glass bottles or lamp bases gathered crowds around them as they worked.

Friday's activities feature open lectures on "Archeology of the Midwest" and the "Pleazy Monster Dig", among others.

Eagle Delegates OK Grant To Med School

Delegates to the 70th annual convention of the Nebraska Fraternal Order of Eagles Thursday approved donations of nearly $8,000 to various projects in the state.

The largest amount was a $5,000 grant to the Creighton University Medical School in Omaha for cancer research. The grant was made possible through the Damon Runyan Cancer Research Fund maintained by the national Eagles organization.

Also approved were $1,000 to the Good Samaritan Village in Hastings, $1,000 from the Eagles Auxiliary to the All Faiths Chapel planned for the Beatrice State Home and $750 from the auxiliary to the Braille Foundation in Lincoln.

More than $25,000 in donations to various other projects and charities are expected to be announced at a banquet Saturday night.

In other business, Earl McKean of Scottsbluff was nominated to succeed Rick Haral of Columbus as state president. McKean is the current vice president.

Other nominations include John Vanosdall, Grand Island, vice president; Leo Eaton, Grand Island, secretary and George Toth, Omaha, treasurer.

Election of officers will be Friday morning, with installation scheduled for Saturday.

An estimated 2,000 to 2,500 Eagles and auxiliary members are attending the convention.

Tim Green Elected Governor At Cornhusker Boys State

Tim Green of Omaha won his bid for governor of the 1974 Cornhusker Boys State Thursday, defeating Nationalist party candidate Kevin Stark of Ceresco in a close race.

The official returns were not released, according to sponsoring American Legion policy.

Green, 16, will be a senior at Omaha Northwest High School. The Federalist Party winner will be inaugurated Friday afternoon as the week-long Boys State comes to a close.

In one of his last official acts, Boys State Gov. Daniel J. Roh of David City appointed Stark, 17, director of the State Department of Administrative Services.

One Bill Vetoed

Roh, elected by the 1973 delegation to serve this year, vetoed Thursday a bill passed by the Boys State Legislature which would have permitted a competent person to request that no steps be taken to prolong his life, if he were dying of an incurable disease.

But Gov. Roh signed eight other bills to:

- Reinstate the death penalty in murder cases involving rape, kidnapping or a law enforcement officer.
- Approve state aid to parochial schools.
- Change Nebraska's state bird from the Western Meadowlark to the prairie chicken.
- Declare the fourth Monday in May Memorial Day, complying with federal guidelines.
- Increase state senators' salaries from $4,800 to $9,600 annually, beginning in 1975.
- Lower the age of majority from 19 to 18.
- Make unlawful providing minors with obscene material, punishable by a $1,000 fine or a year in jail or both.
- Legalize a state-wide lottery and off-track betting.

To Go To Exon

Boys State Secretary Ray Oltman said the bills will be forwarded to Gov. J. James Exon's office and the Clerk of the Legislature.

"We think it's of value to state government to know what the young people are thinking," Oltman said.

Outgoing Gov. Roh, a David City Aquinas graduate who intends to enroll in the University of Nebraska-Lincoln engineering school this fall, said he views his role as 1974 Boys State governor "as kind of a counselor."

After Boys State last year, he was selected as one of two Nebraska delegates to Boys Nation in Washington, D.C., "the highlight of my life," he said in an interview.

Roh Speaks

Since then, Roh said, he has spoken about "what kind of a program we have here and how good it is" at his school to Butler County groups and at the American Legion district meeting and state convention.

Roh has also served the past year on the Nebraska Commission on Drugs — appointed by Gov. Exon — and on the State Board of Education advisory panel on Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

He said he has an inkling but no firm plans yet to enter politics eventually.

Meanwhile, Boys Staters Thursday delved into the organization of city government, saw a law and order demonstration sponsored by the Lincoln Police Department and joined in the traditional dance with Girls State delegates.

Friday's activities feature open lectures on "Archeology of the Midwest" and the "Pleazy Monster Dig", among others.

And the day will close with dancing at 9 p.m. to the Oliver Hotsie Totsie Polka Band.

Accident Kills Man

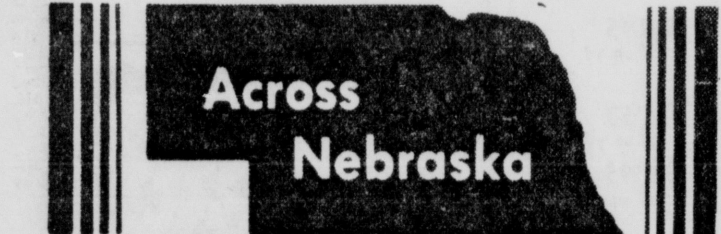

A 31-year-old Lincoln man, Larry Leon Coble, of 6630 Lexington, died Thursday at Lincoln General Hospital after he sustained severe head injuries in a jeep accident early Wednesday morning.

Police said Coble was driving a convertible jeep northbound on 56th when the jeep left the road, re-entered the road and rolled three or four times. Police said Coble was thrown from the vehicle.

Funeral services are scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday at St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

Milford Balloon Lands In Ohio

Milford — Mitch Koch, 14, has received word that three helium-filled balloons he released here May 4 were found in Botkins, Ohio. Koch attached his name and a taped message to the balloons which were given away at the Tech Fair held at the Southeast Community College open house last month. The balloons were discovered by Tim Buehler near his home in Shelby County, about 20 miles south of Lima, Ohio.

Halbert Named To City Attorney's Post

Falls City — Richard Halbert has been appointed city attorney here by Mayor Dale L. Shaffer. A graduate of the University of Nebraska Law College in 1968, Halbert served as deputy Hall County attorney at Grand Island before coming to Falls City.

Dils Selected As Sidney City Manager

Sidney — Mayard Dils, 43, city manager at Eaton, Ohio, has been hired as city manager at Sidney and is expected to begin his duties sometime in July. He will succeed Ed Prince here.

Dr. Harsh Cited For Service

McCook — Dr. Stephen B. Harsh of Lansing, Mich., recently received an award in Washington from U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz. The award was given to members of a project in cooperative extension service at Michigan State University. Dr. Harsh is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Harsh of McCook.

Gill Purchases Arapahoe, Holbrook Papers

Arapahoe — T. M. Gill of Lexington has purchased Arapahoe's Public Mirror and The Holbrook Observer from Boss Publications Inc. The main business offices are located in Arapahoe. For the past three years, Gill has been associated with the Tri-City Tribune in Cozad as Lexington editor.

Mrs. Mikesell New Dawes County Clerk

Chadron — Mrs. Florence Mikesell has been appointed Dawes County clerk, replacing Rose Mackey. Miss Mackey resigned, citing health reasons for the action, after holding the position for seven terms.

Wheat Field Day Set For Sidney

Sidney — The annual Wheat Field Day tour at the University of Nebraska High Plains Agricultural Laboratory will be Thursday, June 20. The lab is five miles north of Sidney. The tour will start at 1:30 p.m. at the lab headquarters.

Drunk Driving Count Against Fremont's Attorney Revised

Fremont (AP) — "The question here concerns his driver's license, not his license to the bar association."

That was one of the reasons Dodge County Atty. Gordon Gobel gave Thursday for amending the normal procedure by which the ASAP program works and because conditions of second and third offense DWI could end his legal practice.

Gobel said Thursday he handled the case the way he did because "it was reported to me that certain individuals were attempting to have Mr. Gill disbarred. Mr. Gill should be barred from driving an automobile, not from practicing law. DWI is not a sufficient reason in and of itself to disbar a man of his law practice."

Gobel said decisions on how to handle Gill's case after hearing recommendations from Gill's pastor, city officials and doctors at Immanuel Lutheran Hospital in Omaha after the results of ASAP's pre-sentence investigation were announced.

"The important thing," he said, "is that Mr. Gill will be prevented from driving an automobile so he won't be in danger of hurting somebody on the street."

He said he has an inkling but no firm plans yet to enter politics eventually.

Meanwhile, Boys Staters Thursday delved into the organization of city government, saw a law and order demonstration sponsored by the Lincoln Police Department and joined in the traditional dance with Girls State delegates.

Court Vacancy Names Submitted

A judicial nominating commission Thursday submitted the names of two persons to Gov. J. James Exon as candidates for a District Court vacancy in the 15th District.

The names submitted by the commission were Samuel C. Ely of Ainsworth and Henry F. Reimer of O'Neill.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L E A A X X
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
